Another flop for NAITSA

Well it's happening again. The complete lack of interest in what's happening here at NAIT by the student body. On January 5th a concert was to be held in the auditorium. As usual, attendance was down and only approximately 25 people showed up to see the great Russel Thornberry perform. The size of the audience was enough to make me sick with shame. Sick in that an up and coming entertainer should subjected to this and that the NAIT student body was responsible. When those present were notified of the concerts cancellation it was Russel Thornberry who apologized for this, not the students as it should have been. I can only imagine the disappointment that he must have felt.

This concert's failure is only one of a long list that your students council has endured. To bring you up to date there were the two dances on Monday, January 4th. The noon performance had an estimated attendance of 100 people with the evening performance running a close second. A fine showing for a student population of approximately 3600.

The annual Ice Statue Building contest is also a flop. Out of the many technologies participating in the Queen contest only one has made a significant showing. The others just don't seem to care and have built something, anything in a poor attempt to make themselves look good. These people just don't realize that what they have built is out in the public eye and it not only adds prestige to the school but also adds prestige to the technologies that they represent.

The lack of participation and interest by students have made me wonder why the student council doesn't just say "to Hell with it." Let the students find their own entertainment and pay much more for it. For as I see it the only activities that will be of any resemblance to a success (in terms of participation) will be those that are free. Are you, the student too afraid to dig into your pocket and spend a little money to enjoy yourself. The way things have been going this assumption becomes all too realistic. This apathy created by you, the student, will eventually destroy what school spirit is left and you will become just another cog in the wheel of education. Whether or not this happens is entirely up to you. Ken Caspell

The Rapper

The views expressed by the author are not necessarily his own, but are views of some of the students of NAIT. These are the gripes of the silent majority who through this column, the writer hopes to make these complaints known.

Because this writer fears repercussions from some of the staff members he wishes to remain anonymous. If any person involved in the activities of NAIT has any problem, he is welcome to write this column, c/o "The Nugget", and his point of view will be published.

More Apathy

Once again the students at this school have spoiled one of our traditionally great events. Queen Week this year was poorest it has ever been and it is not the fault of the organizers. It is your fault, yes yours, Joe Q Student. All you needed to do was attend the functions that were already set up for your benefit. The rest was done for you. Don't you realize what a let-down this is for the people who are involved? They are losing their motivation to do things for you. How would you like it if nothing was done; no dances, no parties, no Attic, and no films every Monday night? But this doesn't matter to you anyway, because you never attend any of these things.

If the situation continues to snowball as it presently is, Nait will become known as the "School Without Spirit." If this happens the School Without Spirit will be the poorest place in the province to continue your education. Companies will hear of Nait's reputation and will be reluctant to hire it's graduates. Companies prefer graduates who were involved in student activities, and if you participate your chances of getting the job you want will be increased. Isn't this the reason you are going to school? To get the job that you want.

There is no use in crying over spilt milk, so let's leave the topic and see what we can do in the future. Let's not ruin Open House. Whether or not you realize it, Open House is not only for the visitors, it is primarily set up for your benefit. This is where the school advertises for prospective employers.

Open House is what you make it. If you are prepared to put in a lot of time and effort the results will be rewarding. Not only is it a great deal of fun, but at the end of the year most of the graduates will be hired and most of the first year students will be able to find jobs. Isn't this exactly what you are coming here for. Open House is the best thing that Nait has--let's not blow it!

Looking forward to what:

A three way fight for the Presidency of NAITSA, Fran Hanna (a female)'' Austin Bradley, and as yet an undecided third candidate.

Sonny Noga comes to the conclusion that people are taking advantage of him, rushes out and buys a pie proof wardrobe.

A sweet nineteen year old (Debbie Steel) becomes the most popular NAIT Queen ever. Maybe? The NAIT hockey team drops out of the A.C.A.C. just as the new arena is completed.

The NAIT cafeteria establishes a new record, three good meals in a row.

Dear Jaro:

I have been attending this Institute for approximately one and a half years. All I seem to do is study, eat, and sleep. What can I do to make the remainder of my stay at this Institute more exciting?

Billy Bored

Dear B.B.

Sleeping is very important to your health, as is eating. All I can say is, cut your studying time in half. This will give you eight hours for chasing girls and fun, fun, fun.

Dear Jaro:

I am a representative to the student council. I go to all the meetings that are called. Now I am becoming disenchanted with the other members who do not attend. It seems that nobody gives a damn, am I overly concerned?

Bewildered

Dear Bewildered:

Why are you worried about your association with NAITSA, it only costs you twenty-two dollars a year.

Dear Jaro:

I am a hockey coach in a college league. On a recent road trip my team lost two games. My team has many individual stars, many of which are league leaders in missing the net, missing practices, missing games, and just plain missing. What can I do to install team spirit?

Worried Coach

Dear Worry Wart:

By what you have written I can see clearly what is wrong. Fire your assistant coach, trainer, stick boy, and also get rid of the team leader. When you have done this quietly resign. Let someone else worry about the team, the spirit will then come naturally.

Mother told me not to

I think everyone in Canada has heard or seen the American, "Love it or Leave it" slogan. A great many have chosen to leave it. The reason for leaving it to some of them could be:

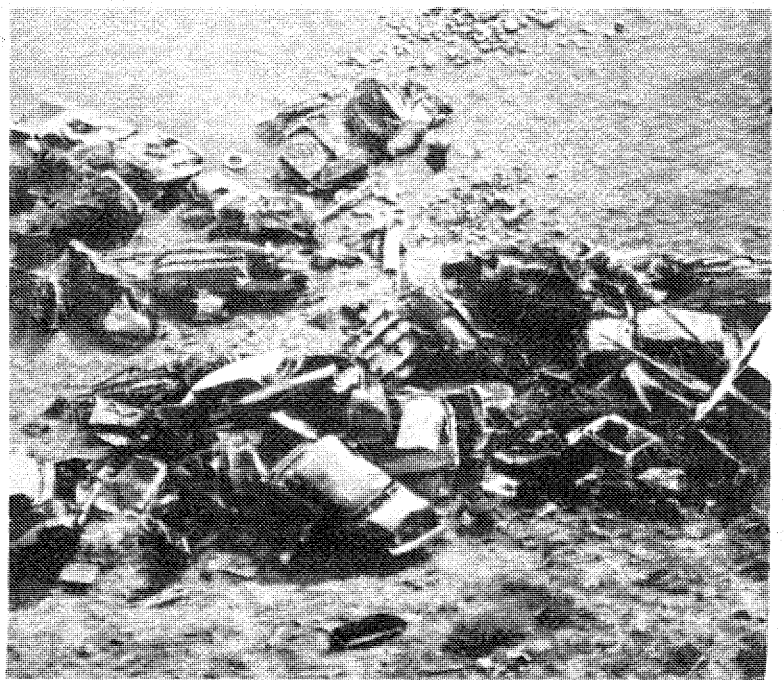

There is nothing to stay in America for! For 30 years other countries and now America have embarked on programs of exploitation their neighbors and their own people.

I think the American youth was once idealistic and now they are pessimists. They feel they are powerless to stop America's course of stupidity, greed and self-destruction, and they are now separating themselves from the tragic process, LEAVING IT.

There's another way we are killing ourselves, the level of STRONTIUM 90 and D.D.T. present in the human blood stream already exceeds safety levels. This could happen to the same degree in Canada it's already started.

While millions struggle in American, European, and Japanese cities they continue to pour never ending stream of filth into the AIR, RIVERS & STREAMS.

Despite the recent example of HITLER, which should have taught politicians something about the ultimate result of lying to the point where you begin to believe it yourself.

The prime example of this is America's continuation of the WAR IN INDOCHINA. They have a new explanation every week (each one less convincing than the previous BIG LIE). They are supposed to be LIBERATING them, but all they are liberating them from is their arms, legs, eyes, and with NAPALM - even their skin.

Then there is their POLITICAL SYSTEM where 20,000,000-40,000,000 people below the poverty level. I wonder who decides who's below and who's above the national average. They squander BILLIONS on a dead moon while the earth slowly sinks below the SEA OF APATHY. The Vice-president is very enthused about going to MARS, maybe they should send him for I think he can't see the RIOTS in the cities, the heart of America slowly Dying, we see policy statements on TV about the WAR ON POVERTY but the only war that seems to be gaining ground is the MIDDLE EAST, VIET NAM and the COLD WAR. The only Americans that feel the true effect of these social injustices are the POOR. Are these really policy statements or EGO TRIPS on T.V.

The military powers of the world have really gone strong, we have enough NUCLEAR WAR-HEADS to kill every MAN, WOMAN AND CHILD and every other living thing NOT ONCE but TEN times and the cry is for more arms, why don't they listen to the cry of the common people or could this be one of the main failings of Democracy. There's another little trick they have, Nerve gas enough to KILL everyone 30 times, is this a SANE SOCIETY OR AN ARMED MAD-HOUSE?

I would like to leave you with this one thought a SLOGAN FOR ALL CANADIAN PEOPLE MIGHT BE ONE WE SHOULD ALL TRY TO LIVE BY IN THIS THE MOST CRITICAL TIME KNOWN TO MANKIND.

IF YOU LOVE IT SAVE IT, IF YOU DON'T DON'T DESTROY IT.

For this is the only generation that can!

A NAIT talent hour

Yes, we expect to have a NAIT Talent Hour IF we receive the willing cooperation of the students and staff.

The planning committee of the Comprehensive Cultural Activity Program are busily searching for talent of all kinds for this talent hour which is tentatively scheduled for mid-February.

If you sing, dance, tell jokes, play musical instruments, or do any other groovy thing, or know of someone else or a group of people who would participate in this event, please contact a member of the planning committee soon-like today,, if possible!

The members of this planning committee who are searching for talent sincerely want your suggestions. Please contact Jim Stimson (424 grey), Austin Bradley (428 grey), Elizabeth Taylor (431 grey), Irwin Strifler (446 grey), Wes Hughes (478 grey). Comprehensive Cultural Activities Program

How's that for a name?

Well, it means something, and is affecting most students and staff in this second quarter. It means that a comprehensive cultural program has been planned by a student-staff committee, and that everyone is free to enjoy this planned program from 1:15 p.m. to 2:10 p.m. every Wednesday in the auditorium (usually).

Or if you prefer exercising or just enjoying yourself, you are welcome to go to the gymnasium where unplanned activities take place. In all likelihood, other unplanned activities will take place elsewhere too! Anyway, as you probably know, all technology students (not including business students who have their common weekly spare earlier in a day) have a common spare from 1:15 to 2:10 every Wednesday, so this committee planned activities for all interested students and staff for this time. It has been felt by several people that all students should have common spares in order to allow students and staff to mix formally and informally in various activities, and to provide an outlet for the energies and talents of the individuals, as well as to increase the awareness and participation of students and staff in social concerns of current interest. This Comprehensive Cultural Activities Program, as planned by the student-staff committee is one effort to accomplish the above goals. The success of the program, or its lack of success, depends of course on the participation and reactions of our students and staff.

The first planned activity of this program took place in the gymnasium, on Wednesday, December 16 when the Southbound Freeway played for the staff-sponsored sock-hop.

The next activity took place in the auditorium on Wednesday, January 13, where a committee, consisting of students and staff, discussed the problems, reasons, and possible solutions for the considerable number of dropouts at NAIT.

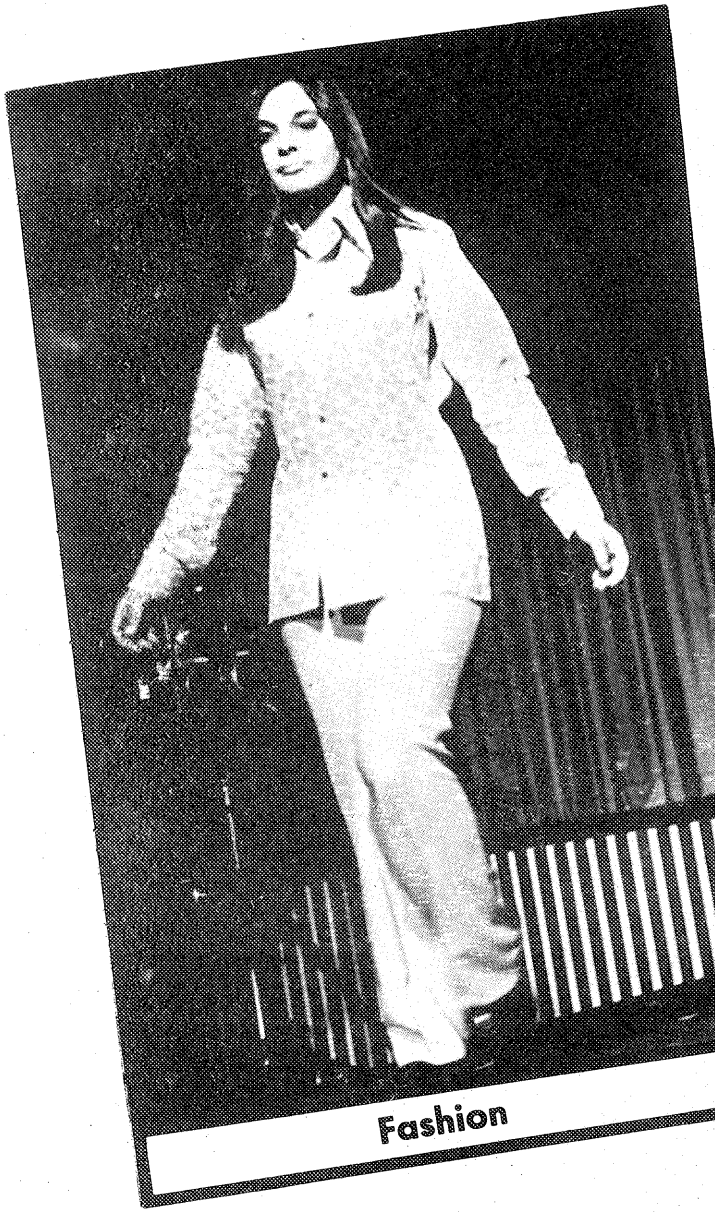

Other topics to be discussed at future Wednesday happenings include Students' Assistance, Women's Liberation, the Alberta Association of Students (AAS), NAITSA., and a gallant talent hour featuring talent from the students and staff here at NAIT. Please watch future Nuggets and the bulletin boards for more details.

We hope to see you every Wednesday, in this second quarter, from 1:15-2:10 in the auditorium or gymnasium.

The planning committee welcome the suggestions and comments of everyone. Please express yourself to one of the students-Austin Bradley, Elizabeth Taylor, and Jim Stimson; or to Mr. Irwin Stifler (E124), or Mr. Wes Hughes (E121).

The land grab

by Allan Fotheringham

You come upon the most interesting reading in the fine print of that official government notice-board, the B.C. Gazette. How about this, under the land lease section: Take Notice that Billy Underwood, a mail carrier from Vinita, Oklahoma, is applying for a lease on 640 acres of B.C. land. Or this: Anita Allaire, a keypunch supervisor from Seattle, has picked out 1 1/2 acres on a lake. Ronald Leighty, a warehouse clerk from Troy, Montana, has found a lakeside property. Phebe LaTurner, a Spokane housewife, has discovered her spot for a summer lake cottage.

We all know about the wealthy American doctors and tycoons and retired movie stars who have grabbed their prime little piece of Canadian vacation land. But it's a measure of the Yankee stampede to B.C. that now mailmen from Oklahoma, clerks from Montana and keypunch girls from Seattle are grabbing waterfront land. This indeed is democracy.

You could go on indefinitely with the examples. The Gulf Islands out in the Strait of Georgia are one of the beauty spots of the world, with the mildest climate in Canada. There is little Parker Island, owned by a New York grandmother who wants to keep it for her grandchildren. Wise Island was picked off recently by Seattle interests for $250,000. There is a book written by a New York model and friend on how they bought Wallace Island. Brethour Island is owned by James A. Fitzpatrick, the famous travelogue voice. Gooch Island is typical; owned by a Pasadena couple, it was sold to the son of a Washington State governor for $150,000, strickly as a summer home. The house has 11 bedrooms and 9 bathrooms. The whole transaction was handled by a Bellevue, Washington real estate firm. Canada might as well have not existed.

An American real estate man explains, "The romance of owning a whole island is beginning to spread." There's the Portland doctor who bought a tiny island for $25,000 but also bought up the waterfront rights so no one could even dock there. There are 11 different doctors in Sacramento who own B.C. Islands. None of them owns a boat. They go in by seaplane.

The dozing B.C. government has finally been roused by an Oregon speculator, a charming fellow by the name of William J. Wineberg. He recently boasted that he has acquired more than 600 parcels of undeveloped B.C. land for resale--a little empire totalling 60,000 acres. Most of it he got for $10 or less and acre. How? Simple, he explains. He keeps track of all B.C. property going on the block at auctions to recover unpaid taxes. He maintains an office in Victoria to do his research and took the precaution of employing a former lands department man to help him. He boasts of islands he has bought for $400 and sold for $40,000. Practically all his sales naturally are to other Americans.

Mr. Wineberg says quite cheerfully that Canadians have been "too dumb to invest in their own country." He's right, of course, but the word applies both to the cautious public and to a provincial government that has been asleep. Wineberg's embarrassing success has forced Victoria to cancel this year's tax sale of property until it has time to prepare legislation to balk future Mr. Winebergs. The government is trying to pressure municipalities to do the same.

But is it rather too late with too little? Until 1960, Americans or any other foreigners could buy up all the Crown waterfront land in B.C. they could find. That was stopped but they can still get around it by using an agent. And they can still grab off all the private property they can find. Across the border, in Washington state, a Canadian is not allowed to own state land. But B.C. is up for grabs.

It's not exactly as if Mr. Bennett's government, which is so fond of Japanese and American investment in pulp mills and mining, had to be caught by surprise by the new Yankee invasion. B.C. is larger than California, Washington and Oregon combined and those with loot down below can't believe it when they see all this empty land sitting here waiting.

A number of wealthy Americans picked up real estate here around 1958 as a tax dodge. At that time U.S. death duties on Canadian real estate were a flat 15 per cent. In some families, duty on similar property in the U.S. was as high as 85%. The Kennedy administration plugged that tax loophole.

Then there is the matter of B.C. ranchland. By 1963, Americans already owned more than half the cattle ranches in B.C. "When you get down to it," says an Interior real estate man, "the Americans own the Cariboo."

The Gang Ranch in the Cariboo largest cattle spread in North America, was sold to Americans for $750,000. A wealthy American surgeon may be able to pick up a few dry acres of water-poor California for $3200,000. For that price in B.C. he can be an absentee cattle baron--owning land that has a half-dozen little lakes and streams.

And then there's the help we get from our friends. Block Bros. largest real estate company in B.C., last year blossomed forth with huge ads in San Francisco papers: "British Columbia for Sale." To help buyers along, the company put out a glossy book with pictures and details on hundreds of choice B.C. properties. The resulting scream from irate British Columbians killed the ads, but the melody lingers on.

The problem is that the British Columbians have been so smug with the fact that wilderness is so close, so accessible. This of course is Paradise out here and now others are beginning to believe our propaganda. We used to joke; "Help keep B.C. Green--Bring Money." Now we want the government to halt the joke.

For one thing, it doesn't even know the extent of the problem. The DBS, which measures and records most aspects of Canadian life, draws a blank on foreign ownership of land. There is no master registration of land sales, no central file on the disposition of Crown lands.

MP David Anderson, whose riding covers the Gulf Islands, urges that residents there be allowed to sell their land only to the government before "irresponsible developers do irreparable harm."

If the government doesn't do something quickly, B.C. will become what some critics already call it: British California.

Report from Drafting

by Ray Van Nes

Here it is 1971 and my New Year's resolution is to keep the small, but loyal, contingent of Drafting Supporters better informed. Disregarding the multitude of activities from the beginning of the year, I'll look at a few of the more recent activities.

One of the more important events that has passed was the nomination of Diane Hallam from Dental Tech. as Drafting's Queen Candidate. By the time this article is published the new Queen will have been picked, but it has been very interesting and a lot of fun.

This Christmas it was decided that our technology should give some sort of a substantial gift. We did! Exploration was presented with a bouncing baby boulder with a custom paint job. Compliments to Santa's helper who has the record for holding it up for the longest time before collapsing. He is also the only person in the school who can tie his shoelace without bending over.

Now for the World of Sports. I must apologize for any discrepancies in these reports, for I am not sports minded---tiddly-winks being my forte. Latest reports indicate that the team is the scourge of the handball courts. How's that for accurate reporting? Eat your heart out Tiger Goldstick!

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

What has gone wrong with the students here at NAIT? I have noticed that the Tower Lounge is full of empty milk cartons, candy wrappers, etc. after the noon lunch break. The tables and floors look in a sad state.

To-day while down in the main rotunda during the Pie Eating Contest I noticed that after the pies were eaten by the contestants a few people threw the remaining pies at each other, as a result, the floor became covered with cream pie. No effort was made by any student to clean up the mess. A janitor finally came along and cleaned it up. The point I would like to raise is this: Are the students, adults or children? Do they need somebody to always clean up after them? What is the matter with the students anyway?

I realize that all students are not doing these things, but the ones that are, are making it difficult for the rest of us.

As for the music that has been played for the various dances in the auditorium. Would it be too much to ask the band to turn down the sound a little bit. I enjoy the music, but I think it is too loud when you can hear it in the library and the North Rotunda where I tried once to study during a dance. Because of the noise I found it impossible.

Nait students must have fun but they sometimes carry it too far. Let's hope we don't lose our good name because of the things mentioned above.

Donald Grant AVC.

NO SOLUTION

The December 17 issue of the Nugget had a provoking article on the possibility of unrest amongst the students.

Personally, I agree that our present policies and regulations are in need of revision. But, how do we institute a change? For example, I had the opportunity to work with a student from an Eastern university where they had this problem. Their solution at the time was simple enough; destroy the Computer Systems Division in the hope of gaining public attention. They gained publicity and attention alright, but the laws remained the same. No real solution was found.

I cannot offer a method of re-vamping the present regulations and I don't believe there is an individual here who can suggest an intelligent means! If there is

I'd like to hear how he plans on changing the present regulations and his alternatives.

The man from A.P.A.T.H.Y.

While sitting one day in the PIT it was overheard a club for all of N.A.I.T. the name they had was A.P.A.T.H.Y. from which I concluded stands for nothing, but then it could stand for something depending on what or which you take it for or want it for.

Some of the details of the Club are:

1. No membership cards

2. If it becomes necessary to have a meeting will call you
3. No rules
4. No dues
5. No set forum

Let's really get behind this club and show it the same old N.A.I.T. support.

Social Services Conference

There is at least one technology in this school that is not apathetic as most of the others. The proposed, and now official, Alberta Association of Social Services held a conference in Calgary last month and our own group of Social Service students were by far the best represented. Although the students had to travel two hundred miles and pay their own expenses for three days, better than 50 per cent of the students enrolled in this technology attended.

Three other colleges also sent representatives; these being Red Deer, Saskatoon, and Mount Royal, which was the hosting college. It was kind of ironical; but hardly any of the Calgary students showed up, either for the work sessions or the evening parties, which by the way, were a bigger success than the conference itself.

The purpose of the conference was to set up a valid constitution for a proposed Association of Social Service students, which would represent the four colleges at a national conference to be held at McGill University sometime in February. Each college will be represented by three students who will meet with the representatives of the other colleges at regular intervals.

This will assist the students in finding suitable placement and also encourage a transfer program whereby students will be able to transfer from one institute to another. It will also help a student who wishes to attend a university, for it would set up course standards that would be acceptable at University level. The students would then be allowed to continue their education and receive credit for the subject they have already taken.

Much time was spent at the conference arguing over the finer points of their new constitution, but all in all it was a success. Although it was a three day affair, the representatives were pressed for time and the last day was very hectic with the final details of the constitution being rushed through. The conference, despite the poor attendance by the other schools, was a success and all of the main objectives of the were reached.

Jokes

It seems, when the Creator was making the world, he called man aside and bestowed upon him 20 years of normal sex life.

Man was horrified--only twenty years!

But the Creator didn't budge. That was all He would grant him. Then He called the monkey aside and gave him 20 years, "But I don't need 20 years," said the monkey, "all I need is 10." Then man spoke up and said, "Can't I have the other 10 years," and the monkey agreed.

Then the Creator called the lion and gave him 20 years. The lion said 10 would be plenty. Again man asked for the other 10 and the lion agreed. and gave him 20 years," "But I don't need 20 years," said the said 10 years was all he needed and man asked again for the other ten years, and again received them.

This explains why man has 20 years of normal sex life, 10 years of monkeying around, 10 years of lion about it, and 10 years of making an ass of himself.

Women as cattle in Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CUP)-- Thousands of women standing three and four hours Monday and Tuesday for the chance to work at the Post Office this Christmas testified to the success of Trudeau's policy of fighting inflation by creating unemployment.

The women who came--those who have been looking for work for months, who must supplement the family income, students, and women on welfare were met with all the inhumanity of a federal bureaucracy.

Despite the high number of applicants expected, only five officials were available to fill out forms. Seating facilities and coat racks were not provided. Three women fainted from the heat and strain of standing.

Many held small children weighing 30 to 40 pounds because they could not afford a babysitter. They were applying for the afternoon or night shift when their husbands would be home to care for the children. It would not be worth working if they had to deduct day care costs from their meagre pay.

Many members of Women's Liberation and the Vancouver Women's Caucus applied for jobs as well. They pointed out that the federal government like other employers, benefits from discrimination against women, who form a cheap labour pool which can be drawn out of the home employers need extra labour, not when women need jobs.

By paying lower wages, costs can be reduced and profits increased. As long as they can hire women for low wages with minimal working conditions, they will not hire men or women for decent salaries.

The more militant women urged the others in the line-up to apply for better paying jobs as letter carriers and porters. Some officials told women they could apply for these jobs, but either priority given to men. Others simply refused to list women for positions as other than sorters.

Last year, the Post Office hired 2,681 women--all but seven in the lowest-paid category of sorters.

The Women's Lib supporters asked for space for a day care centre and offered their services. They were told that children should be left at home and those who wanted jobs would just have to wait.

Nonetheless, they went ahead and brought in toys and chairs from other offices and set up shop on the Post Office floor. Women gratefully brought their children over, asking others to hold their places in line while they sat down for a rest.

Anger at the senseless procedure mounted as officials filled out forms for the women one by one, with straightforward information such as name, address and social security number. They began to chant, "We want to forms."

Many of the women argue that the federal government should provide day care for both permanent and temporary help, union protection for all, and an end to discriminatory hiring practices.

They are determined to make the government live up to its promises of "a just society."

"THE NUGGET ISN'T MUCH OF A SCHOOL PAPER!!" "BOY IF I HAD THE CHANCE!..."

How many of you who are reading this article right now have thought that at one time or another that this newspaper was pretty poor. I would be willing to bet that almost everyone of the students in this school can find some fault with it. You cannot really blame any of the newspaper staff for the quality, or lack of it, that you find in the NUGGET. The staff at the newspaper is very bias, that's right bias. We try very hard not to be, but the four of us are just not a large enough cross section of the school to report fairly on all of the activities. To put out a newspaper of high quality we should have at least 15 people on the staff. You probably say, "What a drag," and "I can't write." I said the same thing. I was wrong. Since I started to work for the newspaper, I have never had so much fun at school. My marks having improved and I enjoy coming.

As for the writing part of it; I will let you be the judge of that. I am writing this article. I, Like you, used the traditional cliché when asked to write for the paper "But I can't write." Maybe I still can't write, but at least I am trying. It is getting so that I enjoy writing an article. If something really burns me up all I do is sit down at the desk and write out my frustrations. If I am still mad by publication date, I ask the editor to publish it. I never noticed it before, but did you realize some very influential people (administration) in this school are actually afraid of this Mickey Mouse little paper. It is a wonderful feeling to know that it was you who initiated a long coming change.

Right now you are probably saying, "This guy is just trying to suck me in and get me to come and work for the rotten newspaper." Well, you are right. I am trying to get you to work for the newspaper. We need you. Don't be shy; come on in, we will be very happy to see you. We will help you get started and give you all the assistance that you'll need. Sure it's a lot of work at times, but I'm positive that you will enjoy it. Besides you will never know what it's like until you try it. Are you Chicken?

The way things are shaping up there will be no newspaper next year. There is not one first year student that I know of who is interested in becoming editor, or for that matter, taking over one of the many openings that exist. If there are any students, first or second year, who are even interested in writing please come into room E128 and ask to see either Ken Caspell or myself. We will greet you with open arms. Lee Kearns

Hockey Teams

A hockey team consisting of some staff and students from NAIT and AVC has been practicing Tuesday and Thursday afternoons between 5 p.m. and 6:30 p.m., and are now ready (they think) for some active competition.

If some student hockey teams would like some good-natured games you are welcome to play this team at the above times.

If interested, please contact Glen Cleveland (A.V.C. student), or W. Hughes in E121F (phone 478 grey).
