EDITOR'S NOTE

SHINING IT UP WITH SHINERAMA

Well hello, I am back from taking last week off. The major story to hit our headlines this week is Shinerama.

Shinerama is the one time of the year when NAIT students go out and do a community service project. We shine shoes for the cause of Cystic Fibrosis. I know that some students are not participating in this cause. There should be some sort of way to entice students to get out and shine shoes. Of my staff of eight, I have six people out shining. Even though some of them have a lot of homework, they are getting Friday afternoon off and they have decided to do some charity work.

Another good point, if students are getting the afternoon off, why shouldn't they devote the time to Shinerama. I firmly believe that if students don't go to Shinerama, they should have to attend classes. If students are not willing to donate two hours of work to a cause, they should have to attend classes. Maybe they would rather listen to a boring instructor rattle on in a boring subject.

All in all, Shinerama is a worthwhile cause. Maybe our shining will produce a small step in the cause of Cystic Fibrosis. I don't know about you students, but I am excited about going out shining shoes because of the following: to meet new people; I am doing something worthwhile (even though I have to give up my Friday off); I get a discount on my Shinerama Cabaret tickets.

Chow for now!!! Catch you next week!

Dear Mom & Dad

Dear Mom and Dad:

I am a married NAIT male in second year accounting. My big problem is that my sexual desires are not totally limited to my wife. Lately I have been making advances at any girl with a pulse. About three-quarters of the girls have gone along with the advances to allow me to get a home run. I am basically in heaven, but my wife is starting to wonder why I am so tired to play ball when I get to bed at night. Are there any pills I can take that will increase my virility? I hope your answer will come right away because I can't possibly keep up this pace for another week.

Horney Harvey

Dear Horney:

By the sounds of it, an increase in your virility in order to "keep up" isn't exactly what you need. The problem lies in curbing your appetite, not helping you increase your capacity for food. If you want to play ball, I suggest you decide who your playmates should be. If you keep on with this pace you will need to call in a pinch hitter, and what's the point of being in the game if you can't get the runs?

Love Mom and Dad

Dear Mom and Dad:

I went to this great party on the weekend and had an excellent time. This guy I know was there and later on we met up. We went on several walks and had a generally nice time. The big problem is that I wonder if he'll remember our evening because he was drunk. I am really hoping that he'll remember because I went to my doctor last Friday and I am pregnant. I am too embarrassed to possibly tell my family and I can't find the father anywhere on campus. What should I do? Should I give the baby up for adoption or should I get an abortion? I don't really want to carry around the baby for 9 months and I don't want to marry the jerk. Please help me!

Pregnant Pat

Dear Prego:

Well, you shouldn't make any hasty decisions on this matter, but by the sounds of it you have already narrowed down your choices to practically one decision already. As I said, though, don't make any hasty decisions before you have thought out all your options. If you really can't talk to your family, talk to a counsellor or some professional who has the ability to help you sort out your thoughts. Oh, by the way, I suggest you let the father in on your decision or you may have even more problems than you bargained for.

Love Mom and Dad

Dear Mom and Dad:

My boyfriend, Darcy, has an 18th birthday coming up. I recently found out that Darcy's dad is giving him a trip to Las Vegas with a hooker (as a birthday gift). Darcy doesn't know that I know and I don't know whether or not to mention anything to him. But my real problem lies with the fact that if he goes with her I will feel betrayed. Mom, what should I do in this situation?

Upset and Betrayed

Dear Betrayed:

Maybe you should casually mention to your boyfriend that you know about his little present from his father. If he still wants to go on the trip, complete with the trimmings, then maybe live and learn; in other words, maybe you should go along and pick up a few pointers from the other "party". As they say, things "come" in threes.

Love Mom and Dad

P.S. Let us know how things went, and if you went along, what new things you picked up [hopefully you didn't pick up anything THAT way] since we like to keep up on these types of things.

Dear Mom and Dad:

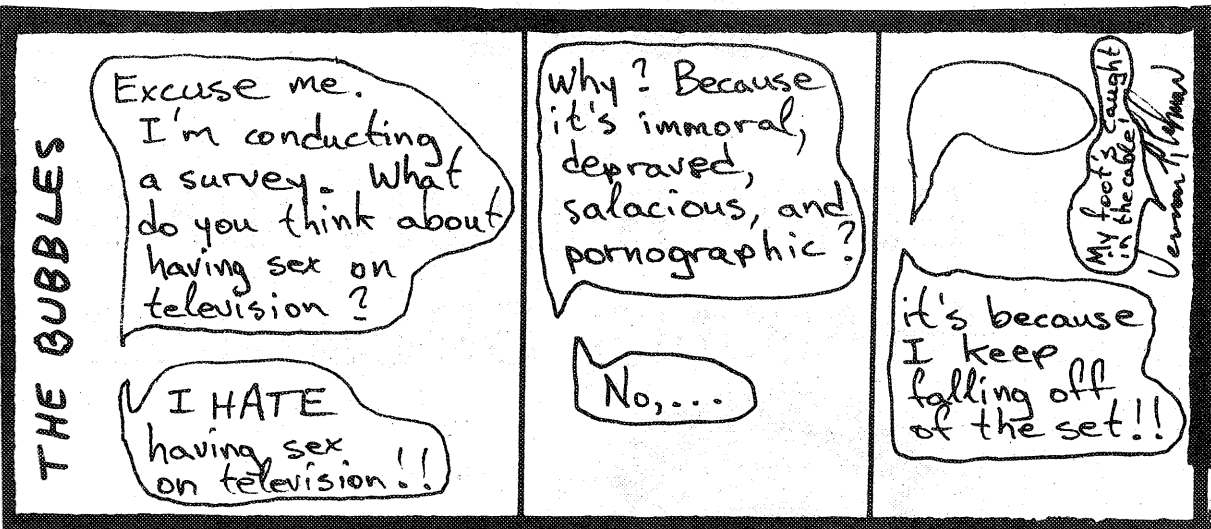

Things are great here at NAIT except for one incident this last weekend. I went to this fantastic party by myself. The booze was flowing pretty fast and you know me. Anyhow, to make a long story short, I met this lovely young lady whom I just couldn't keep my hands off of. We had a wonderful time and got to know each other very well, or at least I thought so. The day after the party, I was informed that the girl was only sixteen years old, you know, Jailbait, San Quentin Quail, anyhow, I was wondering if you know a good lawyer. I think I might also need some money for bail. The good news is that the other guys in the cell are very friendly and my chronic constipation has completely cleared up. I had better go now because one of the other guys wants to "talk" to me. Waiting for your reply.

Love your Son -- Phil McAvity

Dear Son:

You don't have to wait for my reply, but you're going to have to wait for my money. But don't worry, you really shouldn't be in jail, as the legal limit is fourteen years old. I guess that this means that you get another chance to "screw" up again, unless you have changed your preferences by now. One word of warning to all you lawbreakers who prefer your present preference don't bend over for the soap in the shower when you are in the bighouse.

Love Mom and Dad

JUST WHEN YOU THOUGHT IT WAS SAFE TO RETURN TO THE SLOPES AGAIN...

FAN APPRECIATION

There is a serious problem at NAIT. It's called fan apathy. What happened to the days when the stands would be packed with fans watching their teams, cheering them on? This lack of fans affects our image and our teams suffer.

From personal experience, I know the feeling of having no fans to watch you play as well as having a whole horde cheering you on. Believe me, it's a world of difference. I can remember playing football in Clarke Stadium with at least a hundred fans cheering us on. That was the best feeling in the world; it made all those long hard practices worthwhile. However, I can also remember playing a home basketball game where no one from our school showed up, not even the cheerleaders, but the other team brought theirs. That game was ranked as one of the worst in my memory, not because we lost, but because it felt as though no one gave a damn about the effort we put in so we could represent our school.

Now that you have heard my point of view, you can probably relate to how the players on the NAIT teams feel when no one shows up. Support the NAIT teams and let them know you care.

NAIT HOCKEY

After three weeks of preparation, the NAIT Hockey Oaks played their first two games of the exhibition season against the Sherwood Park Knights of the Capital Junior Hockey League on September 24th and 25th. The NAIT Oaks downed the Knights in both contests, 16-3 and 16-1.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 24th--NAIT OOKS 16, SHERWOOD PARK KNIGHTS 3 AT THE NAIT ARENA.

On Saturday, September 24th, the Oaks scored a 16-3 triumph over the Sherwood Park Knights at the NAIT Arena. Brian Hermanutz, Mark Schultz, and Dave Matthews each completed the hat trick for NAIT. Larry Oswald and Jim Lee added a pair of goals each, while Brian Keats, Kevin Imrie and Garth Hayes tallied singles for the NAIT cause.

The Oaks had a 7-0 advantage after one period of play, and a 12-1 lead following two frames. The Oaks then scored four more times in the third while Sherwood Park replied with two.

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 25th--NAIT OOKS 16, SHERWOOD PARK KNIGHTS 1 AT SHERWOOD PARK ARENA.

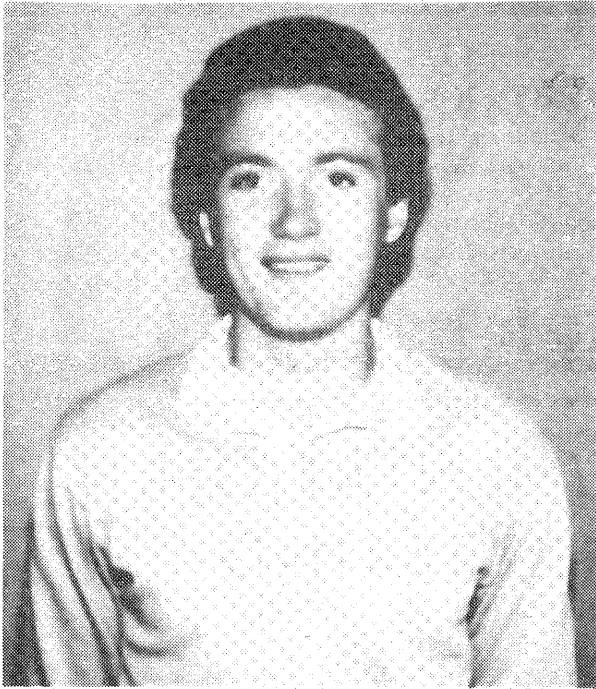

Six players notched a goal apiece as NAIT came away with a 6-1 victory in their contest with the Sherwood Park Knights on Sunday, September 25th. Randy Repchuk, Garth Hayes, Larry Oswald, Jim Lee, and Gerry Foley each found the net once.

NAIT scored two goals in each period. Sherwood Park spoiled NAIT's shutout bid in the final stanza.

ON THE BENCH: When training camp opened in the first week on September, 75 prospects were vying for positions. After weekend play, Coach Pearn hopes to have the roster trimmed down to about 30 players ... The next Oaks home game will be this Friday night, the 30th, when NAIT plays host to the University of Alberta Golden Bears at the NAIT Arena. Admission is free with your NAIT I.D. card. Game time is 7:30 ... NAIT Hockey is looking for timekeepers, goal judges, and other minor officials to work at Oaks home games. For more information contact Coach Perry Pearn at 471-7424 or see him in S113.

ATHLETE OF THE WEEK

JIM HARKINS SOCCER

Jim moved from Scotland at the age of 16 to Fort McMurray and then to Edmonton. Jim is a dedicated soccer player who is in his second year with the Nait Soccer Team.

He played a solid game in Midfield in Nait's two opening exhibition games this season (that was a 0 draw against U of A Juniors and 5-3 win against Strathcona 1st Division). Like all good midfielders Jim is always looking to feed his forwards with a good ball that will create opportunities for goals.

When questioned about this year at NAIT and the teams chances, Jim feels that this years Nait Team is stronger than last years. It must have a good chance of winning the Alberta Colleges Soccer Championship to be held in Red Deer on Oct. 15th and 16th. He knows that the opposition will be tougher than in the past because soccer is now an official A.C.A.C. Sport.

Jim claims that the team is hungry for victory this year because the winning Alberta Team most probably will be advancing to the Canadian Colleges Soccer Bowl (National Championships) to be hosted by Capalano College on Nov 10-12th in Vancouver. Jim feels that if NAIT made it to the nationals they would be a definite contender because of the success Alberta Age Soccer teams have had in other national championships recently.

In passing Jim has had other sporting interests mainly in amateur boxing, this career was short lived fortunately for his soccer career.

Jim sets a good example to his team mates by always practicing very intensely.

Keep up the good work Jim!!!

RUMOR HAS IT!!!!

Rumor has it that the head bouncer of C.S.S. found true love Friday night at the Beerfest, with a Human Vacuum Cleaner. We noticed that she had duds. At least that's all we saw! more later....

Rumor has it, the sports editor from a well know paper was at a party this weekend. He met an interesting YOUNG female. On their way through the evening, they went on several walks. They also utilized the hosts bedroom, the stairs, the lawn, the bathroom. I'm sure they were quite busy.

Rumor has it Madame Benoit, alias, Mom failed her crash course in pizza making, after she failed to grease the pan, she went on to burn the pizza and practically burn down the house. It was probably because she was fairly drunk as she took a fall while dancing.

Rumor has it that our wonderful cart riders were under the influence when they managed to run into the lockers. Isn't it just awesome, that we have these people zooming around campus on these carts? Maybe we should set up an official, extensive training program for our internal couriers??

Rumor has it that T.C. and P.B. from E.R. have embarked on their own special "Mission Impossible". Last I saw of them, this evening, they were with several people from the opposite gender. Was their mission really impossible? Or were they just doing some extra studying for their "Mission"???

Rumor has it that a CERTAIN writing teacher houses tiny insects in UNquestionable areas of his anatomy!!!

Rumor has it that a certain editor made a spectacle of himself at a party. Besides posing for pictures, chasing every female in sight (cats included), and passing out, he learned how to Tahitian dance. Apparently he was taught by a young Tahitian dancer, who helped him rotate his hips until he was gyrating like a professional!

RODEO CLUB

The first general assembly meeting of the Edmonton Intercollegiate Rodeo Club was held at U of A campus Thursday, September 22. A very generous and enthusiastic response foreshadows an eventful College Rodeo year for 1983-84. Resulting from the strong NAIT attendance, a NAIT executive was formed and a NAIT RODEO CLUB organizational meeting had been slated for 7:00 pm, Wednesday, September 28 in E129. If you missed the first, don't hesitate to catch this one. Remember the club Social, September 30th! LET'S RODEO!

Adieu, C-Channel

During the past summer, Canada's pay tv battle lost its first competitor. Before completing even one half-year of broadcasting, C-Channel was forced to "go gently into that good night". Translation: the folks at C-Channel crapped out.

Pay tv has been around a risky business for some time now, even though it has been around since the 1950's [yes, folks, the fifties]. What most of the stations have tried to do is to become better than the commercial networks without becoming like the commercial networks. Some have tried to survive on a strictly-movie format, others on specialty programming [I am still waiting for a show called "Basketweaving at the Basilica"], while others wind up looking like very expensive imitations of community stations. [like cable 10 here in Edmonton] The station's main hope is that people are wanting something different.

In the case of C-Channel, the main hope was that the people of Canada were wanting something different AND intelligent. To them, this meant symphonies instead of rock concerts; Broadway instead of sitcoms; internationally-acclaimed animation instead of Hanna-Barbara junk; mature cinema instead of slash rip-off; Canadian and international instead of purely WASPish American. Had C-Channel only looked at Canadians instead of up to the stars, they would have seen a different picture and could have avoided Bankruptcy Avenue.

Culture: The gang at C-Channel should have remembered that culture to most Canadians is Bob and Doug. Some of the more abstract Canucks like yogurt, preferably Yoplait--a French yogurt that is made in New Jersey. That C-Channel thought we would watch an opera filmed in Holland, well, whoever sold them on that idea is a used-car salesman on 75th street.

Music: If by some fluke there exists anyone who actually paid for a C-Channel subscription for the orchestras, please send him or her to the Institute for the Hopefuls. Despite what the cable companies were telling us, the quality of sound coming from either the television itself or a properly-installed audio system was the pits during symphony concerts. [One could get better stereo from a crystal radio set.] In any event, most symphonies are not sold out; most rock concerts are -- thus, the reason rock and roll is popular on television.

Alternatives: Given a choice between sax & violins and sex & violence, a lot of Canadians would take the sex and violence. Also, we really do prefer something that was made in the States, for the States, or pretends that it takes place in the States. [The main reason we don't stick around for the credits after a movie is that we don't really want to see if it was made in Canada.] Combine the two, and you can see why Canucks would like to see the ultimate in television: "The A Team" or the Girls of Playboy". Quite simply, the only alternative we want is some more of that good old American-made S & M.

Intelligence: Are you kidding? When people try to nominate Bob and Doug for the Order of Canada, that indicates how inferior our superior intellect really is. Up here in the Great White North, Charlie Farqueson represents the type of people we send to England as Rhodes scholars. We like our television to be the same way: soft, gooey, with practically no nourishment at all for the mind [sort of like Pabulum].

What C-Channel did not realize was that Canada is more of a melting-pot than a mosaic when it comes to our culture. Our favorite color isn't grey, it's black--we absorb from everyone. So far as television goes, we are quite content to continue letting the Americans take over our minds while the Yanks wait for FIRA and NEP to die a slow, economically-induced death. And so it is a no-win situation, because Canadian stations who want to remain Canadian with some diverse international flavor will not satisfy Canadians as a whole. [Conversely, trying to satisfy Canadians means not fulfilling the goals a.k.a. the demands of the CRTC.] As the CBC, First Choice, Superchannel, and the CTV seem to know, offer what the majority wants; the rest will watch the culture and the intelligence when it's on. Canucks will sip some sophistication once in a while; C-Channel's futile wish was that we would gulp more of it sooner.

P.S.: This is a big week for the fans of the nighttime soaps: we get to find out who survives the Carrington and the Ewing fires. I hope you caught "Dynasty" on Wednesday, and tune into "Dallas" on Friday night for more.

P.S.S.: On October 3 [Monday night], Johnny Carson and Ed McMahon will be celebrating their 21st anniversary of "The Tonight Show". The special will include some of the funniest moments from the past, as well as snips from those comics who successfully debuted this past year. Tune into NBC that evening to learn why one fifth of NBC's revenue is due solely to Carson and company.

Next Week: May the dieties help, and hinder, David Mainse.

If your idea of a good time is meeting new people, dancing all night, listening to live rock, and most important of all, drinking cold beer: you would have loved Beerfest '83. The 650 tickets, which were sold as soon as they were released, illustrated the anticipation for this event. Another 200 were quickly snatched up when put on sale a day later.

Friday night's festivities began early, when the Golden Garter's doors opened at 8:00 to admit a number of punctual and eager partiers. Shortly after, the building was full, liquor tickets were selling at an insane rate, and beer glasses were being hurriedly filled. The crowd was in an exhilarated state and wanted to get the bash rolling at the soonest moment.

The dancing started as soon as the band began "doing their thing", at about 9:00.

"Qwest" started fast and kept their momentum throughout the night with their quick-paced, top forty selections. Instrumentals came across well, but their sound mixing did not allow much vocals to be heard. This was probably deliberate, because when the singer was audible, he was almost unbearable to listen to. Nobody dancing seemed to mind, however, as the designated dance space remained an over-crowded, undulating, mass of human flesh during the bands sets and breaks.

The night passed quickly and relatively smoothly. Beer lines were kept short, thanks to exceptional service from behind the counter. The bouncers earned their pay by tossing out a few persons who had partaken excessively in alcohol consumption. The "Boys in Blue" also proved their worth when six over-enthusiastic individuals turned the parking lot into a boxing ring. Those gentlemen's zealous actions won them free chauffeur service and accommodations for the night. Ignoring that altercation, and perhaps the morning-after ill effects, most people who attended Beerfest '83 would agree it was a huge success.
