

Policing Plaza Parking

by Mitchell C. Fraser

Unlike the parking areas at NAIT, the Plaza Cinema Theatre parking lot which was leased by NAITSA will have to be policed by the police. The NAIT parking areas which belong to NAIT and ultimately to the Alberta Government are supervised and patrolled by commissioners under the guidance of Alberta Government Services.

David Whalen, president of NAITSA, had assumed that it would be AGS doing the supervision of Plaza Theatre. AGS, a government department which gives service support to other government departments, has its own act in which is delineated where they are supposed to act. Crown property or property occupied by the Crown in AGS's territory.

In negotiation for the leasing of Plaza Theatre it was mentioned by Whalen that AGS was to do the supervision and snow removal. He was not told different. In exchange for this service NAITSA would go to City Hall and have a couple vacant lots on 117 th Ave. between Plaza 11 and the main campus rezoned for parking. Everyone thought this was a good idea.

Unfortunately someone forgot to tell AGS about this. Stan Hryniuk who is director of AGS, NAIT said no when asked if AGS had been consulted about supervision of Plaza Theatre. Mr. Proudfoot, Director of Physical Plant, said he doubted that AGS was asked. Physical Plant is the buffer between AGS and NAIT. Proudfoot offered the excuse that he only took over the position on September 1 and therefore couldn't say much about consulting AGS. Certainly Proudfoot's predecessor should have been aware of the limitations of AGS.

NAITSA must now turn to the police if they want order to prevail in the Plaza Theatre parking lot. The lease stipulates that there are 51 stalls for use by NAIT students. There are currently 70 some cars nudging and bumping each other. Reports have circulated that some of these cars belong to downtown commuters who drive to NAIT, park and then take a bus downtown. Unless the land was Crown owned, AGS cannot help. Patricia Campus suffers the same fate with its parking. It too is on leased land.

Hryniuk offered the solution that possibly in this sitting of the Alberta Legislature or the next one, the Alberta Government Services Act may be changed to include leased land. But so is NAIT changing and when it does change to a self governing institute, AGS becomes superfluous.

In the meantime AGS continues maintaining and preserving NAIT. It is through their work and dedication that students are able to get through their tenure at NAIT. AGS makes sure that there is always toilet paper in the toilet paper dispensers. They polish the floors every night so that students will have a new shiny floor to scuff up each morning. They pull the flowers up each September so that the students will not be exposed to death.

Squeezing them in

by David C. Schamber

The crowding of students and staff into the Cafetorium will not be alleviated until well into next year. The latest ready date for occupation of the old cafeteria is scheduled for May 1, 1982. A series of delays has pushed this date to almost nine months behind schedule.

The old cafeteria, located west and between the north and south lobbies was intended for opening last September. Tendering delays, structural problems and extensive renovation has resulted in the Cafetorium having to handle four to five times the number it was originally intended to handle.

The areas adjacent to the kitchen of the Cafetorium, rooms U118 and U120, were designed for food handling. It was to serve 96 places continuously and in peak periods and additional 140 places would be opened. The area has been expanded to seat over 600. The present conditions force food services to serve almost 700 full course meals during lunch hour. Another 200 meals are served at supper. The short order bar cooks up between 500 - 600 hamburgers and almost 300 lbs. of french fries per day.

Not only is a kitchen designed to serve 240 places taxed by a adding a couple thousand places but staffing of the area is crowded. The old cafeteria was to house 2nd year cooking and dietary with only 1st year cooking in the cafeteria. Presently they are all in the one area.

According to Peter O'Neil, of Food Services, the one saving factor of the Cafetorium in keeping the whole system from collapsing is a good dishwashing facility. In the original blueprints, the Bank of Commerce was to be an occupant in the new building. When they backed out O'Neil stepped in and asked for the space to be used for dishwashing. Without this area students would now be eating off of paper plates. The aisles would be crowded with dishes and the Fire Marshal would be screaming.

There is no way out of this mess until the old cafeteria comes back on stream. It will be able to seat five hundred. It will have five line, varying from a soup and sandwiches line to an instructional specialty. Crowded conditions do not make for the most enjoyable meal. Although Plaza II produces as much food as the Cafetorium, it ships to Patricia Campus, the quality seems better because of the lack of crowding. A definite drop in food quality occurs when it is placed into warmers. Peter O'Neil voted that anytime fast foods, such as fries and gravy are placed into warmers, it is only a short time till the taste begins to deteriorate.

A place to eat in the Cafetorium is a valuable piece of territory

Food services is doing all they can with their limits to accommodate staff and students. John Pidhirniak, head of Food Services, says that the cafeteria is an important part of an institute. "It is the heartbeat because it is of immediate concern to the individual". When you are hungry you want to eat now. Sadly this is a problem with the Cafetorium.

The heartbeat of the Cafetorium pumps three times during the lunch hours. If you want to get into the Cafetorium without lineups, avoid these waves. The first wave occurs between 10:30 and 11:30 AM. The second wave doesn't hit until 12:05 and lasts till 12:30. A final influx of students occurs after 1 PM.

Watching your food

By Sonja C. Wratham

At the last NAITSA General Council meeting it was brought to the attention of the technologies represented there that they cannot sell food on campus in an effort to raise money. Only certain technologies related to food handling are legally allowed to sell food.

Since that notice was made at least one technology has continued to sell food. This technology is not among the four allowed to sell which are Dietary, Commercial Cooking, Commercial Baking, and Food Processing.

Health regulations restrict the movement of food between peoples because of possible contamination of handling. The food must be protected from sneezers and droolers or pokers. This means the food must be packaged and kept away from germs.

Another reason for restriction in food sales is the uncertainty towards ingredients in the finished products. Law requires all food to be labelled as to what goes into it.

Shining Brightly

SAIT students managed to raise over $18,000 for Cystic fibrosis research during their annual Shinerama Day. Held on Friday, Oct. 2, around 800 students took to the streets.

The large amount SAIT managed to raise is less than NAIT's record of $19,000 raised in 1978. In comparison, this year SAIT exceeded by almost three times what NAIT was able to generate.

The Shinerama Day for SAIT occurs in their first week of classes since they don't start the fall quarter until Sept. 25. Participation by SAIT was down this year but they still managed to shine brightly.

Editor's Note

NAIT as an educational entity is lacking a certain life and vitality that exists independently of books and classes. The halls are dead, the buildings are empty. Students are pushed through them as if they are products of some automated factory.

The design and layout of NAIT places the student in a secondary consideration. Efficiency rode roughshod over the planning. There are very few places in NAIT specifically designed with the social needs of the student in mind. Gathering and socializing areas are kept to a minimum to be found only at the ends as if put in as afterthoughts.

The layout of NAIT stretches as if run over by a pavement packer. Centralization, a heart, to this institute is missing a beat. One wanders down the long halls with no place to stop and watch other students. A feeling of restlessness, a lack of rhythm, pushes one down the halls and out into the street.

What the students of NAIT desperately need is their own students' building. If the powers that be think that the students are secondary then the students should rectify the situation. They should demand their own building in which they can stop and socialize. With their own building they can become students rather than products shaped to some predesired style.

The push to get a students' building has been attempted before. It is now being resurrected again. This time it may get off the 'future reference' file. NAIT is one of the last post-secondary institutes of Alberta not to have its own building. We may be post-secondary students but we need not be secondary.

A students' building offers so many options for its use and utilization that one can only stop due to the avalanche of ideas. Primarily it is a meeting place for students; to talk; to watch. It would house NAITSA and its presently limited services. Films could be shown there, ice cream could be sold there, music could be played there. Specialized areas could be designed into it for meetings, study, or games.

The prospect of students having their own building removes a need to go in search of halls for cabarets and partys. A cabaret type area would be part of the design and possibly with it would come a pub. No longer would one have to bow down to hall owners and the ALCB. With their own building students regain a large portion of control over their own lives.

The problem with all this is that those of us here at NAIT today will not be able to enjoy such a building. By the time it is completed we will be long gone. The initiative will come from us but the benefit will go to those who come after us. That is the way it goes for anyone who sets out to correct an imbalance. That the imbalance must be rectified is obvious. We must start now with the persuading, cajoling, and irritating of those who can help NAIT students get their own building.

To the Self Appointed Censor of Plaza II

You have taken it upon yourself to decide whether students in Plaza II will read the Nugget. The Publications Chairperson assures me that she did not appoint you. I did not appoint you. Have you been talking to God lately?

Obviously something was wrong with the last issue of the Nugget, at least in your opinion. Twice you removed large numbers of Nugget copies to express your displeasure with it. Instead of writing to us you leave us in the position of guessing.

The Nugget staff is small and works hard to give a few minutes of information and titillation to the students of NAIT. Our coverage is limited to what is brought to us or what we happen to be close too. If you do not like what appears in the Nugget then come in and give us a hand.

Your method of expressing displeasure is a very destructive one. I don't like cars but I don't go around throwing hand grenades at them. I use the bus. If you don't like the Nugget, ignore it. To paraphrase a comment from a respondent to the Nugget Survey; this job is not all that enjoyable and you're not making it any easier.

A Responsible Student

Doctor C. Ratrap

Dear Doctor C. Ratrap

I get these strange, special feelings when I get close to handsome men. what should I do?

Young Virgin

Dear Young Virgin

You certainly have a problem. Yours is a tough cherry to split.

Those special feelings are caused by electromagnetism. Men and women have opposite charges that create a magnetic field when they move by each other. This creates a tension that is only relieved by a unification of the two opposites

You can throw yourself at the feet of those who cause you to have those special feelings. An option is to heighten the tension. This is achieved by rubbing yourself against the opposite charge. Although this method is more thrilling, it has dangers in that you may achieve too high of a charge and short circuit without unification.

Dear Doctor C. Ratrap

I cannot study with any noise occurring in the background. I require complete silence or else my concentration is broken and my homework doesn't get done. I live in a basement suite on a side road and even with cotton in my ears I can still hear outside noises. If I am to pass my courses I need silence, what am I to do.

Sensitive Ears

Dear Sensitive Ears

A way out of your problem is by going to extremes. If you have trouble with little noises, expose yourself to big noises. Before you are going to do homework turn your stereo up full blast and put your ears next to the speakers. If you can still hear after that try shooting a rifle beside each ear. After a while your hearing will come back.

that holiday certainly was nice. i could use a Nugget less week more often. how about every week. i received a complaint from a responsible student who wanted to know why we had such a short newspaper last issue. maybe she was on drugs but the size was still the same. we can blow up or shrink photographs but not the paper itself. she also expressed a desire for us to do some more bullshitting maybe she was having trouble getting to sleep. however we wouldn't be able to pull the wool over the eyes of nait students, they are so sharp you can slice yourself into sandwich meat just walking by them. back in the barnyard one of the sayings exemplifies this point: "you can spread cow droppings in front of some of the farmers all the time, you can spread cow droppings in front of all of the farmers some of the time, but no way will all the farmers stand to have cow droppings spread in front of them all the time". which means i better be wary of spreading manure in this paper.

A reply to a parking complaint

Dear Sir:

"To whoever is Responsible for Parking" by David Schroeder (The Nugget, September 24th) prompts a reply from the one who is responsible.

Rather than attempting to deal with the many remarks in that somewhat rambling article, I will confine myself to three main points:

1. Student Population in Relation to Parking Stalls Available.

It may be true that during the entire year, 37,000 students attend NAIT (actually, almost 39,000 in 1980/81). But, to say, as Mr. Schroeder did, that they all seek parking space at the same time is wildly erroneous. The great majority of that number are Continuing Education Students (roughly 23,500) and Apprentices (roughly 10,500). Almost all of the former attend during the evenings, and in fractions of that number at various times in the year; the latter attend in "groups" of about 2,000 in each of five intakes during the year. Thus, the number of day-time students at NAIT is not more than about 7,000 and on the main campus (including Plaza II), not more than about 6,500.

To use Mr. Schroeder's reasoning (but not his figures), if all 6,500 students were to use car pools, at four to a car, then 1,625 stalls would be needed to accommodate them. Since we now have 1,236, we are short 389, not 8,014 as alleged by your writer. But what does all this prove anyway? Many students use the transit system, some are dropped off and picked up by drivers headed elsewhere, some even walk.

Incidentally, of the stalls underground near Plaza II, only 11 or 12 were available last year to students, not half of them.

2. Regulations

The whole point of these, contrary to what is implied in the article, is to put into practice the Institute's relevant principles: that its students should be treated equitably according to their needs, and that the most efficient use should be made of its resources. Thus those who have the greatest need for parking - i.e., the handicapped and those who live out of town or far from bus routes - and those who use car pools are given highest priority. After they have been served, a random choice is made of all other applicants. This system is surely more equitable than the previous first-come, first-served system (where students with real need frequently failed to get stalls, and where fights broke out in the line-ups for permits).

3. The Future

Mr. Schroeder suggests that another parkade be built on one of the present lots. Although somewhat skeptical that it could be paid for by the fines now incurred by students who lack permits, I would advise that such a proposal might well be appropriately raised with the Board of Governors when it is formed in April 1982.

In conclusion, we believe that the students with genuine need are being served and the others treated fairly, and that the space available is used efficiently. It would be nice to have more parking space, of course, but we still have more per capita than the University of Alberta does. (It charges nearly twice as much for a stall, too.)

Yours sincerely,

Concerning Shinerama

Yes I was one of those few who shined shoes, and I was slightly ticked off by the lack of school spirit displayed by other students. No, I am not pointing a finger at the apprentices. They could not afford to lose hours and be docked because of it. They at least have an excuse.

But to all those people, and you know who you are, that took off to go home, to sleep, or went shopping I'd like to tell you where to go! Someplace far away so I can forget about you. If you selfish dolts cannot sacrifice a few hours of a day (you were given the time by the directors of NAIT, so it was free) to help a worthy cause like cystic fibrosis then I wonder about your attitudes towards life. The people who suffer from cystic fibrosis are not on a picnic.

NAIT and other schools throughout Alberta had (past tense) a good name because of our support in the past of this worthy cause. But this year you people who remarked, "shine shoes? Who, me? You are asking me to shine shoes?", and other such comments as "who cares anyway", and "you mean touch other people's footwear", have degraded something meaningful. You are real #&!/#& as far as I am concerned.

But the biggest laugh was that you missed a good time. The public in general was polite, friendly and generous. I enjoyed the spirit of the Shinerama. We weren't embarrassed or called dirty names or stepped on, instead the public patted our backs and said thanks with a smile. So to you lazy, selfish #&#!/#, too bad you have such dirty names to live with.

Remember the night you went to the show and ended up in Boston!

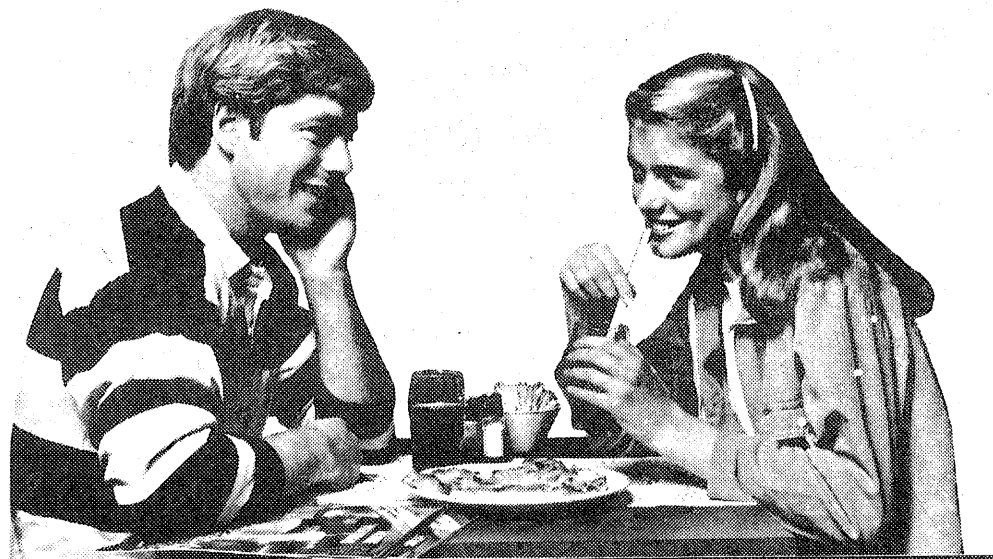

Some nights have a way of leaving us with delicious memories.

Seems that everyone has at least one, a special night with someone special. You went to a show, or a game or whatever and ended up in a nice restaurant. A great meal. A great time.

The restaurant could have been Boston Pizza. Maybe it was. Maybe it will be.

Tonight.

nugget survey results

The results of the Nugget survey will enable us to implement a number of changes and ideas about the Nugget to facilitate our view of what the Nugget should be. We received a total of 24 responses which given the total number of papers issued to be 3,000 comes out to a return rate of 0.8 percent. Almost as good as a City of Edmonton referendum and definitely better than any NAITSA referendum.

Of the 24 who responded 15 of them turned out to be perverts. They were equally divided between male and female with one pervert so far gone it could no longer classify itself as male or female.

Most respondents viewed themselves as animals trapped in human clothes. This verifies what most hall owners feel about NAIT students. The second largest classification of societal status were as extraterrestrial visitors. One of the extraterrestrial visitors who replied stated he was an ET visitor in the body of a concerned citizen of planet earth who wished to become a space cadet. Of all the respondents there was only solid, upstanding, boring citizen.

there were 7 respondents who were just passing through NAIT. Only 12 NAIT students were able to answer the survey as compared to .4 apprentices.

Somehow 1 of the respondents was a juvenile delinquent. I thought they had a screening process here at NAIT. Most belonged to the 18 - 20 age group with two coming in at preception or aborted stage. My apologies to the test tube baby for not delineating that age group and thereby fostering unwanted feelings in you. Luckily there are no clones running around yet.

Polygamous tied with single as the most common marital status. Each recorded 9 in their respective categories. There must be some wild times going on in the halls of NAIT and as usual the Nugget is one step behind. someone come in and clue us in.

Thanks to the Americans and their fiscal policies ten of the people who replied are existing in the minus income bracket. There must be a couple of real estate agents out there who replied that their income is over $50,000. Either that or drug dealers.

The most common mental state wasn't. It was relatively distributed amongst all categories although only one person was bored. I anticipated a much higher number for boring, but given the polygamous nature of those who replied, excited should have been the most common.

The first set of questions fooled a number of repliers. Very few thought that 'row, row, row, your boat' was a great social and political impart. They did get the second best answer, that of it being a song about heroin addicts.

Only one person was able to crack the set up of the biggest word they could think of. Some put down the Mary Poppins word of Supercalifrogilisticpealidosious. A couple cheated on this part of the survey, doing it together and deriving a word antidiestablishmentarianism. Actually the words looked for were gigantic or titanic. Humongous was the biggest word thought of.

'Rene Descartes was a drunken fart, I drink therefore I am' proved to be an enlightening question. A sample of the replies are; am smart; have no brain; drive; get drunk; pass out; love to sit in a boat all day long.

There were no surprises in the third part of the survey which zeroed in on the Nugget. That the Nugget is a 'student newspaper' was edged out by one checkmark against 'a piece of shit'. Most people read the Nugget when they went to the bathroom, although one person replied that it made lousy toilet paper.

Given the predominance of Edmonton Sun papers floating around NAIT it was only logical that respondents overwhelmingly thought the Nugget should be 'a sensationalist, sleazy, slimy Tabloid'. This was further reinforced when Commonsense and Nonsense was the part of the Nugget read most often.

Those who had ideas on how to improve the Nugget all felt that firing the editor was the answer. Both categories received 7 checks. This was more than compensated for by the person who wrote in that I was doing a good job. So I stay.

The fourth part of the survey concerned itself with perceptions about NAIT. Most replies thought 'going home' was the best thing about NAIT. One female pervert wrote she liked the men the best. Judging by her other replies the Nugget would like her to come in and acquaint herself with the staff. We all need a release once in awhile. More respondents replied they were attending NAIT to get laid than to train for a job. The Nugget staff is very talented, come in and take us out.

The True/false questions gave us some insight. A few people added into the statements. One female said that her relatives do not tell the truth in response to the first statement of 'truth is relative.' One other said his sister is.

Although the statement of turning Plaza II into a game preserve was overwhelming in favor for, one female pervert wanted to know if she could feed the animals. The results follow:

- T F
- 15 5 Truth is relative.
 - 16 5 Reality is whatever you want it to be.
 - 10 9 The Nugget needs your support.
 - 10 9 NAITSA does not need your support.
 - 15 3 Plaza 11 should be turned into a game preserve.
 - 14 6 A student consumes 47 times his own weight in books each year.
 - 13 5 All bachelors are male, therefore Socrates is mortal.
 - 11 6 NAITSA should be independent from Nugget control.

Concerns of students that the Nugget should pursue also gave us some insight into what students want. However, what they want and what they need are different things. We decide what they need. Descending order of frequency of what students checked follows.

- gossip picked up in the halls of NAIT
- sex and sleaze
- how NAITSA wastes your money

It was dull

By Bob Strand

The long-awaited first Rock'n Talk went on Friday and it did not live up to expectations. The Rock'n Talk promised a relaxed atmosphere where students could unwind and have a few beer. Students were so relaxed that some had a hard time staying awake. Even the bartenders, servers and bouncers were bored-and they were getting paid.

And what can I say about the band, Graved Mettallum (Heavy Metal). They told me they were just starting out and it showed. They started an hour late and after a half hour sound check and tune up, no one was very interested in the band. The music was heavy, loud and dull.

Most people I talked to didn't like the dress restrictions. That could be one reason why there was only 130 students at the Rock'n Talk. I've never seen so many beige Levi cords in one place. Maybe if NAITSA had dress pants for rent at the door more students would be able to attend.

Some of Rock'n Talks new features are good ideas. Table service was efficient and does overcome the problems of spilled beer. The tablecloths add something to the event. And a quieter band would go along with the Rock'n Talk atmosphere.

Student Council doesn't plan any changes at this time. They want to give the new idea a chance to catch on.

The next Rock 'N Talk scheduled for Friday October 30, has been cancelled. It seems the Cafetorium is already booked for an instructors meeting. So Student Council will have to wait until November 13 to see if more students will come out for the event.

On the way to the Rock 'N Talk I noticed a poster advertising the event. It said no jeans, no t-shirts, no hats and underneath, in pencil, someone had written, NO FUN. Somewhere in NAIT we have a prophet.

We're not missing much

by Rene Eh

Well I knew it would happen! After the first shows of Caligula last Friday at the Towne cinema the city police marched in and confiscated Penthouses' $17 million pornographic epic.

The film is a first for Hollywood. Never before has a big budget and big stars been united to make a porno flic and only Penthouse and their publisher Bob Guccione would have the guts to try it. But it's not nudity and sex that got this movie confiscated. It was graphic violence. You see Mr. Guccione figured that he would have problems with this show so he made a re-edited version for the bible belt areas like Edmonton and cut out all the sex when he should of been cutting out the truly disgusting violence that overshadows the whole movie.

The flic is loosely based on the screenplay by Gore Vidal, who incidentally tried unsuccessfully to have his name left out when he saw the mess Penthouse was making of his story. Caligula, played by Malcolm (Clockwork Orange) McDowell is the heir to the Emperor's throne and so the movie plods along as he does incredibly evil things to the living Emperor played by Peter O'Toole and the rest of his loyal subjects.

I saw the uncut version in Vancouver over the summer (no I'm not bragging, just stating a fact) and though the sex was graphic (in other words they were doing it instead of faking it) I didn't find that the repulsive part of the movie. It was the sadistic violence that Caligula bestowed upon his stateman that really made me sick.

I mean do I have to sit there and watch disembowlements, beheadings, and necrophilia all in the name of art? Come on, give me (and my stomach) a break.

McDowell really stoops low in this show. In the course of two and a half hours you see him urinate, vomit, stab, and rape a soldier and his bride all in the name of good old Roman fun.

Honestly I felt ill when I walked out of the theatre and all I could think was why did I have to have my stomach turned so Penthouse could show me how degraded the Roman Empire was? Surely they could of depicted the cruelty and violence in a way that doesn't make a guy feel like the morning after three bottles of Baby Duck.

Of course the irony of it all is why did the censorship board allow the sadistic violence to pass and why did the police confiscate it in the first place? What right do they have to say what is fit and what is not for the people to watch? I think if they had cut out the more gruesome violent scenes and left in the sex this epic might of been worth half the seven bucks it cost me to see it.

'in the groove' Stiff Little Fingers★Go For It

Billy Joel★Songs in the Attic

By Rick Davidson

This is the second Canadian release for one of Britain's best Punk bands. Stiff Little Fingers (SLF) is an excellent band with three albums to their credit.

The most common theme's for Stiff Little Finger's songs are hinted at by the symbol of their production company. The logo for Rigid Digit productions is the familiar peace sign (index and middle fingers held in a shape of a V)

SLF is composed of four young men and a manager/songwriter from Ireland. Their upbringing in that strife torn country has left a mark on them which shows clearly in their music.

The lyrics express sentiments of an anti-war, anti-racist, anti-establishment and anti-hate nature. The album Go For It, tends to stress the value of the individual person and to put down many of the things which make modern life unpleasant for a person with any sort of social conscience.

The lyrical content of the SLF's songs is not as harsh as it was in their previous records, but the band still retains its identity as a punk band. Their album should appeal to a wide range of tastless and deserves a place in any open minded persons record collection.

by Rick Davidson

Billy Joel's latest release is a live album called Songs in the Attic. It is more than just a re-hash of the popular songs he has released in recent years. In fact all of the songs on the record were written and performed long before Billy Joel gained very much attention from the public.

Every one of the eleven songs on the album was written in the period from 1971-1976, prior to the 1977 release of The Stranger. The quality of the this material should be enough to convince people that it was more than just luck that catapulted Billy Joel into the ranks of the pop 'super stars'.

This is a well produced live album. It effectively captures the reaction of crowds to the songs, while at the same time it avoids subjecting the listener to long periods of applause or boring periods of onstage talking.

Most of the material on the album is performed very well, confirming Billy Joels reputation as a good live act. Many songs, such as the cul. Captain Jack, have as much if not more impact in this album than they did in their studio versions of years ago.

The album is well packaged with lots of photos, liner notes and lyrics. It should be a welcome addition to any fans' record collection since it is well put together and does a good job of reaffirming the artistic merit of much of Billy Joels' early work.

Thanks go out to Mister Sound at Kingsway Garden Mall for providing Songs in the Attic for this weeks review.

NAIT CANOE TEAM WINS INVITATIONAL

Since 1978 Camrose Lutheran College has hosted an Invitational Canoe Meet prior to the final ACAC Competition. The Invitational is open to all College Canoe Teams wishing to put in a team. This year only Camrose and NAIT entered teams.

The competition was held Saturday Oct. 17 at Mirror Lake in Camrose. The course is a 1.2 mile course for war canoe, women's and mixed and 2.4 mile course for the men.

NAIT mens team edged out Camrose for the first win of the day in a hard fought duel at every stage of the race. Their winning time was 75 minutes 59.12 sec. to Camrose's 76 minutes 2.16 seconds. The NAIT lead boat was paddled by Jim Brennan (Carpentry) and Jim Hiscock (Electrical) in 24 minutes 43.70 seconds. Henry Navis (Instrumentation) and Tim Tratch (Industrial Heavy Equipment) put on a strong performance increasing the lead to 9 seconds despite an unfortunate swim at the change over point. Then Brock Courtland (Lineman) and Brent Haile (Materials Engineering) powered their way to a convincing finish with a time of 75 minutes 59.24 seconds just ahead of Camrose who finished in 76 minutes and 2.16 seconds. It was a well paddled and exciting race. Well done NAIT. Good Luck in your event next week at the ACAC Championships.

YOU MUST BE SATISFIED

CANOEING

Camrose Lutheran mixed team was no match for NAIT this year. The experience gained from this event should make for a stronger showing during the ACAC Championships. The Camrose lead boat made the first lap in the fastest time of the day for Men's, Mixed or Women's events 12 minutes 8.27 seconds. Camrose's time of 39.10.04 put NAIT's time of 41.59.54 a distant second.

When the Women's event was run NAIT was unable to participate due to lack of enough entrants. It is hoped by next week we can raise enough women to compete in this event.

The war canoe event is when four people paddle together over the perscribed course. The winning war canoe was paddled by Jim Brennan (Carpentry), Jim Hiscock (Electrical), Ed Buefeind (Electronics) and Alan Mason (Industrial Heav Equipment) in an astonishing time of 11 min. 46.49 seconds. The closest competition was Camrose 12 minutes 14.11 seconds. NAIT's second war canoe of Jim Ducynski (Building Construction), Brock Courtland (Lineman), Tim Tratch (Industrial Heavy Equipment) and Henry Navis Electronics) put in a respectable time of 13 minutes 29.73 seconds.

TUG OF WAR

by Earl Ingram

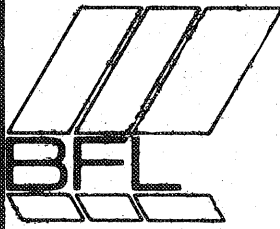

BUILDING CONSTRUCTION

We worked hard! But we did it! Tug-o-war has always been one of the strongest events for Building Construction. We came in first, second, third and fourth much to the liking of our senior instruction Paul Mrazik who helped coach us.

I am a little disappointed due to the fact that a couple of technologies defaulted, but other than that it went good. Next year I only wish. That tug-o-war would get more support from all other technologies as well as spectators.

On the other hand our teammates from secretarial did not fair as well, but they tried and did their best!

The Ookchicks Basketball Team requires a full-time manager who is willing to make a committment to the team for the upcoming Season. Duties to include attendance at all games, (home and away), practices and club functions. Anyone interested in this rewarding position may contact Coach Gregg Meropoulos. E134 (427-9267)

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 9--OOKS 12, LEDUC RIGGERS 2 AT NAIT

The NAIT Oookpiks tallied seven times in the final period en route to a 12 - 2 victory over the Leduc Riggers of the Capital Junior Hockey league. The 12 - 2 score reflected the pace of the game as the Ooks spent most of the time in the last two periods inside Leduc's blue line.

In the first period, the Leduc Riggers dominated the play until Brian Hermanautz notched the first of his two goals at 7:24. One minute and 24 seconds later, John Wheating increased the NAIT lead to 2 - 0 on a goal set up by Tim Johnson and Dale Kolada, and NAIT never looked back.

The middle period scoring was started by Mike Moskalyk at the 3:08 mark. Fifty-seven seconds later, Brian Hermanautz picked up his second goal of the game. Leduc's Daryl Cust then countered with a marker at 8:59. With 24 seconds left in the period, Darrell Slupek rounded out the second period with a power play goal.

The score was 5 - 1 when the third period began, but it did not stay that way for long. With the man advantage, Wayne Perkins made the score 6 - 1 at the :15 mark. Twenty-five seconds later, Darrell Slupek padded the lead with his second goal of the night. AT 1:30, Greg Tennant picked up the first of a pair to give NAIT a 8 - 1 lead. John Wheating racked up his second goal at 5:42 to give NAIT a eight goal lead. The lead was shortened to seven goals when Ted Dahms hit the net with Leduc's second goal. NAIT hit double digits a short 52 seconds later when Rod Arychuk tallied. At 14:05 the score became 11 - 2 when the hard-working Steve Szoke picked his only goal of the night. Greg Tennant finished off the scoring with only 74 seconds left in the game.

Although the game was reasonably close after the first 40 minutes, the NAIT club just pulled away in the last frame. The major reason for the pullaway was the conditioning and strength of the NAIT team compared to that of Leduc. As the game progressed, Leduc seemed to be less capable of hemming the Ooks in.

Mark Flath played the entire game in net for the Ooks and turned away 23 shots. Leduc netminder Allen Bailer, was shelled for 43 shots and the score could have been higher if it would not have been for some spectacular saves.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 16-- OOKS 7, ELITE ELECTRIC 1 AT NAIT

On a night when the Oilers played host to the Flames at the Coliseum, the Exos tangled with the Dodgers on the tube, the NAIT Oookpiks entertained their largest home crowd of the exhibition season (78) with a 7 - 1 victory over the Elite Electric Club of the Edmonton Junior Hockey League.

Elite Electric's John Liston gave his team a quick lead with a poser play goal at the 3:20 mark. NAIT's Ray anderson notched the equalizer at 15:20. With 50 seconds left in the period, Darrell Slupek scored to give the Ooks a 2 - 1 lead.

In the second period, Ken Ledwig increased NAIT's lead to 3 - 1 at the 13:47 mark. One minute and 50 seconds later, Dave Souch picked up his first goal of the game.

Souch then padded the lead with his second marker of the night at the 5:58 mark of the third period. At 10:00, Gary Hoekstra tallied to make the score 6 - 1. Twelve seconds later, Brian Hermanautz rounded out the scoring.

All in all, the game could have been much closer. NAIT took some bad penalties, and Elite failed to capitalize on many scoring chances. In addition, Elite showed signs of sluggish play towards the end of each period due to the fact it was the team's first exhibition game of the season.

Mike Cherniwchan and Brad Breakell shared the NAIT goaltending duties and stopped 32 shots. The Ooks dominated territorially for the better part of the game and grilled the three Elite netminders with 52 shots.

A.C.A.C. PRE-SEASON TOURNAMENT AT SAIT

The NAIT Oookpiks tangled with their counterparts in the A.C.A.C. for the first time in the 1981 - 82a claudaryear at the A.C.A.C. Pre-Season Tournament held on Saturday, October 17th, and Sunday, October 18th. At the two day tourney, the NAIT club came up with a very respectable showing.

In the first game on Saturday, the Ooks allowed three unanswered goals in the second period on way to a 7 - 3 loss at the hands of the SAIT squad. The game had its ebb and flow as neither NAIT or SAIT dominated the entire game, but rather each team had its moments.

Territorial play in the first period was almost equal, and if there was a slight edge, NAIT had it. The scoring began at the 6:50 mark when SAIT's Blari Peebles put a power play goal into NAIT's net. SAIT increased the lead to 2 - 0 when Ron Pierce found the mark with 3:17 left in the period. One minute and three seconds later, Gary Hoekstra cut the lead to 2 - 1 with his second goal in two nights.

by Brian Stein

In the middle frame, the Said club completely dominated play territorially and statistically. With 2:39 gone in the period, Curt Hunter notched a goal to give SAIT a 3 - 1 lead. SAIT's Brent Locke picked up a pair of goals in the last six minutes of the game to give the SAIT club a four goal advantage going into the dressing room.

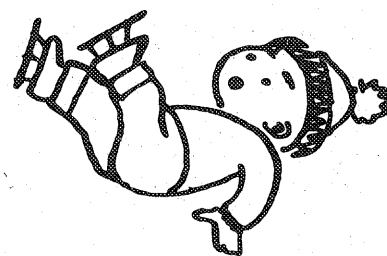

The third period saw both teams capitalize on their chances. Ray Anderson's unassisted goal at the 7:36 mark brought NAIT to within three goals of SAIT, but it was too little, too late. SAIT Darren Woitas tallied at 14:32 to give SAIT a commanding 6 - 2 lead. Forty-three seconds later, Rich Norberg picked up a goal to increase the lead to 7 - 2. Rearguard Warren Sanregret closed out the scoring with 3:47 left on an unassisted goal.

The NAIT loss resulted in NAIT being one of the finalists in the A.C.A.C. Pre-Season Tournament Consolation Final. The other consolation finalist was the club from Medicine College. In the Sunday afternoon consolation contest, the Medicine Hat troops were in over their heads as the NAIT Oookpiks enjoyed a 21 - 1 victory over the M.H.C. club. Captain Wayne Perkins led the way for the Ooks with a strong five goal performance.

ON THE BENCH: In the Leduc game, the Ooks picked up 21 or 42 penalties, while in the Elite contest, NAIT received 18 of 32 penalties. The October 16th, contest saw three year veteran Wayne Perkins provide leadership--in the penalty box. Wayne picked up a major, two minors, and a game misconduct...At the beginning of the week, there are two injuries to report with the Ooks. Ron Chrony is out with a strained knee ligaments, and Kent Wilmot is suffering from a painful pulled shoulder muscle. In the A.C.A.C. tournament, Dale Kolada also injured his knee...The next final home exhibition game for the Ooks will be Friday, October 23, when the Ooks will entertain the University of Alberta Golden Bears. The season opener for the NAIT Oookpiks will be on October 27, when the ooks will host the Red Deer College squad. Game time for both games is 7:30.

BASKETBALL

OOKCHICKS SHORT OF PLAYERS

BY Jacques Strappé

With less than a month to the first league game the Oookchicks Basketball team is facing its first crisis. "Our lack of first year players has really put us in a tough spot" added coach Gregg Meropolis. If the nine girls committed to play for the Oookchicks this season, five of them are returnees from last year, another will graduate in the spring and another will finish up her diploma in Calgary. What all this means is that next year's team will have only two returnees, which can create an even greater crisis. With 12 James Condon Scholarships, $500 each, available to the women's basketball team there are still three positions available to any girls with above-average basketball skills, reasonable physical condition, and the personnel commitments to work hard to improve their skills. As the coach noted "It is a shame we can't take advantage of these scholarships to attract some new talent". As the deadline for application for these scholarships approaches the team will be looking forward to the addition of three more members. If you are interested in the challenge of playing Intercolleiate Basketball with the Oookchicks, get in contact with the coach at his Office E134, phone 427-9267

Last week's 'End of the World' write up was riddled with typographical errors. The person who was laying out that page was preoccupied with thoughts of endings and deaths and cataclysms. He kept peering over his left shoulder making sure that death wasn't sneaking up on him.
