ROCK & TALK

Surprisingly enough, the Nov. 4th Rock and Talk was one of the more mellow events that has happened up to date. It started out slowly and seemed to remain that way for the duration of it's existence (what there was of it).

The proportion of genders in attendance was close to equal with the male populace edging out over the number of females - mind you, you didn't hear many complaints from me, though there were some disgruntled guys.

The first couple was spotted on the floor at 5:00 sharp dancing to the exhilarating beat of "Hungry like the Wolf". Unfortunately, this couple remained a solo act for the entire song. Things were fairly quiet until "Come On Eileen" brought out yet another solo act about ten minutes later.

At approximately 5:40, the dance floor began to look a little more inhabited, but it was still extremely easy to find a spot to strut your stuff. Whether that was good or bad depends on your point of view.

A little after the activity had finally started, it then had to be suppressed in order that the winners of Tech Week could receive their acclaim. This years trophy was presented to the well-deserving Civil Engineering. Once the presentation was made, the polka-ers in the crowd were brought out on the floor to display their finesse to the unusual, but interesting "Stinky Breath". And Sergio Mendez's sentimental "Never Gonna Let You Go", brought out all those latent romantics (too bad this only happened once).

All in all, things remained pretty low-key right to the close of the evening at roughly 7:30.

For all those looking for an early start to a weekend of relaxation (hopefully), I hope things pick up.

EDITOR'S NOTE SENATE REFORM

I don't think a lot of people even know what the term "Senate Reform" means. Senate Reform means that the Senate that sits in the Federal Parliament would be changed from its present system to a new system. Before I even outline the new system, I should tell you what the present system is like.

Under the present system of Senate, they are considered like a rubber stamp for the Federal Government. They are appointed by the Federal Government. The original plan of the Senate was to be a watch-dog of the Government. After the House of Commons passes a bill, the Senate is supposed to either approve it or not pass it. Right now, they only approve it without further inquiry into the matter.

With the installment of the new system, there could be several ways in which to get proper representation into the Senate. I believe that we have elected representation by province. There are several advantages to this system. They are as follows:

1. There would be direct citizen involvement and direct positive communication of issues. The representative could report directly back to the people.
2. Speaking of reporting directly back to the people, the representative would of course be directly responsible to the people. If he doesn't do his job, then he can be voted out by the people.
3. This would lessen the opportunity of regionalization of provinces from happening.
4. This would also lessen the opportunity of governmental rubber stamping that occur now.
5. Changes could occur more readily.

Of course, there is always negative factors in any system. One big negative factor is that under the present system of government, the House of Commons has more power than the Senate. Under this system, with the Senate having more power than the House of Commons. There would probably be a power struggle between the Senate and House constantly. What system would be used in electing the representatives into the Senate? There would be the party system probably which if there was a different party in the House of Commons, there would be a clash of ideology. But, there is no way of getting around this because of the enormous amount of money in the various political parties. They would run their own candidate and so would other parties. Again, once they were in there if they didn't follow the ideology, in the next election they wouldn't be re-elected by the party that financed their election. Although, the Senate needs definite reforming, the problem is how to get a new Senate in there and by whom.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR:

In response to last week's comments in the nuclear arms race, I would like to clarify and elaborate on some points.

The concept of Mutually Assured Destruction has evolved into a situation where the defender is responsible for large losses of life. With the increased accuracy of Multiple Independently-targeted Re-entry Vehicles (MIRVs) it is possible for an attacker to select specific targets, like missile silos, and destroy a defender's Intercontinental Ballistic Missile (ICBM) force with only a portion of his ICBM's. The options left to the defender are surrender or respond with Sea-Launched Ballistic Missiles (SLBMs). But the SLBMs are not accurate enough to hit specific targets like ICBM silos and are targeted on the attacker's cities. If the SLBM are launched, then the attacker will launch his remaining ICBMs and his SLBM on the defender's cities. This is the situation we face now. With the level of technology we have now it is possible to destroy about 702 of a nation's ICBMs and about 252 of a nation's SLBMs but with the systems being developed this level will change drastically.

The missiles deployed in Europe, by the United States, are there by request of the European governments. European nations, except for Britain and France, have no means of nuclear deterrent to Soviet nuclear and conventional forces. The tactical missile, Pershing II, being deployed in Europe, by the United States, is actually replacing existing obsolete systems on a one-to-one basis. I personally think that the replacement of 400 kiloton warheads with 20 kiloton warheads is a positive step towards limiting civilian casualties and increased arms reduction. It should be pointed out that the Pershing II missile could reach Moscow only if the Soviets move Moscow 1000 kilometres west.

In the past few years I have heard many things said of the cruise missile. In my opinion the cruise missile is the device capable of breaking the Mutually Assured Destruction stalemate. The cruise missile gives a nation the option of a very accurate second-strike capability. This leads to the possibility of a limited nuclear exchange with only military targets engaged. I am sure that everyone would prefer a limited nuclear exchange to a total nuclear war. The cruise missile is not a first-strike system because it flies too slow and is easily destroyed when detached. There is one important fact that everyone overlooks about the cruise missile which is that it is only a delivery system. It is no different than an aircraft or a gun. It just has specialized characteristics. Being a delivery system, the cruise missile can be used for tasks other than strategic nuclear bombing. The cruise missile can be armed with a conventional warhead and used against airfields, communication centres, industrial centres, and ships.

In my opinion, trying to blame the cruise missile for starting a nuclear war is like blaming air crashes on dirty windshields. It is just a very small part of a very large picture. The nuclear weapons will not destroy us on their own. No, it is people who are responsible for wars. I suggest that if you want world peace that is everlasting, then one must change the people's view about each other. If people are not big enough to look past petty needs, wants, desires, and prejudices then there really is no hope.

Specifically, I hate "The Brick" commercials. I also despise the commercials for "California Waterbeds" (I wish someone would shoot their spokesman for ninety-nine dollars, or 199, or 299, or 399...). In fact, there are very few commercials that are worth sticking around in the same room for when watching any show on commercial television. So, one usually has two options--change the channel, or go to the refrigerator for something to replace what you lost the last time Mike Bell was on.

Fortunately, for those who do not have a full icebox and for those who hate wasting their time on commercials, someone came out with a bright idea a few years ago: sell video recorders to the public. Since then, VCRs have been used for everything from taping a Grey Cup game to beginning a library of the Jacques Cousteau specials. But the best use for video recorders is for watching commercial television.

Consider this for a moment: Each one hour you watch on CBC, CTV, or the three American commercial networks has about eight minutes of commercials. If you're an average North American, this means you waste more than an hour of the six hours per day you watch of television. There ought to be a better way to spend your time (especially if you have classes, assignments, and finals to work for). If you're an addicted videoit, then a video recorder just might help you get that extra time you need to study for.

VCRs are time-savers especially in that you can fast-forward through the commercials and (if necessary) the opening and closing credits. You can also skim through a show to get to the part(s) that you are interested in (such as watching only the goals scored in the Oiler hockey games). Better yet is when there are transmission problems--instead of sitting there waiting for the technician to push the right button, do a fast forward on a video tape recording to the point where the picture comes back.

Indeed, the time-saving possibilities do not end there. Sony has just released a new model that has two forms of fast search. One is the normal form that those of us with Betas are used to: 20-or-so times normal speed. The other form is 2 times normal speed, WITH sound. Although I haven't been able to see the machine, I suspect that the worst effect would be to hear everyone sound more like Alvin and the Chipmunks than their usual tone of voice. Thus, if you feel you need to be able to watch an entire one-hour show in thirty minutes, this new machine would be for you.

Finally, there's another advantage to having a video recorder. During those weeks when you simply cannot afford to watch any television (final exams are coming up, remember?), a video recorder allows you to tape the shows that you should watch (like "Nova", "60 Minutes", and "Hill Street Blues") so that you can view them later at your convenience. The only problem you should try to avoid, however, is needing to spend a significant portion of your lunch money on more videotapes--only a true videoit follows the advice of one of SCTV's characters and tapes everything.

Vernon R.J. Schmid

For Next Week: PLEASE watch "War" this Sunday night at nine. It will be the last episode of the series, and anyone who caught even last week's show knows how thought-provoking this set of films done by Gwynne Dyer and the NFB has been.

Athlete Of The Week

MARCY HURLBURT
CHICKS BASKETBALL

POSITION: Forward

HEIGHT: 5'7"

AGE: 19

TECH: 2nd Year Respiratory

Second year forward Marcy Hurlburt got the Chicks off to a tremendous start in the ACAC pre-season tournament in Calgary last weekend. Marcy poured in 22 points as the Chicks went to beat two-time conference champions, Medicine Hat College, 65-55. Over the weekend, Marcy scored forty points, had sixteen rebounds and eighteen recoveries in helping the women finish fourth overall.

Marcy works a regular shift at the Univeristy Hospital and finds time to practice three times per week and play twice a week with the Chicks. She will play an important role in the Chicks battle for a playoff position this season. Look forward to hearing more from Marcy Hurlburt as the Chicks enter league play.

CHICKS DEFEAT DEFENDING CHAMPIONS

In weekend action the NAIT womens Basketball team pulled the upset of the preseason tournament by downing 2 time ACAC champions-Medicine Hat College, 65-55 in the opening round. The chicks hit on 29 of 43 from the field and were led by Marcy Hurlburt(22 pts) and Janet Weech(12 pts). Later that night, the Chicks squared off against the Red Deer College Queens and showed the emotional and physical drain of the previous game, being dominated by Red Deer 77-37. Leanne Undershultz led the Chicks in a losing game scoring 11 pts. The Queens shot over 56% from the floor and look to be the team to beat in the league. The next action the girls saw was on Saturday when they faced Grande Prairie Regional College for 3rd place in the tourney. Grande Prairie are entering the league after a four year absence but have good coaching and talent to make a good run at a playoff spot. They forced the Chicks into numerous turnovers which they were quick to capitalize on these to win 85-60 in a shootout. "The girls didn't handle the pressure very well and it is something we will have to work hard on before league play begins" noted coach Gregg Meropoulos who was fairly satisfied with how the team has progressed to this point. The Chicks were led by Marcy Hurlburt and Patti Marcinyshyn both with 11 points each. Next Chick action is this weekend at GMCC where they will face Camrose Lutheran College, Cariboo College, and Grant MacEwan in tourney action.

OOKS BASKETBALL

This last weekend the NAIT mens' basketball team was on the road to Calgary to play in the annual preseason tournament which was hosted by SAIT this year. In their first game, NAIT played Camrose Lutheran College. NAIT started off slowly and continued to have problems. At half time the score 29-27 for Camrose. In the second half the Oaks came out with renewed drive and began to build up a lead. The final score was NAIT 65-CLC54. The high scorers for the Oaks were Bill Rehla with 20 pts, Luc Naccarato with 14 pts, and Scott McLaren with 12 pts.

The Oaks second game was against SAIT who won their first game against Red Deer College by 38 points. In the first half, the Oaks played outstanding defence along with a solid offence. This kept the score, except when near the end, the Oaks committed a few transitional errors which capitalized on for a 42-33 half time score. Again in the second half the Oaks came out strong. SAIT switched to a zone offence since they could not stop the Oaks offence. In switching to their zone offence the Oaks found that they were running into some trouble the game ended with a 74-51 score for the SAIT Trojans. Scott McLaren got the first slam dunk of the season, and Bill Rehla was the valuable player of the game. As well, both were high scorers for the Oaks with 10 pts.

In their third game, the Oaks played Camrose Lutheran College again. The Oaks played hard and dominated throughout the Game. At half time the score was 34-24 for NAIT. The final was 77-57 in favour of the NAIT Oaks. The high scorers for NAIT were Bill Rehla with 18 pts, Scott McLaren with 16 pts, and Darrel Ziehr with 10 pts. The Oaks record was a respectable 2 and 1.

This weekend the Oaks are down in Calgary again, this time to participate in the Mount Royal College Cougar Classic. Good luck Oaks.

"CHICKS" PLACE SECOND

The NAIT Ookchicks Volleyball played in their pre-season tournament last weekend, and came away with a second place finish. Nine teams participated in the ACAC tournament. Friday afternoon, the Chicks played Grande Prairie, the most improved team in the ACAC, and split in the two game series. They also split with Grant MacEwan and Red Deer, being the only team to beat the ACAC Champions in the preliminaries. NAIT played even better on Saturday, with the addition of setter Jody Herbert, who joined the team on Saturday. They swept Lethbridge College, SAIT, and Olds and split with Lakeland.

The Chicks entered the play-offs with a 12-4 record second to Red Deer. The final game was an exciting match, although NAIT lost 15-13, 15-6.

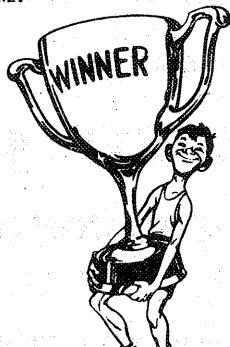

The Chicks now start regular season play, and look forward to earning a play-off spot. The competition for 2nd place this year is expected to come from Grande Prairie. Coach Peter Grundmanis was especially pleased with the play of veterans Debbie Tkachuk, Susan Ouellete, and rookie Jody Herbert. The Chicks first home game is on November 30/83, against Grant MacEwan.

SOOCER OOKS OFF TO THE NATIONALS

On Wed. Nov. 9th the Alberta College Soccer Champions, NAIT Oaks will depart for the national soccer championship in Vancouver. Their first game is against British Columbia on Thursday 10th and Saskatchewan on Friday the 11th. The top two teams of this pool and the other pool(B) will advance to the semi-final on Friday afternoon the championship final will be on Saturday afternoon. NAIT is aiming to be in this final. The toughest opposition is expected from British Columbia, which as everyone knows is the "home" of Canadian Soccer. Ontario will also be tough because of the excellent college soccer league that they have down east. The Ontario representative which was decided last Saturday is Seneca College. As it is the first soccer college national championships, all provincial teams will be feeling one another out.

The team is hoping not to experience the typical wet Vancouver conditions as they have played all their games in Alberta this season on dry fast patches. The Oaks finished off their preparation with an excellent 5-1 victory against an eager Strathcona E.D.S.A. team on Sunday Nov. 6th. This NAIT team has preformed well all season and the coaching staff of Stuart Brown and Bob Buchan know that the lads will give the best and will be good ambassadors for NAIT and Alberta. Goodluck Oaks! GO GET 'UM!

DENTAL ASSISTANTS- TELECOM BASH

Although it wasn't a highly publicized affair, Friday night's Dental Assistant-Telecom cabaret was a prime time. Due to its capacity, 250 people was a sufficient number of people to sell out Bonnie Doon Community Hall. Although it started slow, things started picking up around 9:30. Momentum accelerated through the evening, and the premises were shaking by 10:30. The D.J. helped out immensely by playing excellent dance selections. I am sure, however, that the "Rodeo Song" could have been deleted from his play list.

I'm happy to say the organizers of this party were very much on the ball. The incredible feat of an almost fifty to fifty-male to female-ratio was accomplished through advanced, private ticket sales. The security was exemplary; the bouncers knew their jobs; the coat check and the liquor ticket sales were run smoothly; but unfortunately, beer service wasn't the quickest. The hiring of two "Boys in Blue" was a good idea, but did not prevent a fight from breaking out at about 11:00. The night ended without further ado, except for unrelated spilt chili incidents(A-1 chili I might add). Again, congratulations to the organizers-I look forward to the next one.

ADMIN MAN

Dave Sawchuk - the average son of average parents from an average town, is no longer average - He is Admin Man!

Dave Sawchuk is cruising the hallway of NAIT, always on the prowl. As he walks into the tower skywalk, he detects a faint cry for help. Quickly he shoots into action. It's another guy getting ravaged up on fifth floor, the Secretarial Floor.

"How many times do I have to warn those guys," thinks Admin Man, "Never go up there alone. Those girls are animals. Especially that one from Fox City. I'll have to give her a real good talking to this time. She's always starting something!"

As he reached fifth floor, Admin Man could see the crowd of girls gathered around the cornered guy. The guy's sportshirt was in tatters, there were pieces of jean material on the floor. What little the guy had left of his jeans he was holding together with his left hand, while he fought off the ravagers with his right.

"All right girls, break it up" barked Admin Man. Most of the girls turned and moved away. There were a few who still kept on ravaging the poor guy. Admin Man moved in and threw them aside, all except for their leader, the Girl from Fox City.

"Alright, who do you think you are?" demanded Admin Man, "You just can't go around raping and pillaging every guy who strays onto the fifth floor. This has got to stop. You're lucky I cleaned up the Animal Wing last month, otherwise I'd take and leave you there!"

"That doesn't threaten me," replied the Girl from Fox City coolly, "Those guys down there wouldn't have a chance."

"We'll see about that" answered Admin Man, as he escorted the distraught guy to safety.

Back to classes. Dave wondered how he could control the renegade secretaries.

The next day Admin Man put up signs on the doors leading to the fifth floor which read - "Warning: Attack Secretaries". Two days later they were torn down and there were three more ravagings. Finally Admin Man saw red. He went down to the fifth floor in disguise. As expected, the secretaries started to ravage him. Then, in a flash, he pulled off his disguise and grabbed the Girl from Fox City.

"How romantic, Where are we going?" asked the Girl from Fox City sarcastically.

"We're going up to the Work Camp at Fort MacMurray."

"No, you can't be serious. No, don't take me there!" she pleaded, "I've heard about those maniacs."

"Are you going to stop your ravagings of innocent guys?"

"Yes, just don't take me to the Work Camp!"

"Fine," said Admin Man as he returned her to NAIT. Another menace has been eliminated by the colorful crusader of NAIT.

MOVIE UPDATE

By Byron A. Martin

This week I have the latest Disney release to update for you "Never Cry Wolf", based on Farley Mowat's best-selling book. As well, I'll briefly outline a few other movies around town that have been playing for some time.

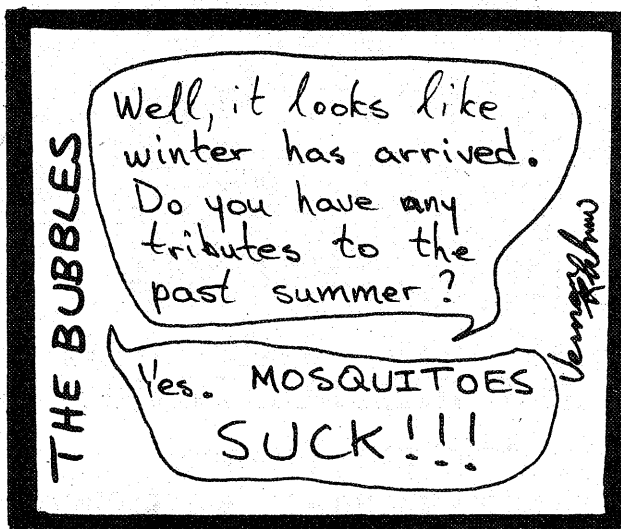

In my last article I summarized "Running Brave" which was shot in Edmonton about a year ago. Last weekend I had the opportunity to go to the premiere with everyone who was involved in making the movie, including the producer Ira Englander who flew up from Los Angeles just to be here for the opening. Talking to Mr. Englander he commented that the critics in Los Angeles said that "Running Brave" had some of the best running scenes that have ever been captured on film, especially footage of the olympics were done unlike anything else. He said he was pleased with the final product of the film, calling it a complimentary film about Billy Mills success story, which was not intended to have an biographical overtone.

Watching the movie myself, I was impressed by the interpretation of Billy Mills by Robby Benson.

Casting Benson for this role not only for his noteworthy acting capabilities but his physical appearance as well (Robby Benson was Billy Mills own personal choice for the role) is a definite asset to the verisimilitude of the picture. Jeff McCracken and Pat Hingle give good performances also.

Locally, John Sexsmith and Susan Ameronger, both of CHNR, bring a new era indramatic potrayals of movie extras as they become Kansas University students, delivering insurmountable energy as they walk the pavements of Kansas and shout for old K.U.

I strongly recommend this film to everyone, it's a chance to see friends who might have been involved, it's a chance to see parts of Edmonton and Alberta on film but most of a all; it's a chance to see a very entertaining film.

THE DEAD ZONE

Cast: Cristopher Walken, Brooke Adams, Martin Sheen.

Plot: Based on best selling Stephen King novel. A complex and horrifying tale about a man who not only foresees the future, but tries to change it--challenging powers beyond life and death.

BRAINSTORM

"Never Cry Wolf"

A Buena Vista Release

Walt Disney Productions presents, "Never Cry Wolf". starring Charles Martin Smith and Brian Denny. Based on the book by Farley Mowat, directed by Carroll Ballard.

Charles Martin Smith stars as a biologist who struggles not only to endure an Arctic Winter, but also to learn as much about wolves as he can. Deposited alone onto a frozen wasteland, Smith begins his mission to live among the wolf packs and study their ways. Contact with his quarry comes quickly, and Smith discovers not a den of marauding killers, but a courageous family of skillful providers and devoted protectors of their young. As Smith learns more and more about the wolf world, he comes to fear with them the onslaught of hunters out to kill wolves for their pelts. "Never Cry Wolf" is a true narrative of the myth and magic of wild wolves and man's true place among the creatures of nature.

UNDER FIRE

Cast: Michael Caine, Richard Gere.

Plot: Based on the Graham Greene novel, The Honorary Consul. A triangular, explosive and torrid love affair is set against the dramatic political unrest of Argentina.

BEYOND THE LIMIT

Cast: Nick Nolte, Gene Hackman, Joanna Cassidy, Rene Enriquez.

Plot: Russel Price (Nick Nolte) a seasoned photo-journalist whose reputation for brilliant was photography is exceeded only by his reputation for fearlessness, covers the conflict in Nicaragua, loses his objectivity, and becomes involved.

THE OSTERMAN WEEKEND

Cast: Rutger Haver, John Hurt, Burt Lancaster.

Plot: Based on the Robert Ludlum book about a suspense-filled weekend at the country home of an American journalist who has been lead to believe that several of his closest friends are Soviet agents.
