

EDITOR'S NOTE

ATTENTION ALL FIRST YEAR STUDENTS

Are you bored with this institute? Do you find it a drag just to come here and to ruin your social life at the same time? Well, I have a few suggestions that may help you in making this place a little less of a drag, and maybe even enjoyable.

How about taking some of your time that is reserved for watching the boob tube or other such mundane activities, and reschedule it for getting involved in your school? Join a club. Talk to your tech reps. Discover what is going on outside the world of studying.

We have heard a lot of grumbling about the way NAITSA is handling student affairs this year. Now is your chance to quit complaining and do something about it! Elections for next years NAITSA executive are fast approaching. Do some investigative work now and find out what the various positions involve. You, or some of your friends would surely be enticed by the prospect of your own office, a monthly paycheck, and the other benefits that come with student government positions. Now is the time to start thinking about it. Last year a lack of interest by students caused nominees to be elected solely by general council. Is this how you want to start the next school year?

Politics not your thing? This years Nugget staff consists of 90 percent second year students. It would be nice to know that there will be someone here to carry on the Nugget tradition. The yearbook will also be needing staff to put together the 1983-84 edition of the Northern Torch.

In addition to being enjoyable, getting in these type of activities looks good on a job resume. Marks are not the ultimate criteria. Employers look for ambition and initiative. It shows that you did not come here just to bury your nose in a book, or to spend your student loan furthering your beer drinking ability. Employers recognize those that have discovered that school is more than homework, just as a career is more than a job.

If you have the desire to get involved don't wait until next year. Check out what is going on and what kind of time it will require. Ask questions. Everyone is willing to answer them as best they can. Start learning the ropes now and it will make the next year a lot easier.

If you get involved you will find that the time you spend here goes a lot faster, and is much more enjoyable (most of the time). Of course it does mean doing some work but you'll find that the rewards by far exceed the drawbacks.

Business Conference 83' An Inspiration or a Falacy!!

That opening statement is hard and crude way to describe an event that has been a tradition to NAIT for countless numbers of years. But to tell you the truth, this statement is nothing more than an objective criticism of an event I attended.

The Conference was held at the historic & rapidly deteriorating MacDonald Hotel. Again my hostilities are not at the conference itself, but merely at the location it was held in. I know that we were drained of 30 valuable dollars, but I suggest that they find a more suitable, modern facility to house the 700 students there. Another problem with the conference was the small rooms in which they were held in. Unfortunately most students found out to their dismay, that the hotel lacked air conditioning & ventilation and the students only resource to relief was an ice cold glass of water.

Now that I have decribed the drawbacks to the hotel itself, there were only two major drawbacks, that I observed, about the conference itself. The first drawback was that several student were placed in certain topics that they certainly did not want. I know that the lack of space was a major contributor to this problem. The second major drawback is that certain speakers did not seem to give any new insight into the issues they were talking about. Could it be that we students have been overeducated in the field of business? Or could it be that the business environment is static and ceases to evolve into a more complex entity?

By now it seems that the conference was a disaster by standards. However, the opposite is true, and the conference did have several high points. In the seminars I attended one speaker offered a new insight into a field that has had a rapid expansion growth in the past century. In fact his seminar, which did not consist of a large audience, opened my eyes to other possibilities. I believe he had the most to say and now I have a more open view of the business market & how it is changing. The panel also increased enthusiasm in most students by telling them to be dedicated to their goals & they will be rewarded justly. They also emphasised that marks don't always make the person, neither does his/her educational background. In fact if they can prove they are willing to work & dedicated to their job, marks are nothing to consider.

Last and not least the wine & cheese party offered a chance for students to talk informally to the seminar speakers. Again I gained great insights into the field I wish to enter, as well as good advice as to how to go about it.

So after this somewhat detailed analysis of the Business Conference, I hope the organizers of this conference take heed to the problems encountered and rectify them if they can. I hope the conferences improve at least a little so that the students are not only accomodated adequately but that the atmosphere suits the situation. Ask the students about their opinions, it might be helpful in planning next years conference.

Dear Generallee Insane,

Hey right on, I have heard rumors that Electronics does do strange things to a students mind and it forces him/her to drink, carouse, and be total lechers. No wonder it is so popular.

I can tell by your writing that you had high marks in Technical English, after all it is precise, accurate and to the point, keep up the good work. I have also heard that Oliver has some pretty wild parties, details that I can't release right now because of legal hassles.

As for the good life is there any other way to go. To me there is nothing better than waking up in the morning and having that first toke followed by a good snort of Jim Beam, after that I turn over and check to see if there is anyone beside me, sometimes there is and sometimes not. Sometimes I look carefully and wish there wasn't.

I'm glad the Botsfordchinni family had the good sense to put you all in the same class, one of the few times they show some good sense, (just kidding guys). Anyway keep up with the good extra-curricular activities and ignore that homework, it will go away eventually.

I always tried to keep that motto alive at all costs.

Signed, R.T.
Dear Dr. Rat,

Another wild weekend of booze and drugs and I can't think straight. So, last week it was the Red Deer drunk tank this week we raided the Northwoods Inn. Before I go any further nobody in their right minds should frequent this joint. The place is a right off. Guy-girl ratio is in the negative numbers and the atmosphere sucks big ones. Overall the place gives my ass a headache.

Me Wayne and Neil went there because Ali Katz was overfull. First these dudes want 5 bucks a head then they demand our coats. Shit I said I've got to head to the washroom. Into the bog I flew and got busy redistributing all the pharmaceuticals and related gismos on my person. So we sit down is disgust and proceeded to order 15 double ryes and five beers each. By 1:30 a.m. the place is empty and we are sitting there pissed to the gills. These jerks come over and ask us to leave that's when they saw the remains of my 15 glasses under the table. I had "accidentally" broken them all. Well here's a message to the 9 bouncers who took 15 minutes to beat us out of the joint. Thank your lucky stars the whole crew wasn't there. If 3 of us can do that kind on damage just imagine what a dozen could do. I did feel a little sorry when I booted one those dudes down 2 flight of stairs but that's what you get for sending gimped up fags to do a man's job.

Next time Doc you are invited I imagine you would have a good time bouncing the faggots on their heads. By the way if you still want to meet me it can be arranged.

Your fan, Paper Pervert

DR. R.C. RAT-TRAP

Dear Paper Pervert,

Sounds like another good weekend. I don't know why the friggin bouncers would get upset about a few broken glasses, kind of a tempermental bunch I'd say. Sounds like you had more fun than I managed to have, basically my weekend was nothing but ups and downs with a few beer in between for a break.

I haven't had the chance to bounce a few bouncers for a long time, let me know next time you go, I need a break from all this monotony, even drugs are not helping at all, must have got ripped off on the last batch. A new rule for you, never buy drugs when you can't even see the inside of your own eyelids. Guaranteed to get ripped of every time.

In regards to meeting you I think that it would be a definite plus, something to lift my spirits a little higher (if that is possible) let me know when and where.

One last thing. Do you plan to run for King Week, it is about time that a real man went for it, hopefully a few events would include: pub crawling, beer chugging, joint rolling and other things along that line, any suggestions can be forwarded to me and I could pass them along the right channels.

Love, R.T.

QUESTION ?

Why would one pull oneself out of bed early Saturday morning to risk life, limb, sanity and toboggan, on the steep, treacherous slopes of Connor's Mountain, located along the beautiful North Saskatchewan river valley in the heart of the City of Edmonton (can't you just picture it)? Twenty five(25) brave souls from B.C.E.T. and Secretarial answered the battle cry and manned the five(5) concrete toboggans to, "take a ride on the wide side". Of the five concrete craft that entered, only three endured long enough to see the finish line. Toboggans, "Blue bud" and "Sharkey's Machine" both ran into problems which resulted in bodies and particles of flying toboggan, reminiscent of radio active Russian satellites, strewn about the course.

TUBE TALK

"Tick Tick..."

For corporate executives, policemen, politicians, all-around bad guys and even good guys, perhaps the worst experience is hearing the opening theme song of "60 minutes" (Sunday nights at eight). Every sane person dreads the possibility of Mike Wallace knocking on their door with the intent of making that person the feature of Wallace's weekly "Thou Art on Trial Before the American Public".

"Investigative Journalism" has many forms. "The McNeil/Lehrer Report" (weeknights at 7:30) is very low-key, yet the two hosts get to the points on both sides of an issue. (Their sign-off is reminiscent of

"The Waltons": "Goodnight, Robin. Goodnight, Jim. Goodnight, everybody. (Goodnight, John-Boy.)")

At the other end of the scrutinizing spectrum is ABC's Geraldo Rivera, who passed cum laude the "Mike Wallace School of Manipulating Friends and Browbeating People". Rivera is truly a vision of grace as he performs a pas de trois with his cameraman and soundman, chasing those evil agents of greed and plain meanness down streets and alleys whilst clamoring "Why are you afraid to talk? You did do it, didn't you? (Rivera is very good at not making clear what his victim(s) were supposed to have done.)

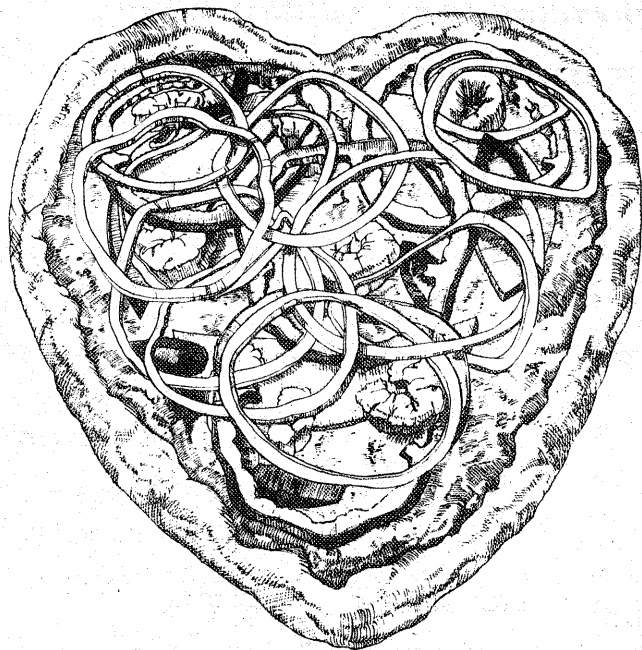

"60 Minutes" tends to be between the two, but the more fascinating shows to watch are "Donahue" (weekdays at ten) and "The Last Word" (one o'clock in the morning) when Phil Donahue is let loose. Donahue, with his usual primed-as-a-firing squad audience, fluctuates between both extremes of the political spectrum so quickly it leaves political science students' heads dizzy.

The laws of Canada and the United States say that a person "is innocent until proven guilty". Thank Zeus we have investigative journalism shows--we're able to ruin the crook's family, life and career in front of millions of people before even bringing that criminal, innocent or not, to trial!

ACT TELERAMA CABARET

Well once again the lack of school spirit was shown by the small attendance at this cabaret. It was a small crowd of 3-400 people which from the combined efforts of NAIT and Grant MacEwan student population was a pretty poor turn out.

The combined totals of the cabaret and button sales was $1200.00 which was donated to the telerama. Those who missed the cabaret missed a good time. The people that were there had a good time, and the band Explore the Floor put on a pretty good show. Although I was warned before hand that it was a pretty boring party, I have to disagree. I unfortunately missed the boat races that were held during the bands break.

I find it disappointing that NAIT students could find it in their hearts to show up and show some support for a worthy cause. Whoever missed this one did miss a good party and a chance to show Grant MacEwan how well NAIT students can really party. However, to be fair it was a little bit out of the way for anyone without a car, being in Millwoods probably did deter a few people.

Once again it was a good time and I hope that next year a few more students will show up making it even a better success and help raise more cash to help out the ACT organization.

EDDT AND ARCHITECTURE CABARET

Well this was my big chance to find out just what Slash and the Bleeding Hearts were really like for a dance band. I certainly wasn't disappointed. They were a power house that got the crowd up on their feet and onto the dance floor and kept them there all night long. They played a good mixture of their own music as well as a few commercial times.

It was a packed house of 450 people and it was 3/4 full when I arrived there at 8:00. Judging from the number of people who were dancing, as well as the number who were taking advantage of the $1.00 apiece liquor and beer tickets(I was no exception), I would say that this was a crowd out to party the night away.

The crowd was relatively rowdy but they seemed to be keeping under control. Some of them dressed for the occasion(semi-punk) but for the most part it was the usual cabaret attire.

The band was too loud for my taste, however I guess the people sitting by the speakers didn't mind too much. Slash's style is new wave, so don't expect to hear the top forty radio from these guys. If you are into new wave then these are the guys to see in action. They are going to be around the Edmonton scene for awhile so check it out.

I was told to mention the fact that this cabaret was a combined effort of EDDT and Architecture, because EDDT apparently could not handle the financial end all alone. A job well done and I will be looking forward to the next one.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 5TH AT NAIT ARENA RED DEER COLLEGE KINGS 7 NAIT OOKS 4.

The Red Deer College Kings notched three goals in the final three minutes to overtake the NAIT Ooks 7-4 in ACAC action at the NAIT Arena on Saturday, February 5th.

RDC's Brad Moore opened the scoring at 6:18 of the first period. Garth Hayes of the NAIT Ooks tied the game at 1-1 with 13:56 gone in the period from Ken Ludwig and Richard Serniak.

At the 3:08 mark of the second period, Warren Sanregret's point blast lifted NAIT into a 2-1 lead. Assists on Warren's goal went to Dean Burles and Ken Ludwig. Three minutes and 40 seconds later, Brad Moore of the Kings notched his second tally of the game. The Kings jumped into a 3-2 advantage when Perry Wall connected at the 8:53 mark.

The NAIT Ooks pulled even with 10:53 elapsed in the third when Ken Ludwig found the net on a play with linemates Randy Repchuk and Garth Hayes. Three minutes and 59 seconds followed before Derek Cunningham scored to give RDC a 4-3 advantage. NAIT then displayed excellent puck control on the delayed penalty situation that resulted in Pat Kernaghan's marker on a Randy Repchuk and Warren Sanregret set-up at 16:35. Thirty four seconds later, RDC's Hugh MacCaskill tallied on a breakaway to make the score 5-4.

Red Deer widened the advantage to two at the 18:34 mark when Royce Baker turned on the red light. Tony Wozny capped off the scoring with an empty net goal.

In the RDC net, Neal McPheddran blocked 34 NAIT drives. At the other end, NAIT's Brad Breakell stopped 37 Red Deer shots.

The final outcome did not reflect the flow of the game as NAIT appeared to be the better squad. The line juggling of the past few weeks is reaping its dividends as the NAIT attack looked stronger and more balanced. NAIT's forechecking handcuffed RDC in the last half of the contest, and will be one of the factors that will determine the Ooks destiny.

NAIT played two way hockey against RDC and displayed their potential. For the team to do well in post season play, the Ooks must not rely on the goaltender to stop everything in sight, but rather play sound two way hockey, as they did against RDC, to minimize the chances of the opposition.

ON THE BENCH: The Ooks now have a record of 12-8 for 24 points and second place in the ACAC...Pat Lawson and Jeff Hendricks are still out of the Ooks lineup. Both forwards are listed as questionable for this weekend's games...The two most consistent Ooks since Christmas have been Randy Repchuk and Garth Hayes. Rearguard Dean Burles returned to the NAIT line-up with a strong performance and helped steady the Ooks defence...This weekend, the Ooks play two games at the NAIT Arena. On Saturday, February 12th, the Ooks entertain the winless Mount Royal College Cougars. Game time is 7:30. On Sunday, the 13th, the SAIT Trojans will be here for an afternoon contest at 2:00.

Ooks Basketball

The Ooks split the games last weekend with a win against Medicine Hat and a loss to Lethbridge. This gives them an 8 win 3 loss record in league play. Last weekend also saw the return of our star forward Pat Gangle after suffering a broken leg in the tournament in Vancouver in the first week in January.

In the first game against Lethbridge on Friday night, the Ooks were not playing their usual tight defence but were still playing a fast offence. Murray Proctor played very well in the first half and helped keep the game close. The half time break saw Lethbridge ahead by a 25-24 score. The Ooks had trouble getting going and were not getting in for the rebounds and so allowed Lethbridge to control the boards. Hard work by all the players on the team got them back into the game but failure to convert turnovers and good front court pressure by LCC allowed them to give NAIT its third loss of the season. The final score in the match was 56-47.

High scorers were Pat Gangle and Scott McLaren with 8 points each, in a game that kept you on the edge of your seat from the opening tip off.

On Saturday the Ooks played a second tough game, this time against Medicine Hat College. This contest, like the one the night before, was a fast pace close affair. The half time score was 37-33 in favour of MHC. The Ooks continued, in the second half, to stay down by 3-5 points until the 11 minute mark. With the use of an effective half court press and a stronger defence they took the lead. Good rebounding and pass interception by Scott McLaren helped open the NAIT lead and finish the game with a 10 point lead 76-66. High scorers for the Ooks were Murray Proctor and Scott McLaren each with 18 points and Harry Blacker with 14.

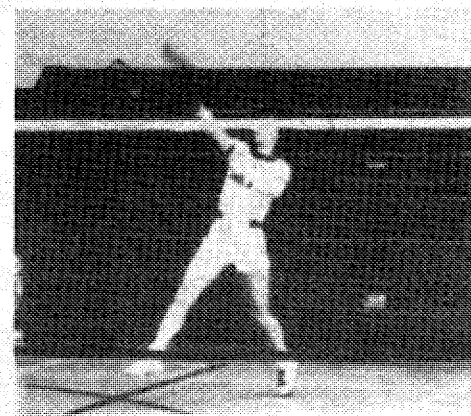

The Ooks do not play next weekend so they have time to prepare for the finish of the season. There will be two of the Ooks playing ball this weekend. Murray Proctor and Phil Bartlett have both been picked as conference all stars by the SAIT head coach. Along with the rest of the All Stars they will be playing the U of A Bears on Sunday night and then playing down in Calgary on Monday. Congratulations guys and give 'em hell.

Chicks Bball

On Friday, Feb. 4th the students of NAIT were on holiday but the Chicks basketball team was not. They came away from a tough game against Lethbridge with a 58-52 victory. The first half was one of the best halves I have seen them play. The Chicks were shooting much better and playing a strong defence. All this led to a 28-27 half time lead for NAIT. After the half time break they came out flat and were soon down by 10 points before they got themselves going. By the 12 minute mark the girls had scored 8 straight points and tied the score. They kept up the momentum and worked the ball around for the best shot and didn't throw it away. They also kept the number of fouls down to 6 in the second half. The high scorers were Robyn Lee 18 and Marcy Hurlburt 17 points.

On Saturday the Chicks played another tough game. This time the opposition came from Medicine Hat College. They started the game poorly and some bad passing caused some early turnovers which let MHC take an early lead. After a good deal of hard work the girls managed to come back and were only down by 1 point at the half thanks to a great desperation shot by Jodi Herbert. From the 25-26 half time score, the game continued as a very close contest that could have went either way. In the end, Medicine Hat managed to get a couple of hoops in a row and escaped with a 50-44 win. The high scorers for NAIT were Jami Bering 9, Janet Weech 8, Marcy Hurlburt 8, and Robyn Lee with 7 points.

The girls have the next weekend off to prepare for their game against GMCC on Feb. 18 at GMCC's home court in Millwoods.

Dreaming Of You

You appear to me within my dreams,
As if you wore a pair of wings.
But whether I'm in heav'n or hell,
I very truly can not tell.
And when at last your face I see,
I sometimes think, "This can not be!"
But then I hear a most

wonderous thing,
Like an angel chorus beginning to sing.
Then when I look upon your face,
I feel I'm in another place.
But this time I'm alone with you,
When love exists both strong and true.

Stephen Whistance-Smith

RUMOR HAS IT!

Rumor Has It...

The Infamous Neil Leighton of Electronics Tech., and his pay T.V. pirate device will be featured in MacLeans Magazine. We will certainly keep our eyes out for that one.

Rumor Has It...

Underground spies have been hired to keep an eye on the library and especially on Electronic students, to check out just who is displaying a sudden interest in specific filter devives. Could this be any connection with the well known Mafia type Mr. Botsfordchinni?

Rumor Has It...

B.F.F.U? has now picked their prime target. More information was not available at press time, because our informer has suddenly disappeared. We have been assured however, that the mission will proceed as planned.

Rumor Has It...

Another Nugget source who calles himself Eye Spy wants to know it N.M. has satisfied his craving for grapes and olives. Did it help your programming?

Rumor Has It...

There will be a large scale demonstration by male-libbers in protest of the upcoming She-Moose week. Their leader was quoted to say "The idea of She-Moose Week is absolutely appalling. It degrades every male at NAIT. I can just picture all of the secretaries and hairstyling students oogeling and cat calling my fellow students. I urge all students to attend the events and register their disgust."

Rumor Has It...

Inspired students want to know..Hey Flash! Is it true that L.J. is only keeping your knees warm?
