

Editor and exec al get their money

by BRENT STUMPH

We won! Students voted overwhelmingly in favor of a paid editor for the Nugget and monthly salaries for the NAITSA executive.

It was a day full of surprises. First of all, not too many people thought that 200 students, the quorum, would attend the meeting. 238 showed up. Then there were doubts as to either of the Amendments passing. Both passed with 80% of the votes.

192 people voted for paying the executive, 46 against, and 191 voted for a paid editor, 46 against. One ballot was spoiled on the editor question.

Each member of the executive (excluding the President and the secretary) now receive $85 a month. The President receives $4000 per year, plus a $1000 travel budget. The secretary is paid $2.50 an hour.

Social Activities Chairman Ed Kohel, spearheaded the drive for monthly salaries, and his plans worked without fail; except in one instance.

He expected the monthly salary to be retroactive to the beginning of this year's executives' term of office, in May. That was not stated in the amendment, so he, along with the rest of the executive, will have to be content with a salary starting this month.

The Editor of the Nugget now receives $3.00 an hour, to a maximum of $500 per month. This year is the first year a Nugget Editor has been paid.

Cops have a new beat

The days of the policeman on the beat will not be lost, at least in Edmonton.

With the announcement of the coming of Robert Lunney as the new Chief Constable, our desk-bound commandos of corruption will be out working off their lunches.

The man on the beat will be required to stop in on all the businessmen to introduce himself and have a short chat and be on his way. The officer must acquaint himself as well with the principle of the school nearby.

Calgary, which has had the same system in effect for some time, operates with much less staff than Edmonton at present.

The 'on the beat' method which is referred to now as community policing is supposed to reduce public apathy toward criminal behaviour or in other words "in sight, in mind".

Chief Lunney also has some views on the treatment of natives and told the police commission that he would like to see some native constables on the force. Having been with the RCMP for 21 years the idea is not new to him nor the problems it presents.

With the coming of the new chief possibly Mr. Lunney's noted administrative talents can unsnarl the paper jungle that many of the officers have to live with throughout the day.

Amendments should never have passed

by BRENT STUMPH

It should be called "a fluke". The passing of the amendments to motions in the Constitution should not have happened.

Our executive went about it the wrong way. If NAITSA President Russ McLeod had finished rewriting the Constitution, a project started by past-President Gary Everett last year, the need for a General Assembly would be eliminated.

The new Constitution would have left matters, such as those voted upon, up to the Representative Council.

Our present Constitution is outdated. It has to be rewritten. Much of that work has been done, but it is up to Mr. McLeod to see that the Constitution is completed and to rid the student body of boring referendums.

Morgentaler trial continues

The Supreme Court of Canada has reserved its decision on whether or not to allow Montreal doctor Henry Morgentaler to appeal his conviction on abortion charges made by the Quebec Court of Appeals.

The reserve means that the court will deliver its decision at a future date, which could be months away. It can decide one of three ways: to uphold the Court of Appeals' decision, to overturn or to order a new trial. Indications are that a new trial may be ordered.

Member of the court expressed some doubts about an appeal court substituting its verdict for that of a jury, as had the Quebec Court of Appeals.

The court also seemed of the opinion that only a jury should decide whether the abortion performed by Morgentaler was necessary and therefore not an illegal act.

The Crown's lawyer, Louis-Guy Robichaud, argues that Morgentaler made an effort to come within the 1969 abortion laws when he performed the abortion in August 1973.

Robichaud says the doctor made no attempt to have the girl brought before a therapeutic abortion committee established in Montreal as called for by law.

He also urged the court not to apply Section 45 of the Criminal Code as a defence against abortion saying it would open the way for 'abortion on demand.'

Section 45 states that everyone is protected from criminal responsibility for performing a surgical operation upon any person for the benefit of that person 'if the operation is performed with skill and care and it is reasonable to perform the operation and having regard to all the circumstances of the case.'

If that were a valid defence against abortion charges, everyone, not just medical doctors, could perform abortions, Robichaud said.

Earlier the court had ruled that the defence of the abortion laws being unconstitutional was not valid leaving Morgentaler with only Section 45 of the Criminal Code to use as a defence.

by ALEX MAIR

My wife came home from her first curling game and said that she questioned the mental prowess of a person who would stand on a sheet of ice with cold feet, cold hands and a runny nose and get yelled at because they weren't sweeping hard enough - and claim that the whole thing was an exercise in fun and relaxation.

Curling comes to mind, because, to bend the word of Solomon just a shade, 'Lo, the winter is almost past, the flowers will soon appear on the earth, the time of the winging of the birds is almost at hand, and the voice of the skip is heard through the land'

The Skip. He's the one that storms half way up the sheet of ice, looks down at you sprawled on your stomach and says, 'The idea, dummy, is to let go of the handle.'

Out here in the west we have this wierd pagan ritual, this harbinger of spring that we call a bonspiel and it has to be the last wild fling of a people pushed to the brink by a long winter.

A bonspiel is the time of year when a fellow, who, all winter long has complained about the eight foot walk to the electric pencil sharpener, and who thinks he's in great shape because he has a stiff spring in his ball point pen will go out there and curl three games during the day and two more in the evening, if he had a streak of bad luck and keeps on winning.

Have you ever watched the two teams crawl off the ice at the end of the first day of a bonspiel? They look like The Seven Dwarfs and Rumpelstiltskin after a tough ten hour day in a low drift down gold mine.

I saw one fellow on Saturday afternoon, coming up to the end of mitts, and when the skip called for a sweep, well, you could just tell from the look on his face that he was having lots of fun.

Out here in Liniment Land, curlers themselves do funny things. All their lives they learn to walk standing up straight with their toes pointed to the front. Then when they get out on a sheet of ice, they bend over and learn to run sideways. all hunched his third draw that day. He had big chunks of sponge rubber wrapped around the broom handle and he held it with fingers swathed in band aids. He looked as though he was wearing a pair of Johnson and Johnson fielders over with a stubby broom for support. And when they get to be pretty good at that, they take the broom out to the garage and cut two feet off the handle. You sweep bent over like that, and it does wonders for the old pump in there, right? I know fellow's who's ears are still ringing on the twenty-fourth of May. Old Curlers never die, they just wander around saying "Why doesn't somebody answer the 'phone?" And yes, Virginia, the idea is to sweep in front of the rock.

At the end of the day, just before they tuck their aching bodies under the blankets, they can soak for three quarters of an hour in a scalding hot bathtub. Actually, it doesn't do the sore muscles all that much good, but it's great for peeling off the band aids and adhesive tape, and then tomorrow you can put fresh bandages on the blisters, just before you run out on the ice and start throwing stones at each other all over again.

Masochism - Gratification gained from physical pain, humiliation, deprivation, etc., in-fllicted or imposed on oneself. It seems to fit somehow, but masochism - that's a funny way to spell curling.

Club needs backing too

by SHEILA WILT

How can a government party maintain its balance when there isn't any backing? It can't. How can our club maintain its good standing without some backing? It can't.

Like a government organization it must have members to accomplish its purpose. Even though most of us have part time jobs, and are quite busy, we can still spare 1 and 1/2 hours every month for our club, and go to its meeting. Why not support something that is beneficial for all members, not just one or two but every member. You don't have to work for the club but there are many functions which arise that could be of great interest to you.

Great things like dances, beer fests, and countless others.
That's the only problem with clubs though, people would rather sit back and let the dirty stuff be done by others, unless they themselves can benefit without doing a thing. Why must they take everything free and nothing by power.

Why not see our club treasurer Bill Taylor for membership today. Please don't delay.

Speed bumps

by S/SGT JOHNSTON

WHO WANTS THEM - No one to be sure. There is a threat of this undesirable method of slowing down speeders in the area.

It is a crime that the majority must suffer in order to protect us all from the danger of accidents.

Speeding throughout the lots and inner Institute laneways is on the increase. All lot and Institute entrances are posted with the familiar sign indicating the maximum speed to be 10 MPH.

It would be wise for each motor vehicle driver to take a test drive at 10 MPH. He would be surprised to note just how slow this speed is. It would seem that this is really too slow for any safety purpose. Then we can just imagine the impact and damage and possible resulting bodily harm at only half that speed (5 MPH) when in collision.

Anyone who has had the opportunity of viewing the bodily harm and vehicle damage, either at first hand or by movies, will appreciate the force of contact at only 10 MPH.

Several slight accidents have occurred on NAIT property. The results have been only a slight shaking to the driver and a bent fender or door. Braking conditions were excellent and visibility was very good.

Now, with the coming of ice and snow conditions, these same types of slight accidents can become very serious with no braking possibility.

It is hoped this column will serve to remind everyone of the necessary precautions and care we must exercise during the coming winter months.

It is sad to hear of the tale to be told by those who have been just a little careless. Sympathy does not help after it has happened.

So, let's not have safety bumps let's slow down and have an accident free year.

Apathy vs. Materick

Dear Editor:

Last night a very talented singer performed for us or should I say a privileged few at the NAIT Auditorium. Privileged few being the 13 people who took in the show. If there had been beer or liquor offered at the function I am positive we would have had a packed house. But being a 'straight' show, there was the excuse of exams and, my four hours of homework must get done, offered for not attending. This is just the latest example of our friend 'Student Apathy' laying waste to social functions at NAIT. For the referendum today there was a total of 220 people in attendance of which approximately 180 were dragged in from the halls.

You may say that if I had the time I would attend but can't due to homework etc. A few hours per night once or at the most twice a month are not too much to ask of some people, but it seems to me that it is from the 3800 people attending NAIT.

Last week I had the privilege of attending a hockey game at C.L.C. and it was a very heartwarming experience. Approximately 600 people were in attendance and you knew it. Last night NAIT played C.L.C. again, the only difference being they played at NAIT. You would have thought that it was report card day in junior high, it was so quiet, and there were at least 150 people in attendance from NAIT.

There are countless examples of these 'happenings', the prime one being the very paper this article is printed on, that's right, the Nugget. People complain over the caliber of the paper they are getting, for the work of at the most 4 people and at the least one person, I would say it was pretty damn good.

If people would stop and think about the functions brought in here at their expense, they might realize they are good. But as it stands now I am ashamed, even degraded to admit to people that I am a student in the Institute. Not even a student council meeting which as your governing body gets more than 10 elected representatives out of 57 to their meetings.

All I can say is people had better stop taking things for granted, and stop and think about it for a while and maybe they will realize just what their apathy is doing to this school.

Things will never get better with the I DON'T CARE attitude, so people will say I like things as they are, to these people all I can say is go forth and multiply.

DARRELL FISCHER

Remember

Dear Editor:

Remembrance Day is over, and first I would like to send my special thanks to the staff from Audio - Visual and those students who donated their time and effort to making the poppy drive a success.

A note of thanks also to the students and staff who paused; bought a poppy; and in their own personal way paid tribute to the thousands who died to defend our way of life.

Sincerely,
DONNA GREILACH

Dear Don:

I have read that there is some connection between E.S.P. and hypnosis. Is there?

Just Curious

Dear Curious:

An extensive review of the research related to the interaction between Extra Sensory Perception (E.S.P.) and hypnosis was reported by a man called Van De Castle in 1969. Of the twenty-one studies investigating the affect of hypnosis on E.S.P. sixteen found positive results.

The three main areas of ESP studies appeared to be telepathy (G.E.S.P.), clairvoyance and pre-cognition. G.E.S.P. refers to the phenomenon whereby communication is made between people through other than known physical means. For example, a person in one room may look at a card with a number on it and transmit that number to a person in another room simply by concentrating on the number.

HYPNOSIS and YOU

by: DON PRICE

Clairvoyance refers to the ability of a person to see things, without the use of their eyes, at a distance. For instance, a person may be able to see what is on the reverse side of a card laid face down on a table in another room. Travelling clairvoyance refers to a person apparently being able to leave his body (mentally) and go to another location and report back accurately what they see at that location.

Precognition refers to that ability to predict future events. For example, predicting the order of a set of cards that will turn up prior to their being shuffled and the order revealed.

The above mentioned studies indicate that hypnosis increases the ability of almost anyone to experience E.S.P. When these studies are taken as a group, Van De Castle indicated that the probability that the observed results could happen by chance are one in 10<sup>20</sup>

Strathcona Historical Group strives to save its district

by BRYNE COOPER

History was made recently or rather documented. The Strathcona Historical Group signed their incorporation charter at a reception on Wednesday, Nov. 6.

The Group has been in existence for some time now. Its aim is to preserve the distinctive community character of Strathcona which at one time was a separate entity from Edmonton. The Group is a collection of architects, politicians and others. The Group in its effort to save the Strathcona area is working with the City Planning Commission to prepare rapid and traffic movement to compliment the area.

Many of the plans the Group has stressed is keeping older buildings as part of the character of the area. To that end the Group hopes to receive more support from the federal and provincial governments as well as from the Devonian Foundation and Heritage Canada. But to get this support the Group has to modify its standards and goals somewhat. The scope of its operation initially spanned from a few blocks east of the CPR tracks on Whyte Avenue to the University area, however it has to be modified to the area centralized around the immediate area on the west side of the CPR line.

Many dignitaries were on hand for the ceremonious signing. Among the invited were

Bruce Cockburn a leader in his field

by JOHN STEEDMAN

Throughout the years since his first album which was called simply, 'Bruce Cockburn', Bruce Cockburn has developed himself into a poetic innovative and musical genius. Not only has he tapped knowledge from traditional blues and country techniques and songs but he also has been greatly influenced by Jamaican reggae, Indian classical music and baroque, and just lately jazz.

This latest improvisational development into this involved field of music seems to be Horst Schmid representing the provincial government, Mayor Bill Hawkreuk, Commissioner George Hughes and Alderman Ron Hayter.

The director of Heritage Canada, Bob Phillips presented the master of ceremonies with a letter of commitment for $500,000. Heritage Canada deals with the preservation of man-made items as well as landscapes of interest. The reason it is backing the Group is that the Group is trying to save an area rather than a particular building. If the Group can show this radically new method works then the method will be adopted across the country in all probability.

heavily influenced by such great guitarists and musicians, as, Django Rheinhardt, and John McLaughlin.

Bruce Cockburn's main asset is his ability to write and perform those slow delicate and spiritual songs that he writes lyrics so well for. He continues this form of music on his latest release on True North Records, produced by Gene Martynec, Salt Sun and Time.

Bruce Cockburn and producer musician, Gene Martynec played most of the songs on his new album at the SUB Theatre last week. Having heard his new songs only once at this performance it is difficult to describe his latest work in any detail and depth other than to say that his new album follows in much the same direction as his last in both musical content and quality. Cockburn's quiet easy come easy go attitude on stage and his soft and pleasant manner is a blessing.

His audience who just sat back and allowed themselves to release all those stored up emotions and pressures which had accumulated through the day obviously thoroughly enjoyed the low pressure evening and responded favourably by giving Bruce a standing ovation which is not new at Cockburn concerts.

Bruce Cockburn is obviously a leader in his field and if he continues in his present direction he will find himself in the position of being as significant a folk figure as the one and only Bob Dylan.

ROLLING STONES IT'S ONLY ROCK 'N ROLL

When The Rolling Stones release a new album, the entire music industry takes note! "It's Only Rock 'N Roll", contains ten compositions, nine composed by Mick Jagger and Keith Richards. joining the Stones are; Nicky Hopkins, Ian Stewart and Billy Preston (keyboards), Ray Cooper (percussion), and Blue Magic, who add vocal backing on "If You Really Want To Be My Friend". This album was recorded at Musicland Studios in Munich, West Germany, and was produced by The Glimmer Twins. Among the album highlights are; "If You Can't Rock Me", the Whitfield and Holland classic "Ain't Too Proud To Beg", "Time Waits For No One", and "Dance Little Sister". A rock 'n roll album in the truest sense of the word, The Rolling Stones have possibly their "best" album to date!

Lucky 13 for Ray Materick

by BRENT STUMPH

It's not true that good entertainers always play to packed houses. A good entertainer played at NAIT last week, to 13 people.

Folk singer, Ray Materick came to NAIT to do the things he knows best, play his guitar and sing his songs. And that's exactly what he did . . . for 13 people.

He was great. His tough, yet emotion-filled voice, made everyone not only hear what he had to say; but feel it and experience it.

Accompanied by guitarist Glenn Foster, Materick didn't experience it. Quiet, very seldom smiling, Materick seemed to play for himself as much as for his audience.

Accompanied by guitarist Glenn Foster, Materick didn't let the size of the crowd hamper his hour and a half show. You could sense his discouragement though.

"I don't think I've ever played to a smaller crowd", said Materick. "I've played for less money though. I made $10.00 and all the beer I could drink at the Hunt Motor Inn in Hamilton once. That wasn't a bad deal though, I was hungry and thirsty as hell."

Materick was to receive, as payment for the show, 100% of the gate receipts. That amounted to $19.50. Art Hooks, Assistant to the Director of Student Services said later that NAITSA would send Materick more money, somewhere in the neighborhood of $75.00.

At the end of his performance, Materick said something that showed his real professional spirit and his great desire to really make it as a folksinger. He said, "We'll be back. We won't be back here . . . but we'll be back."

Another way of saying it

by ALEX MAIR

I was up at five oh eight this morning, went for a brisk walk and was back in bed at five eleven, but while I was up a bird flew into the glass living room window. Knocked himself out cold for a minute, poor rascal, got up, shook his head to stop the bells from ringing and then took off again. And for years I've been working on the assumption that the early bird got the worm and all this fellow got was a nasty crick in the neck and a headache.

A friend once observed in heated argument, that a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush, but messier, and the two incidents, tied together, prompted a re-evaluation of some of those truths which men have been taught to live by. You know, we've been fed an incredible amount of nonsense over the years.

I'm halfway convinced that the characters who dreamed up these pearls of wisdom have never tried to live by them. The person who once said sticks and stones can break my bones but names can never hurt me has for example, never hosted an Hourglass show.

Then, too somebody said never look a gift horse in the mouth. When you get down to it, it's not such a good idea to look any horse in the mouth. In the first place they bite, in the second place, they have bad breath, and in the third place, I was looking a horse in the mouth one day and it went Phooo and I won't ever do that again.

Now in the world of travel, it may very well be true that under certain circumstances, getting there can be half the fun, but anybody who hold that to be universally true has never made a car trip with small children and a dog subject to motion sickness.

There are some generalizations that do hold up. The person who once said never bet on a sure thing may have followed the experts peerless predictions at the race track for three days running, but that old one about all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy doesn't hold up. All work and no play makes Jack, is what it does, but with the income tax and all it's hardly worth it these days.

A friend in need is a friend indeed? Hardly. A friend in need is somebody who is about to borrow the five bucks you had set aside for a rainy day, and a soft answer turneth away wrath might have worked if it had been Constable Wrath who put the arm on me on Saturday because I'd forgotten to glue on the stickies for this years license plates, but his name was Scherndorf, and he wouldn't take "soft" for an answer.

Penny wise and pound foolish may be words to live by, but not if you're a consumer analyst, and the nitwit who, all these years has taught us that April showers bring May flowers has certainly never spent a spring in Alberta.

Hoop Ooks really do exist!

by DOUG CARTER

Whether you students know it or not, NAIT does have a men's basketball team. So far this season the Ooks have played 7 games winning 6 and losing only 1. That loss came at the hands of the Lethbridge Kodiaks, defending ACAC champions.

Among the 7 games played so far, 3 were played at Red Deer in the ACAC pre-season tournament. After losing a close first game to Lethbridge, NAIT settled down and disposed of both Medicine Hat and Olds, to capture the consolation trophy for the second straight year. The score in the consolation final was NAIT 92 - Olds 56. Lethbridge defeated Camrose 80 - 55 in the championship final.

NAIT's Rick Gawlik had an outstanding tournament and was named to the all-star team. He scored 64 points and hauled down 42 rebounds.

NAIT's next action is Friday November 22 against arch-rival SAIT. This will be the first league game of the year. Lots of fan support would be appreciated. In 4 home games this year, there has been a total of about 35 fans. Get your shit together and support a winning team !!!

NAIT Ookiiks, we'll call them the NAIT Streaks. And why not? They lost their first five games, by total goals of 30-17, but won the next three by goals of 23-7. So they went from a not - so - good losing streak to a not - so - bad winning streak.

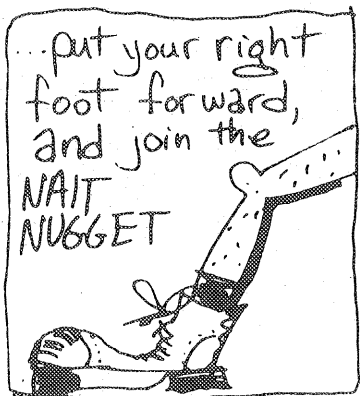

The Ook's (or is it the Streaks?) winning ways began last Wednesday in Olds, where they tamed the Broncos, 11-0.

High-scoring centre Dave McAmmond scored NAIT's first three goals and two more later on, for an incredible five goal performance. Gord Lange added two more, with singles going to Lorne Anderson, Larry Dirk, Pat Staden and Pete McDonald.

On Friday evening, way down south in Lethbridge, the Ooks did it again, handing the University Pronghorns a 6-4 thrashing.

McAmmond led the way again, in the penalty-filled match, collecting three goals. Lange scrambled for two and McDonald picked up one.

The Ook's streak continued the next day, as those same two teams met again. And again NAIT dominated, to win 6-3. Reg Blaney and Anderson netted two each. Willie Moolyk and Jim Blaney got the others. Dave McAmmond had to settle for three assists.

Something to "cheer" about:

Now the glorious beer of Copenhagen is brewed right here in Canada. It comes to you fresh from the brewery. So it tastes even better than ever.
