EDITOR'S NOTE

WELCOME BACK

Now comes the most exciting time of the paper because I get to air my thoughts and views on various things. These range from NAITSA to the making of a proper banana split.

I didn't want to jump into anything extremely mind boggling in your first week. Therefore, I would rather go the easy way out and first introduce the other Nugget staff and your NAITSA executive.

My name is Derrick Courtney and I am the Editor of this paper. I am also a second year Finance student. Ian Robertson, is my Assistant Editor, and is probably my best and most reliable person. Ian is a second year EDDT student. Chris Vala is my great looking Typesetter who is a second year Accounting student. Lesia Rys, also a Typesetter, is very enthusiastic and bubbly and is a second year Administrative Management student. Greg Scherf is an extremely dark, tall and mysterious Sports Editor who is also a second year Admin. Man. student. Marlene Davis, that giggly, smiling, puppydog-eyed girl, is my Entertainment Editor who will party with anybody. Marlene is a second year Marketing student. This is my staff and to them I have to say, "may this year be the best of your life and have fun."

On the NAITSA team, we have Debra Nykilchuk as the first woman President of NAITSA. Good luck, Deb, you have our support. Her right hand man (so to speak), is Mike Frederick, our honorable Vice-President. My boss (Publications Chairperson), Trish Clooney, is a mean tyrant who locks us in closets and the Nugget office. She only gives us milk and that awful cafeteria food. Then we have Jody Herbert. Jody is our Treasurer who really doesn't like to give us our paychecks until the very last second. Of course, we don't want to forget Kerry Bierkos (as if anybody could), he is our Activities Chairman and he gives us a good time. Our local jock (jockey) is Robyn Lee, our Basketball star turned Athletics Chairperson. Last, but not least, is Denine Ritchie, our Secretary who definitely lets her fingers do the walking.

I know that this humor is kinda dry, but what do you expect from the first editorial. Gimme a break!

As you all know by now, the Nugget needs some help. We have several positions left. Anywhere from helping with Sports and Entertainment (free cabarets), to Production Assistant ($45/mon.). So, come on out, we could always use another pair of hands.

Also, don't forget that poor Trish needs lots of help on the Yearbook. These are paid positions and only take about 4-5 hours per week and you get to laugh at all those stupid mug shots that we take. Also, we need someone who can take pictures and develop them, all the equipment is here for you to use.

Chow for now and see ya at the first Rock and Talk.

The "NUGGET" is the student paper of the Northern Alberta Institute of Technology. It is published on a weekly basis during the school year, September to May. Excluding editorials, articles do not necessarily reflect the views and opinions of the Nugget staff. Contributions from students are welcomed. Submission deadline is Monday at 4:30 for Thursday's issue.

The Nugget is located at E 128. Phone 427-9187 or Grey Phone number 423.

GRANTS AVAILABLE FOR ENVIRONMENTAL RESEARCH

Who May Apply?

Any person, institution, corporation or society may request research funds. The Trust endeavours to apportion its funds equally between public institutions such as universities and the private sector such as industries or individuals.

Joint funding with industries or individuals is of considerable interest to the Board of Trustees.

Any logical proposal will receive consideration, such as: • Environmental problems related to human behaviour • Social, Cultural, and Management Issues • Cost/Benefit Analysis of Environmental Impacts • Energy resource development and the environment • Problems of the natural environment • Urban & Rural pollution control and any other related concerns.

Deadline for submission of application for grants is October 30, 1983. Early submission is advised. All applications are reviewed upon receipt by the Grants Advisory Committee. Applicants will be notified as to the Board of Trustees' decision by February 1, 1984. Research projects should be planned to start after this date.

Please address all inquiries and correspondence to:

PLAY REVIEW

Laundry and Bourbon

Laundry and Bourbon, a play by James McLure, captured the mediocrity of reality and the human tendency towards reminiscence. Darlene Bradley, as Elizabeth, gave a very fine interpretation of one who has held on to the past in hopes of finding her idealistic future. As the play opens, Elizabeth is seen gazing down the road, searching for, as we will find out later, her husband's pink Thunderbird convertible. Her friend Hattie, Lorraine Behnan, interrupts this reverie. Hattie is a very lovable character, sporting a pronounced southern personality. She enters the scene with incessant chatter, and immediately captures the limelight. Her exuberance greatly overpowers Elizabeth's wistfulness. The two women sit down to some serious bourbon, and some not-so-serious chatter of children, husbands, and laundry. They set the comic mood befitting such a mundane, stereotypical small town life. The highlight of the afternoon seems to be outguessing the contestant on "Let's Make a Deal". The show itself is a rerun, which seems to illustrate the repetitious pattern of their lives. While sorting through the laundry, Elizabeth finds one of her husband's old shirts, which brings back highschool memories.

As the women continue to drink, strong emotions begin to emerge, via the alcohol escapism route. Elizabeth confides that her husband Roy, a vietnam veteran, has been gone for two days. She tells of his recurring nightmares, and inability to find work. His disappearance is not uncommon, however, as he had run off before, and spent his time gambling and chasing women. Elizabeth accepts this fact, by suggesting that his carousing in some way is beneficial to purging his happiness. In his high school days, Roy was the town rebel. His car gave him a feeling of power. It appears that he never outgrew this adolescent image of himself, but chose to cling to its security through adulthood. Elizabeth believed that she and Hattie were special, and herself different from Roy's other highschool lovers. The practical aspect of Hattie's personality begins to truly emerge at this point. She challenges Elizabeth's idea of their supremacy. She acknowledges the fact that she was jilted by her boyfriend after graduation, and as a result she entered a practical, though unromantic marriage. Elizabeth, however, refuses to let the romantic days of youth escape her, and continues to view her relationship with Roy as a highly exciting affair, with all the thrill of young love. Her despondency, on this day, is due to the dissonance caused by her newly discovered pregnancy. The reality of this event breaks through her delusion, into the core of her understanding. She is shocked into facing the fact that she is pregnant, and the father of her baby is unemployed, unfaithful, and unable to face up to life. Hattie, once again brings the audience close into their lives, by introducing reality as an identifiable element in the play. This is accomplished by a simple telephone conversation with her children, highlighting the day-to-day domestic trivialities. The mediocrity of Hattie's world serves as a shocking contrast to Elizabeth's sentimental existence, which remains suspended in reality.

Societal politics come into play, as we learn of the "Bridge Club Feud" between the Country Club and the uneligible bridge players in the town. The character of Amy Lee, played by Marie Gynane is introduced as the town busybody. She is a member of the Country Club, Baptist Church, and appears to be involved in every other imaginable event as well. Hattie dislikes Amy Lee, which may be partly due to jealousy. Amy Lee, like Hattie, married for practical purposes. But unlike Hattie, Amy Lee married into money. Amy Lee enters Elizabeth's house with the excuse of bringing over an air conditioner filter. Resentment hangs thick between Hattie and Amy Lee, leaving Elizabeth to drift in and out of her own world. Conversation moves along simple lines, with Amy Lee issuing a charity sales pitch, and managing to convince the two women to attend a church supper.

Although Amy Lee feigns reluctance to drink, soon the three women are becoming quite drunk and foolishly giddy. Amy Lee begins to discuss town gossip concerning a pregnant woman whose husband has run off. Elizabeth jumps to the defense, as she surely sympathizes with the young woman's situation. The other woman's plight may bring the truth of her situation into a more frightening prospective.

When Hattie leaves the scene for a moment, Amy Lee takes the opportunity to explain the real reason for her visit. She had seen Roy, in the city, with another woman. Elizabeth rises to the situation, however, and offers a perfectly viable excuse for this occurrence. Hattie returns, and Amy Lee continues to blather about the divorce rate and rampant infidelity in their town of Maynard. Amy Lee announces that bridge, which took Hattie a year to learn, is going out of style, to be replaced by a more complex Chinese game. At this point, Hattie is faced with, what she considers, a monumental crisis in her life. Hattie's reaction to this trivial matter, again exemplifies her simplicity, and her unquestioned acceptance of this state. A physical fight ensues between Hattie and Amy Lee. Amy Lee becomes sick from the alcohol she has consumed, and leaves in embarrassment. Hattie also leaves, and Elizabeth sits down, alone, to admire the beautiful sunset. The scene ends as it had begun, with Elizabeth staring dreamily, reminiscing of the past, and seeking excuses for the present.

Reaction to the play, from the audience, was highly favorable. In my opinion, in Laundry and Bourbon, Amy Lee provided the basic stereotyped character to add comedy. Hattie served as a comic, but still identifiable portrayal of an average person, leading an average life, in an average way. Elizabeth personified that part of all of us, which hungers for our ideal self, but is trapped by the oblivion caused by a reluctant acceptance of life as it is.

NUGGET SPORTS

SPORTS EDITORIAL

Well, as the saying goes, welcome to NAIT. For you first year students and you uniformal second year students, sports can be a part of your experience here at NAIT without attending your courses. Very soon (TOMORROW) there will be tryouts for several school teams and intermurals will start in a week. Physical and leisure education class registration will take place then. This is NAIT's physical triple threat; school teams, intramurals and P.L.E.

If you want to join a school team look up the notices in the sports section in this and other issues. Before each tryout date, the Nugget Sports will place an ad or notice for those interested in helping me cover the school teams, drop by the Nugget Office and talk to me.

Next is intermurals. Intermurals are very popular here at NAIT and unfortunately they start very early. For you first year students the best bet is to make teams from your own classes and make them soon. This week and every weeks intermurals deadline list will be in the Nugget Sports for all to see. Intermural scores will be listed and final standings will be posted.

Finally, P.L.E. registration will happen one week on into September. For this you will choose P.L.E. courses which fit into your timetable. There will be a master list outside the main gym doors. Needless to say it is important to get there early for registration in order to get the courses you want.

Before I sign off, I want to stress how easy it is to get involved in NAIT's triple threat. Team sports range from golf & canoeing to volleyball & basketball. There is a sport for almost everyone at NAIT. Intermurals take only one or two nights a week and mainly are just for fun. Lastly, P.L.E. courses will only be one hour per week from your school day and will help you learn new sports. So, as you can see, it isn't hard to join in.

My first and Last Rerun

Forchuk and Remington, move over!! The powers that be have decided to offer me (actually, I asked to have) the job of "Television Reviewer" for the NAIT Nugget. My purpose this week is to answer the questions "Why do we need a TV reviewer?" and "What qualifications does this guy have?"

To answer the former: Now that you're studying 10 hours a day (25 for Computer Systems and Electronics), you need to manage your spare time effectively. If you're foolish enough to waste that time watching the boob tube, you'll need some guidance as to which shows are more conducive to killing time and your intelligence. You must follow the experience of a true videoit; you need the suggestions of a tele-visually-brainwashed TV reviewer.

TV AND ME

Vernon R.J. Schmid

NEXT WEEK: Alan's in the Thicke of things....

That is where my qualifications lie. I have averaged as much as 112 hours of television per week -- and that was while attending University. I have vast personal experience as to the best way to fail secondary school courses whilst simultaneously getting my "Have Seen All Reruns of M*A*S*H Twenty Times" decoration.

Hopefully, none of you will repeat my obvious mistakes (I failed University twice -- I wonder why?). If, by some fluke of genetic mutation, you can do completely without television, more power to you. If, however, you're like me -- you need some amount of mindlessness when you're conscious each night -- then keep your eye out for this column. With some suggestions on my part and sensible viewing and hard work on our parts, we'll survive and pass this year at NAIT (nuclear holocausts and economic depressions notwithstanding).

ADMIN MAN

Look! Down the corridor! It's a student! It's a teacher! It's the janitor! No! It's .... Admin Man!! Fighting to uphold truth, justice, and the NAIT way of life.

PART 1 : The Orgin of Admin Man

Dave Sawchuk was the average son of average parents from an average town. Dave decided to break that vicious circle and chose NAIT over University. He chose Business Administration, planning to specialize in Administrative Management. Things were going fine until he saw some BCET students being picked on by some of the male dental assistants. Being the conscientious sucker he was, he took after the dental assistants and chased them down the hall to the science wing. The D.A.'s ducked into the lab. Dave followed close behind. As Dave entered, he was greeted by a barrage of chemicals. Undaunted, Dave continued after the D.A.'s. They ran out of the lab and down the hall towards the medical wing with Dave dripping with chemicals in hot pursuit. When Dave rounded the last corner; the D.A.'s were not in sight. Dave who was just a tad pissed off, started to tear through the rooms. As Dave threw aside the last table in the first room, he heard a noise coming from the x-ray room. Dave was there in a flash to investigate. Cautiously he tore open the door. Dave felt a sharp blow and crumpled to the floor.

Worried that they may have fractured Dave's skull, the D.A.'s took two x-rays, each three minutes long. Unable to understand anything but dental x-rays, they gave up and left Dave in the x-ray machine.

Sometime later Dave struggled to his feet and staggered out of NAIT, and made his way home.

When Dave got to his apartment, he discovered that he had lost his key. Frustrated, he punched the door and much to his surprise, the door and frame shattered. Surveying the damage he made his way to the couch where he fell asleep. Dave slept a little; he tossed fitfully as his mind went over and over the one question. Would he get his damage deposit back?

Upon waking Dave showered himself of the chemicals and then made himself breakfast after he dried off.

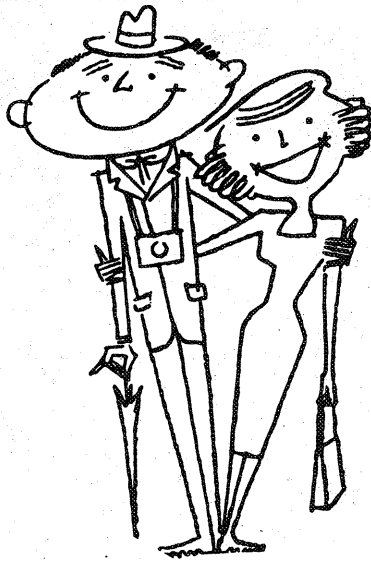

As he thought of yesterday's incident he began to squeeze the glass sugar shaker. Suddenly the shaker shattered in his hand.

"Damn cheap glass shakers", he muttered under his breath as he ran to the sink to wash his bloody hand.

After he washed the blood and the glass off, he looked for cuts. He could neither see nor feel anything. There was no pain from his cuts, then it hit him. The CHEMICALS! The x-ray machine, the door, the glass shaker. It all added up. Dave realized that he had superhuman powers. An inspiration hit him.

He would call himself Admin Man after his chosen occupation.

Dear Mom & Dad

Dear Mom and Dad:

There is this girl I really like, but the problem is that I want to have sex with her. Should I push myself on her without further discussion? I really respect her very much, but feel rather awkward talking to her about this. How do I approach the subject?

Signed: Confused about Love

Dear Confused:

Be delicate, but direct. This is one subject that needs to be talked about. Tell her what you feel and ask the same of her. Expressing your feelings and talking won't hurt her, but not talking just might.

Love Mom and Dad

Are you lonely? Depressed? Do you have any problems, or do you just need to blow off a little steam? If you are feeling any of the above and you don't have a particular friend to turn to, tell the two people you know you can trust - your Mom and Dad - you know they'll always have the right answers for you!

Dear Mom and Dad:

I am 18 years old and now I feel that I am not getting the freedoms that I deserve without hurting my parents' feelings. Could you tell me which way to handle this properly.

Signed: Locked in my room

Dear Locked:

There is nothing disrespectful in asking your parents to sit down and talk with you in order that you can explain why you feel that you deserve to have your restrictions lifted. If you are mature in handling this conversation, the possibility of you and your parents reaching a compromise is much greater.

Good Luck

Love Mom and Dad

Dear Mom and Dad

I am 20 years old and have a very embarrassing problem and I don't know where to turn. You see, I still wet my bed at night. Do you have any suggestions on how I can rid myself of this problem?

Signed: Bladder on the Blink

Dear Blink:

Of course our first suggestion will be to see a doctor because obviously you have a physical problem. In the meantime, it might be a good idea to see a shrink, because your bedwetting might be related to some psychological problem that you might have.

Is this what they're referring to when they say there's a leak in the organization?

Love Mom and Dad

Dear Mom and Dad:

I like to go out and have a good time, but I'm in school now and am having a difficult time financing my "activities". Do you know how I could get my hands on a little extra cash?

Signed: No Dough, No Show

Dear No Dough:

You could try to get a part-time job that wouldn't get in the way of school, but would provide you with enough funds to finance your "extra curricular activities". The first notions that come to mind are probably things like knocking off the neighborhood all-night fast food joint or dropping by one of your more exclusive areas [such as 97th] and picking up any leftovers. Our advice would be to arrange to do some "odd" jobs, but not that odd! e.g. type papers for other students [kinda boring, but what can you do?] These points should give you a head start on how to supply yourself with extra funds.

Love Mom and Dad

IDLE CHATTER;

Harde Nox stared out his dingy apartment window at the red morning sun. The sun was not at all that red this morning. Harde had been up almost all night worrying. There was much for him to worry about. There was his girlfriends constant affairs and registration at NAIT was this morning. Tiredly, he turned to glance at his clock 6:07 a.m.

"Time to get going," he thought as he dragged himself to the kitchen. The choice was more than ample: wheaties, wheaties or wheaties.

"f#&?ing flour bugs again," he muttered halfway through his breakfast, "management doesn't do any crap around here."

"Joanne.... Why does she do this to me?," he thought. "There was george, the little faggot. All she saw in him was his brown bills; all he saw in her was the opportunity to look normal." Out of all the men Joanne used to cheat on him with, Harde hated George the most. Not because of the way she flaunted the affair in his face, but because she chose a homosexual to do it with.

The hatred grew more intense the longer he thought about it.

"I can still hear that wimp now. we had just a marvy time at Flashbacks last night. There was this guy that had a smashing outfit on. You know, I've got to get one just like it. Yeah, she thought everything was going so well up until Georgie-pooch met Bruce, the gay kick boxer from 124th Street Gym." Harde kept thinking about more affairs. There was Paul, Kirk, Francious, and Jane. Joanne definately had a wide variety of tastes.

"Holy shit!!", exclaimed Harde as he glanced at his watch. It was almost 8:15. "I'm gonna be late for registration!"

As he ran to the bedroom to get dressed, Harde ran out his foot got stuck on something warm and soft.

"Aw shit", he yelled, "You dumb cat. You're dead when I get back. After cleaning up and getting dressed, Harde ran out to the bus stop. There was a squeal of tires and a flash of pain as Harde was struck by a car.

"Oh no!" cried the driver as he jumped out of his car.

"Help, somebody call an ambulance!"

Through a fog of diffused pain, Harde could hear the police arrive. Suddenly he was being put in a stretcher. He could hear a passerby talk to a policeman.

"How is he, will he live?"

"The paramedic says he's in rough shape, but he should pull through."

continued next week.....

VIRGO

VIRGO

This is your month! Look out for number one, but be kind to others ESPECIALLY those of the opposite genger! You can never tell what'll happen. You may meet the person of your dreams and at first think UGH! And later on they'll turn out to be the ideal person in your life.

This being your month also means taking care of those minor ailments that you've neglected until now, physicaly and emotionally.

In the romance department those born in this month should be very lucky, whether you're trying to start up a relationship whith that someone special, amend an argument them, or possibly find the "Person of your dreams".

However, in the financial department, be very careful when investing, especially in regards to speculative ventures(Next year is the year to invest; wisely).

In the job department, it is best to be in the line of work that would eventually lead to your specific career. If your in Marketing, I would suggest that you sell either your body or some form of Christmas cards. If you're in Finance, I would suggest you knock off your local bank and practice rolling quarters until your eyes are red and raw.

If you're in Photography, I think you should apply for the Photography Co-ordinater and earn big BUCKS. If this fails, who cares.

All in all, it should be an excellent and exciting month for you. GOOD LUCK!!!
