Remembrance Day

IN FLANDERS FIELD

By John McRae

*In Flanders Field the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place; and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing, fly,
Scarce heard amid the guns below.*

*We are the Dead. Short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved and now we lie
in Flanders fields.*

*Take up our Quarrel with the foe;
To you from failing we throw
The torch; be yours to hold it high
If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders Fields.*

The Military cemetery on 107 ave. in Edmonton

This coming Sunday is Remembrance Day. This is a time when the people of Canada honor the Canadians who died in World War One, World War Two, and the Korean War. On every November 11, the war dead are honored by people wearing the red poppy of Flanders Fields, and through parades and memorials.

Remembrance Day began after World War One. On the 11th hour, of the 11th day of the 11th month of 1918, the armistice was signed to end World War One. From that day, until 1930, November 11 was known as Armistice Day. But in 1931, the name was changed to Remembrance Day to honor the war dead. War dead are also remembered in many other countries throughout the world. In the United States, November 11 is known as Veterans Day, and in Great Britain and France, November 11 is known as Armistice Day.

Remembrance Day is a time that the war dead must be remembered. However, it should also be remembered for another thing: The mistakes that man has made and to hope that these mistakes never occur again.

MEMORIES OF FUTURE PAST

I hope everyone will notice that this week we have put a theme on our issue. In case it is not obvious, the theme is Remembrance Day. To comply with this topic, we've asked some of our regular contributors to supplement their regular articles with their thoughts about November 11. The motivation behind this was to prompt our readers to think, at least briefly, about this annual day of mourning. Here are my thoughts surrounding the eleventh hour.

Remembrance Day has always been significant to me. I was first made aware of it back in elementary school. Back then, I used to draw pictures of shattered G.I. helmets propped on white crosses. These were conjured from the memories of such scenes from a past visit to the Philippines. As I got older, I started to grasp the history and significance behind this day. There were wars in Europe in which we were the good guys. Many of the good guys were killed in these wars. It was simplistic view, but nonetheless more pertinent. Today, Remembrance Day is a day of reflection, but as well, it is a day of fleeting apprehension. Perhaps the fear is valid, hopefully it is not.

My personal worry takes root in a proverb which states "those who do not learn from the past are doomed to repeat it." As I examine the present world situation, I realize many haven't learned. Anyone just needs to observe the present doomsday weapon arsenals to see that it is so. Couple this with the recent crisis in India, and the possibility of world war once again rears its ugly head. Like the proverb states, we could be doomed by our own ignorance to once again repeat global war.

So these are some images from my brain, conjured by the mention of Remembrance Day. Although the eleventh should be a day of mourning, it should also be a day to reflect upon what is occurring in the world around us. Hopefully through reflection we can achieve understanding; through understanding, tolerance; and through tolerance the aversion of crisis. The casualties and suffering from the past cannot have been all for naught. (Exit stage left to the mournful strains of taps).

REMEMBRANCE DAY DAY WHAT IS IT?

November 11 is a day that will forever have a meaning to war veterans on this side of the world. But, what does it mean to you and, what should it mean to you?

I'm tempted to believe that since it means a Monday off of school, a long weekend is all that results for Remembrance day. Perhaps if you'd open your eyes just a little, this year's Remembrance day will mean more to you.

Remembrance day, as you should know, is a day in which we remember our war dead and a day in which hopefully we remember our past mistakes. I'm sure you're now wondering "what can I do to have an effect on my countries potential future mistakes?"

What you can do is pay close attention to local and international news. This education will help you decide on voting day. As a case in point look at Tuesday's U.S. Presidential election. The American public has the choice of Democrat Walter and Republican Ronald Reagan. A vote for Walter Mondale would mean a vote for social welfare programs and a woman as Vice-President. On the other hand a vote for Ronald Reagan would mean a vote for big business tax breaks, less government spending for the needy, a real "merican" as President and a healthy supply of ignorant attitudes and nuclear warheads that have brought us closer than ever to destruction. If the American public was really aware of the threat that Ronald Reagan poses to humanity, would so many have voted for him? I would like to think not. Surely Americans aren't really that foolish.

So you see, you can play a part in deciding your country's fate. Choose leaders who genuinely care about everyday people, not just about "Old Hollywood Buddies". On Monday, don't just look at all of the old men standing around the monuments and wonder why they're so upset. If in the event of conventional war, it will be YOU and I going, not the old men. (Does anyone remember American college students during Vietnam?)

I was fortunate to have lived in Europe and I've seen signs of wars past thousands of times. Perhaps it takes the sight of endless rows of white crosses in endless cemeteries spread out across Europe for the awful reality of war to sink in, but, it is real. At least think about it. Our future is in our hands. Don't let a 73 year old man with his life behind him take away our chances. I think we'll remember.

Richard Russell.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Mr. O'Neill;

I think perhaps you are leading an extremely boring life, at least between Oct. 31 and Nov. 1 of each year. A time of year you have yet to appreciate. This day to me is also of great significance. Mainly, because I have the most fun this time of year, yes - even more fun than Christmas! Also, because it is your mother's birthday, Happy Belated Birthday Mrs. O'Neill.

Back to the topic at hand. First of all, you should never be forced to dress up. If you don't want to, don't. Stay at home with those other hum-drum, insecure, party-poopers. It's your loss, and our gain that you're not there to ruin a terrific party. What other time of year do you get to put your shoes in someone else's, let your imagination run wild, & yes it's true - have a good time! Fun is only what you make it.

Self-innovation costumes are the best Sean. The more unique the better. If you don't think your friends will recognize what you're going to be, let them know in advance! Avoid the embarrassment.

Speaking of avoidance, if those black, vulcanized rubber candies (commonly called Halloween Kisses) are so atrocious, don't buy them! There are numerous other "Halloween Edibles" out on the market. Why limit yourself to something that truly bothers you? Someone out there must like them, or they wouldn't be selling, now would they??

All in all, I'm glad you are trying to enjoy Halloween. Being from "rural" Alberta, of course, good times like these, only get better. Remember Sean, as long as you're my friend (which probably isn't much longer) Halloween will always come & go, along with my continual nagging to dress up and have a good time. You will soon anticipate the arrival of October 31.

Also, I truly am sorry you were ill on Halloween and perhaps this attack on you was not entirely fair - but perhaps some insight to other Anti-Halloweeners. I do still respect you the other 364 days of the year. By the way, Peter Pumpkin really says: "You can do foolish things, but do them with enthusiasm."

Lovingly,
Your "Pest" Friend.

Dear Editor,

Could you please forward this letter to 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue.

Dear Ronny,

We as a people have faith in education because we know that ignorance has always been an enemy of the people. This is doubly so in your relationship with the Soviet Union, Nicaragua, Cuba and until recently Grenada, and any other country that is not under your economic control, (reference to Monroe Doctrine). You should apply yourself to this matter, and act with thoroughness and determination. Whatever the specific nature of a problem might be at any given time, the greatest thing you have to fear about any sovereign state is your ignorance about them.

Such are some of the factors and forces that are against us (world citizens) in our efforts to build peace. We must move forward to the idea that unity among the big powers through use and support of the U.N. must take precedence over regional or cultural blocs as a basic strategy in policy making. We should do this not so that the big powers can dictate to the small nations, but to keep the peace among the big powers. We should appease no one, and pillory no one. And Ronny, if you want to be a moral leader, you should be something more than a tough guy.

Stop flirting with fascism and stop acting as if any king getting back on a throne is a great triumph for the free world, while any king getting off a throne is a great defeat for us. Your idea that now that the shooting is over, the Right is your long-lost brother, and the Left is persona non grata is ludicrous. You have to realize that it is just as stupid to imply that Rightism is compatible with a free world as it is to claim that Leftism is compatible with the free world.

Ideologies must be taken seriously and studied carefully. We as a whole are beginning to do this because we realize the fact that 90 per cent of all ideological statements which appear in the media are emotional and rhetorical. They're not grounded on accurate or thorough study.

We need clear thinking about world government, especially in relation to the United Nations. In my opinion, no sensible person should be opposed to a World Government as a goal. The idea of one government for the whole world is not a new one. It has been held by various thinkers and different schools of thought for some time. Any time it becomes reality, the world will have taken a long step forward.

B.M.

Dear Editor;

I am writing in response to last week's letter from a disgruntled first year EET student. I'm in the second year of the course and I have some comments about that letter and the rest of NAIT as to the extensiveness of our course.

In my opinion and others as well, the person who wrote last week's letter stands to be corrected on a few things. Firstly the course EET 151 should not be re-evaluated. Last year we thought the same thing, but as we later found out that material is in fact the basis for a large part of electronics. Secondly U of A students are going to be after different jobs than us, so we should not have to worry about job competition with them. I've talked to company representatives and they say that NAIT students are highly recommended because of the time we spend in the lab (400 hrs in the 1st year alone). Lastly there were 160 students who started last year and 120 made it to the second year, that's a 25 percent drop out rate. This is still a high figure but the program heads are making it harder to enter each year, in an effort to filter out the 25 percent of the people that do actually drop out.

A few things that I would like to mention to the first year EET students (and anyone else interested in how tough our course actually is) are as follows:

1) If you thought the first quarter was tough it doesn't get any easier. In the second quarter you have to start creating your own formulas, some that are a page wide (EET 252). And a lot of the learning comes on your own. In the 3rd quarter you're introduced to something called DIGITAL. This has very little to do with any of the other courses and is very hard to understand. (3 people in my class passed the final test).

2) You first years' have to create good study habits. This includes time management and setting your priorities straight. If you thought doing homework for 3-4 hours a night every night is too much, it's standard. In fact it's all uphill from there. About a month ago when our midterms rolled around we had 4 tests and three assignments do in a matter of six days. On one of those weeks I was up until 2:30 - 3:00 every night. Putting in up to eight hours of studying in one night.

All in all we do enjoy the course, I figure that something is worth a lot more if you put a lot of work into it.

Dear Editor:

We, the second year EET students are writing in response to the letter you published last week from the first year EET student.

As well seasoned veteran students, maybe we can give you some advice.

1) We feel that you are in no position to be making comments pertaining to re-evaluation of any EET courses as a virgin NAIT student.

2) There is no direct comparison between a NAIT student in EET and a U of A student in Electrical Engineering. The EET course is about 65 percent practical and 35 percent theory whereas, the University course is 30 percent practical and 70 percent theory. Statistically there are more employment opportunities for NAIT EET students than for U of A Electrical Engineering students.

3) There is a 25 percent reduction in EET students by the end of the first year. 12.5 percent drop out due to financial problems. 8 percent drop out because of course misinterpretation and the remaining 4.5 percent drop out (or are asked to leave) because of "poor performance."

Enough of the formalities and statistics.

Listen son, if you can't handle 151 then take a walk because the first quarter is a joke compared to what's coming. Everybody's averages drop considerably in the second quarter. If you want to cut the course then you'll have to kiss your social life goodbye. This isn't high school punk, this is the real world. At NAIT it's dog eat dog. Do you think the department head (Mr. Botsford) doesn't know what he's doing setting up the course as he did? He's the guy who put the NAIT EET course on the map.

Feel free to ask for our advice anytime.

Nugget Editor:

I have just read the 2nd letter written by a first year EET student. I wish I would have caught the first one. I am in second year EET and have a few things to say.

Having completed 1st year Engineering at the U of A, I am aware of the relative differences betwixt Nait and the above. I was shocked in our common Eng. class when the Dean told us to look at the people sitting directly beside us, and then told us that one person of the three would not be back for second year. At the U of A as well as Nait, the high drop out rate is more often due to people discovering that a course is not quite their thing. If a course fascinates a person he can eat it up.

I was an honors student in first year, yet in the second week of EET 151 I asked the instructor what "BAS" was, a buzzword used from day one.

Furthermore, I don't know of a second year student who at some point or another wishes that the worst of his/her problems was 151. By the time you hit third quarter you'll wonder what you were complaining about.

To quote an ex-prof from the U, "If you can't stand the heat of the fire, get out of the kitchen."

I'd like to say that the instruction staff at Nait are available a lot of the day for questions. I also believe that in class there is no such thing as a "Stupid Question." If you miss something, ask! If your instructor is worth his wage he'll either answer you or arrange to talk to you later. The pace doesn't slow down, it speeds up. So, Mr. Name withheld by request, I suggest you stay on top of it. It's sink or swim, Billy Splash!

THE AGE OF M.A.D.NESS

Nuclear war. A topic that is very well known. Missiles that can move at 15,000 miles an hour, and enough nuclear warheads to destroy the human race many times over. A rather horrifying thought, isn't it. With nuclear arms control talks at a standstill, and east-west relations being cold, the threat of war could be high.

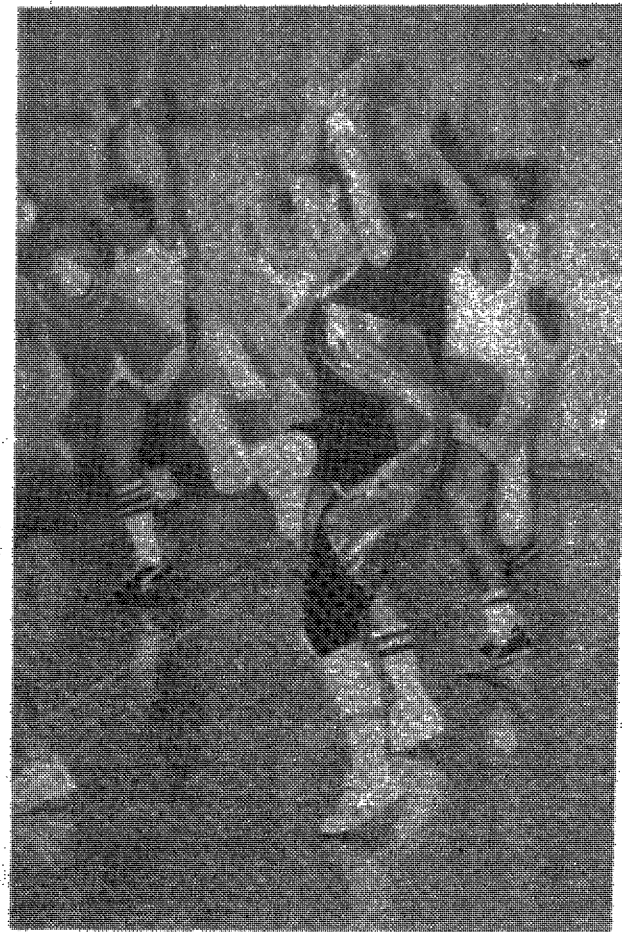

That's right, I said could be high. The presence of nuclear weapons could destroy mankind, or they could prevent a war. It is assured that if one side launches it's weapons, the other side will launch it's weapons and that would be the end of mankind. But why would one side launch it's weapons if it will be completely destroyed? That's suicide. This concept is called Mutually Assured Destruction. If one side attacks, both sides will be destroyed and the attacker will gain nothing. That makes it absolutely useless to fight with nothing to gain and everything to lose.

So why are there nuclear weapons if there is a chance that they may not be used. Well, if one side had the advantage in conventional weapons, and if there were no nuclear weapons, there would be a good chance of that side taking over the other. However, with nuclear weapons, each side has about the same amount of power. With a balance of power that could keep each side from trying something crazy.

Even with almost equally powerful sides, the threat of nuclear war does not disappear. If any crazies who want to rule the world, possess nuclear weapons, it could be curtains for the world. What if one side develops technology to render the other side's weapons useless. Then one side would be destroyed, and the situation in the Middle-East is not stable, and if some of those countries have nuclear weapons, the results could be tragic. These are definately some strong points against having nuclear weapons, and they are very hard to dispute. With nuclear weapons there will always be a chance that they will be used.

Nuclear war is perceived by most people as one of the most important, and probably the most dangerous issue of today. And how can you blame anyone of being afraid of what could happen. I think that it is unlikely that war will happen, and I hope I'm right. But until the world learns to live in peace, if that day ever comes, the world will live in fear.

THE NUGGET'S FAVORITE NAIT INSTRUCTOR TURNS 40 ON NOVEMBER 11. HAPPY BIRTHDAY JACK.

Dear Jack:

You truly do not look your age
And we will never tell
That you are 40 and o'er the hill
You sure do hide it well,
You used to think excitement was
Dancing, girls, and booze
Now you have a glass of milk
Watch Hill Street Blues and snooze,
Should your wife begin to worry
When your eyes begin to stray
And you admire the cute NAIT girls
She'll know there's just no way,
And when your waistline thickens
And your bones begin to creak
And what you used to do all night
Is too much once a week,
Remember - life begins at 40
So please don't feel too blue
You may find that you are slowing down
But most of your friends are too,
So if you think life's over
It's really just begun
Just get out the good old Geritol
And really have some fun!

From the Under 40 Crowd.

Age is just mind over matter;

If you don't mind, it doesn't matter.

NICK'S PICKS

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE RELIEF FROM

PROVINCE NOW ESSENTIAL

Alberta Liberal Leader Nick Taylor today repeated his position that the Government of Alberta act to alleviate the unacceptable practice of mortgage foreclosures in the province. He expressed regret that the Legislature has ignored the question in its current do-nothing pose.

Taylor observed that the Alberta foreclosure rate has reached epidemic proportions and that the province has stood by while the savings and lives of families are being shattered and the urban housing market has collapsed.

"When I see data showing that Alberta has 20 times the number of foreclosures of any other province, I must conclude that the Government's lack of action reflects both its ignorance and heartlessness," charges Taylor.

"Alberta has been the most active government in Canada in subsidizing housing starts and purchases. An Economic Council research paper has assembled statistics showing that 21 percent of housing starts in Alberta were provincially-aided between 1971 and 1981. This intervention is 30 percent greater than the next most active government of 'Socialist' Saskatchewan and overwhelms the impact of subsidies by other provinces."

"Provincial government subsidies created a great deal of the over-supply of housing, and thus encouraged the exposure of Alberta families to the current credit crisis. The Government is morally as well as economically responsible," argues Taylor.

"The Province should pick up the pieces of an industry it helped to topple -- and this applies to its intervention in credit markets through Alberta Housing and its promotion of a large construction industry. Alberta Housing should be wound down as a subsidizer and stopped as a foreclosure machine."

"The solution lies in keeping people in their houses and on their farms," explains Taylor. Alberta has on its books numerous laws dating back to the Territorial period and developed in the 1920's and 30's which would shield mortgagors from overly-aggressive financiers. A Liberal Party research paper released in July indicates that the means for provincial intervention on behalf of mortgagors - rural and urban - is still there. Debt postponement and re-scheduling should stabilize the market as well as assist individuals until and when they are in position to reschedule or recommence their payments and obligations.

"Housing and farming are long-term assets which should be financed by long-term credit and long term income", Taylor notes. "In addition to withdrawing from the housing industry and instituting debt adjustment, the province could also implement other creative measures such as indexed mortgages (by which payments are tied to a real rate of interest plus fluctuations in income and inflation)." The Alberta Liberal Leader states that Albertans who now hesitate to enter the market due to their suspicions about credit practices and wobbly house prices would be encouraged by a stable situation. "Buyers would in turn encourage new construction that the market and not the Alberta Housing Minister created."

"Two short-term decisions are needed," Taylor concludes. "One, the province must get out of the subsidization of interest rates as well as abandon the foreclosure racket. Two, the government should respect its own laws and reactivate debt-adjustment boards to reschedule mortgage payments."

BRETT'S SNOW

There have been certain dates & times throughout history that we will remember - and rightly so - as very dark & gloomy days. For on these days millions of very good people have gone too their deaths, fighting in one war or another. In most cases, they never had any thing against each other it was just that they were put in a kill or be killed situation. The fact that they had not chosen to start a war was of little importance; The fact that they were at war was what mattered. These people were fighting for something they believed in, their country & a lot of them were killed for it.

People's relatives & loved one's have been dying in wars for year's, & in some place in the world still are. Yet the fact remains that very little good has been accomplished thru war. Granted, there have been some very good reasons for war, like stopping Hitler, But generally a lot of the bloodshed could have been avoided. Canadians have been dying for their country for years, just the same as Yankees, Britians, French & a host of other nationalities. Most of those people died proud that they were doing their best for their country. Yet look around, racial tensions are at an all time high, the superpowers are planning on putting weapons in the heavens (as if there aren't enough already on the ground) & terrorism has reached epidemic proportions. Aside from technological advances, are we really any better off, than we were before these people gave their life.

It has been a long time since Canada has been at war, so a lot of us don't really know what it's like to endure the loss of loved one s. For this same reason there are also a lot of people to whom Remembrance Day means nothing more than a day off. These are people who are very lucky. For far too many families do grieve, not just on Nov. 11 but year round. So I urge all or you to at least consider the perils of war before you write Remembrance Day off as just a good reason for a day off!

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

There seems to be a bit of confusion about NAITSA, what it is and what it is supposed to do.

First, NAITSA "the word", is an acronym for the Northern Alberta Institute of Technology Students' Association. That's quite a mouthful.

Secondly, NAITSA has a set of bylaws and is registered under the Societies Act. NAITSA also has a seven member executive.

It is the day to day affairs of NAITSA that the Students' Executive deals with. Each member has his or her own jurisdiction. As President of NAITSA I have the responsibility to represent the students of NAIT on the various boards and committees I sit on. But it is still only the day to day affairs of NAITSA that are run by the Executive.

In addition to the Students' Executive there is a body called the Students' Council. This is made up of the Students' Executives and the Students Representatives, commonly known as Tech Reps. Also present in a non-voting capacity are the student members of the Board of Governors and of Academic Council. Any student who wishes to attend these meetings are more than welcome. However, they are not allowed to vote because they are already represented by their student Representative. These meetings are held once every second Tuesday in H5 (Little Theater) at 4:30.

So what, may you ask, does the Students' Council do during these meetings? Well, for starters, Students' Council passed a motion to allocate money to help build the new student area (without this support it never would have built), passed a motion so that the technologies can get a $500 loan from NAITSA on their first cabaret instead of the regular $300, passed a motion to eliminate mug shots from the yearbook, and passed a motion to increase security at large cabarets in the form of two policemen. Students' Council is also deciding upon a position regarding the academic year format change. And, by the time you read this, they may have passed a budget which deals with a revenue figure of $490,500. That is almost half a million dollars!

What I have mentioned so far is just the really important decisions and then only some of them. The problem is that out of approximately 50 eligible technologies, we only have 34 attend Students' Council. That is a mere 68 percent. If you want to know if you are getting your fair representation on the half million dollars NAITSA spends or on any other issues affecting students, come to the Students' Association offices at E133 and find out if your Student Representatives are attending Students' Council.

Remember the night you went to the show and ended up in Boston!

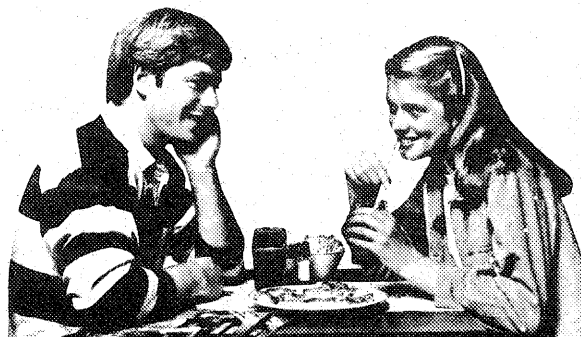

Some nights have a way of leaving us with delicious memories.

Seems that everyone has at least one, a special night with someone special. You went to a show, or a game or whatever and ended up in a nice restaurant. A great meal. A great time.

The restaurant could have been Boston Pizza. Maybe it was. Maybe it will be.

Tonight.

COMMERCIAL BAKING

TECHNOLOGY

Commercial Baking is a full time (40 week) program where basic and advanced skills necessary to the baking trade are learned.

We learn such things as the theory and related practical skills of cakemaking, cake decoration, pastymaking, and breadmaking.

Along with the theory and shopwork, we spend considerable time at sanitation, trade calculations, and basic business knowledge.

Products resulting from our shop training are utilized in the various cafeterias around the NAIT campus. They can usually be purchased at reasonable prices on weekday afternoons.

Students in our technology also enjoy extracurricular activities, and compete in intramural sports such as bowling, ping pong, canoeing, etc.

We, of the Commercial Baking program wish all other students best success in their chosen careers.

CHEAP THRILLS

Many suggestions for inexpensive fun have come to light over the past few days, none of which are expansive enough to merit a column of their own. I therefore present them here as a kind of mixed bag of Cheap Thrills:

OLD RECORD ALBUMS: A few minutes in an oven and that Danny Osmond LP you're embarrassed to own can be turned into a lovely candy dish, napkin rack, or sun hat. Let your imagination take wing!

CHICKEN BUCKETS: Bet the Colonel never thought of this one! Get some friends together for a game of chicken army. Use the buckets for helmets, the lids for shields, and an old chicken bone for a sword. Have at thee, Fowl knave!

MOM'S OLD BRASSIERE: Aside from the great possibilities for slingshots and purses, one fellow suggested dyeing them black, giving them to kids so that they can play Siamese rabbits!

Yes, when you think about it, this old world is just chuck full of thrifty fun. Isn't it just great to be alive?

THREE CHEERS FOR THE CBC

HESS
CBC 740 Radio
Broadcast Saturday, November 5

A couple of weeks ago I was extolling the virtues of the American public TV system, PBS. While the Americans have a fine record for good programming on this channel, let's not forget that Canada has equally good programming happening right under our noses - namely, the CBC.

A case in point was this Saturday's broadcast of Hess, the one man play about the Deputy Fuhrer of Nazi Germany Rudolph Hess. The play is a fascinating look at a man who has spent over forty years in Spandau prison for "Crimes against Humanity." Hess is very critical of the Allies who convicted him, claiming that it was the victors and not any neutral country that tried and convicted him and his colleagues. It is a shocking and unnerving look at the Nazi psyche, and an incredible insight into a side of the war most of us in the Allied nations never understood fully, nor perhaps wanted to.

It can be argued that the production of Hess came to us from the Fringe Festival, and before that from England where it was first performed. But PBS brings much of its programming in from the U.K. also, and furthermore, has no qualms about it. (Are you listening, Canadian Content Advocates?)

But whether the productions we see and hear on the CBC came from inside or outside our borders, it is of primary importance that our national radio and TV voice be allowed to continue to bring us the fine programming like Hess and others. There are already signs that the present government may cut CBC funding. In actual fact, it only costs the average Canadian seven dollars annually to keep the CBC going.

Let's not turn the volume down on Canada's loudspeaker of culture and excellence in broadcasting production.

MOVIE UPDATE

By Byron A. Martin

Terror in the Aisles

As the audience anxiously awaits for the movie to begin, they settle into their chairs eating popcorn. At last, the lights finally dim.

An eerie strain of music wends through the theatre. On screen, in the stillness of night, a lone figure tentatively walks down a deserted city street. Suddenly, a body leaps out from a doorway.

The audience screams in utter terror.

It isn't just any scream, however, but a very special one. A unique sound to movie houses. This is the scream of "Terror in the Aisles."

The movie is a tightly-knit interweaving of the best suspense, terror and horror films. Among the films seen in "Terror in the Aisles" are such classics as "Psycho", "Halloween", "Alien", "The Exorcist", "Jaws", "Wait Until Dark", "Carrie", "Poltergeist", "The Shining", "Midnight Express", and the ever controversial "The Texas Chainsaw Massacre". The film features appearances by many performers including Michael Caine, Bette Davis, Jack Nicholson, Jamie Lee Curtis, Sissy Spacek, Dustin Hoffman, Laurence Olivier, Jane Fonda and Sylvester Stallone.

However, "Terror in the Aisles" is not just a compilation of movie clips. From the beginning, the filmmakers wanted to do something different. To that end, the stars Donald Pleasence and Nancy Allen do not function as ordinary on-screen hosts but rather play characters within the movie -- characters who happen to narrate.

The Little Drummer Girl

The psychology of espionage, the intrigue of international politics and the consequences of expedient ethics are all brought vividly to the screen by filmmaker George Toy Hill in his major production of John le Carre's critically-acclaimed best-seller The Little Drummer Girl.

The screenplay was adapted by Loring Mandel, the picture stars Diane Keaton, Klaus Kinski, and Yorge Voyagis. Filmed in Europe and Israel, "The Little Drummer Girl" involves a vulnerable, aspiring actress who is recruited by Israeli counter-intelligence agents in order to capture a major Palestinian operative. In the process, she falls in love with the key Israeli operative in the master plan.

Utilizing familiar techniques of intelligence gathering by agents and double agents, as well as the briefing and debriefing that characterized his master spy Smiley books (The Spy Who Came In From The Cold, Honourable Schoolboy, Smiley's People, The Looking Glass War and the trilogy Tinker, Tailor, Sailor, Spy).

For the filmmakers, a high priority was placed on recapturing the reality, drama, and suspense which le Carre set forth in his book, which was no. 1 for 16 straight weeks on The New York Times Best-Seller list.

Under the direction of George Roy Hill, whose films include "The World According To Garp", "The Sting", "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid" and Kurt Vonnegut's "Slaughterhouse Five", "The Little Drummer Girl" will undoubtedly be as celebrated. Diane Keaton is excellent, as is Klaus Kinski.

Truly, for the first time in a long time a movie does justice to a book, that according to The New York Times Book review, "the most mature, inventive and powerful book about . . . intelligence work and espionage and merely the vehicle for a book about love, anomie, cruelty, determination and love of country."

NUGGET NOISE

WHAT GRATES AND WHAT'S GREAT

Frankie Goes To Hollywood - 'Welcome to the Pleasure Dome (Island Records)

Frankie says YEAAAAH!! Since this is the Remembrance issue of the Nugget, Frankie says "When two tribes go to war, one is all that two can score." Yes, Frankie Goes To Hollywood are the new sensation/fad what ever you want to call it, but most of all don't ignore it! (That rhymes by the way). The band first 'came' to the public's attention with the controversial song 'Relax' (if you want to come) describing it as one about motivation, but have since given the true meaning, and we all know what that is don't we boys and girls? Then 'Two Tribes' was released and maintained their level of controversy with infamous censored/uncensored video. (I didn't see any sex in the video, did you?). And now the release of 'The Pleasure Dome.'

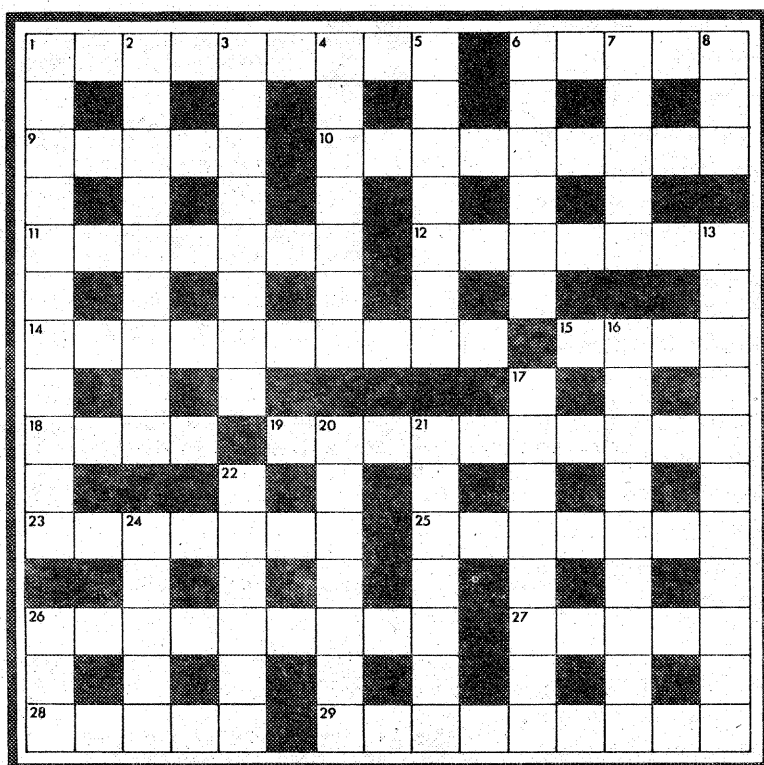

Finally a long playing double album in which one can digest the band to the fullest. Webster defines unique as being without or having no equal or like. Stevie defines unique as Frankie Goes To Hollywood.

To demonstrate their talent for diversity one can sample covers ranging from Bacharach/DaVIDS' poppy 'San Jose' to Springsteens' rocking 'Born To Run'. Intertwined with these songs are the groups own compositions which travel from up beat, hard driving to slow emotional ballads. Trevor Horn, who has produced such bands as ABC and Yes, is the mastermind behind the console.

The band's name comes from the front page of a tabloid printed in the 50's. Those with strong mafia connections should be able to guess who Frankie is! As with the original, this Frankie has hit Hollywood and the North American music industry in a big way. Apparently anything that goes to Hollywood . . . "Shooting stars never stop, even when they reach the top." Stevie says BUY THIS RECORD.

OOKS HOCKEY

The NAIT Ooks completed their homestand at the NAIT Arena this weekend by collecting a pair of victories. The NAIT Ooks downed the Medicine Hat Rattlers 17-1 Saturday and defeated SAIT by a 6-2 count Sunday.

SATURDAY, NOV. 3--NAIT OOKS 17, MEDICINE HAT RATTLEERS 1 AT NAIT ARENA

The Medicine Hat College Rattlers showed signs of promise early, but departed Edmonton without a point as the NAIT Ooks scored a 17-1 triumph over MHC at the NAIT Arena on Saturday, Novemeber 3rd.

NAIT defenceman Jamie Bartman notched his first goal of the season to open the scoring at 4:45 of the first. The NAIT powerplay doubled the advantage with 14:36 gone in the period as Sid Cranston connected for the NAIT Ooks. Scott Melnyk increased the NAIT lead to 3-0 one minute and 23 seconds later. Gary Leach closed out the first period scoring giving NAIT a 4-0 cushion.

In the second, Ken Goodwin's second of the year lifted NAIT into a 5-0 advantage at 4:02. Six minutes and nine seconds followed before Ooks rookie Mike Spencer connected. At the 10:30 mark, Mark Schultz scored the eighth NAIT goal. Hugh McCaskill of the Ooks then turned on the red light with 12:51 elapsed in the frame. The NAIT penalty killing unit accounted for the next two goals. Scott Melnyk and Garth Hayes both tallied while NAIT had a man in the sin bin at 16:51 and 18:51 respectively. Ken Goodwin's second of the night increased NAIT's lead to 11-0.

The NAIT powerplay capitalized with 22 seconds passed in the third as Gary Leach put the disc home. Gary Leach wasn't finished yet though as he completed the hat trick a short 52 seconds later. At 1:36, Garth Hayes found the net with NAIT's fourteenth tally. Mark Schultz gave NAIT a 15-0 advantage with 5:20 gone in the period. Garth Hayes then scored his third of the night at the 6:50 mark. Murray Melnyk rounded out the NAIT scoring at 7:51. Randy Eisenbarth broke NAIT's shutout bid with 4:58 left in the contest making the final 17-1 in favor of NAIT.

Lorne Bascom was brilliant in the Medicine Hat nets for the first 15 minutes before the floodgates opened. Bascom faced 49 shots. The NAIT netminding tandem of Cleo Rowein and Jeff Lastiwka was tested 16 times.

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 4TH--NAIT OOKS 6, SAIT TROJANS 2 AT NAIT ARENA

The NAIT Ooks met the SAIT Trojans for the first time in the 1984-85 season on Sunday, November 4th at the NAIT Arena and came away 6-2 winners.

SAIT's Darcy Kerner started the scoring at the 1:42 mark. NAIT's Mark Schultz notched the equalizer at 3:10 while the Ooks were shorthanded on a play with Gary Leach and Tom Tookey. Garth Hayes's fifth goal of the season placed NAIT in front four minutes and four seconds later. Gary Leach's fourth goal of the contest came with 15:55 elapsed in the first frame.

Blaine Whiteside of the Trojans cut NAIT's lead to one on the powerplay at 1:46 of the second. Gary Leach then scored his second of the afternoon at the 14:33 mark. Mike Spencer increased NAIT's lead to a 5-2 count with 15:16 passed.

Mark Schultz of the Ooks scored his sixth of the season at 13:16 of the third before crashing heavily into the boards.

Jeff Lastiwka occupied the NAIT crease and faced 23 shots. His counterpart Rick Cuch was tested on 53 occasions.

NAIT coach Perry Pearn was particularly pleased with the performance of the bench this past weekend, "We have 24 players who can play in this league. During this past weekend, some players who saw little action stepped in and did a marvellous job. Scott Melnyk, in his first ACAC game, scored two goals. Kevin Imrie turned in a strong performance and Don Simpson played well. Even with players such as Ross Kenny, Rob Hrytsak, and Ron Amyotte out of the line up we are still strong. Our bench will be important throughout the year and will be an advantage we have over other teams."

ON THE BENCH: The NAIT Ooks are not the healthiest. Ron Amyotte, Ross Kenny, and Dave Simmons are listed as questionable while Hugh McCaskill is doubtful for this weekend's action . . . The NAIT Ooks (3-0) tangle with the Camrose Lutheran College Vikings in a home and home series this weekend. The two teams play in Camrose on Saturday, November 10th at the Rec Center. Game time is 7:30 p.m. The rematch will be back at the NAIT Arena on Sunday with a 2:00 p.m. start.

CHICKS FINISH FOURTH IN ACAC PRESEASON TOURNEY

The 1984 ACAC Women's Basketball Preseason Tournament was held this past weekend in Camrose. The tournament stretched over a three-day period and involved all nine teams in the conference.

NAIT VS. CAMROSE LUTHERAN COLLEGE

On Wednesday October 31, the Chicks travelled to Camrose to challenge the hosting college Vikettes. After a slow start for the Chicks, CLC led 30-17 at the half. Returning to the floor for the second half, NAIT fell even further behind, stretching the score to 40-19, a 21 point lead for Camrose. The Chicks then slowly began to rally and before long were tied with the Vikettes at 50 points. Before CLC could react, NAIT was quickly out in front by a score of 56-50. The Chicks managed to hold strong through a last second effort by CLC to win 56-54, quieting a packed house of rowdy, costume-clad Camrose fans. High scorers for the Chicks were Patti Marcinyshyn with 18 points and Joyce Urban with 15 points.

NAIT vs. SAIT

Early Friday, November 2, the Chicks once again travelled to Camrose to take on the SAIT Helenas from Calgary. The

SOCCER OOKS TO NATIONALS

On Wednesday November 7th NAIT Ooks Soccer team leaves for the College National Soccer Championships.

They are in Pool B with Ontario, Nova Scotia and Quebec.

The top two teams from this pool will advance to the championship semi-finals on Friday afternoon with the bronze medal game taking place Saturday at noon and the championship game taking place at 3pm Saturday.

NAIT's first game is at 11am Thursday against Ontario No. 1. This will be a tough game as Ontario has a large college soccer league. The Ooks almost beat Ontario last year. They will be out to turn the tables this year.

NAIT's second game is against Nova Scotia. Nait is not sure what to expect from this province, however since they also have a college league we can expect a good game.

On Friday NAIT plays Quebec. This province plays a very fast, quick passing game the Ooks are looking forward to a good game. Soccer is extremely popular in this province.

SIDELINE NOTES:

The Ooks have spent the last two weeks working in gyms, Butterdome and the Kinsmen Field House due to our unseasonable weather. The Ooks hope to get an evening practice in Toronto on Wednesday so as to get the feel of grass again. Toronto has had above normal weather we hope it holds for the championships.

GOOD LUCK OOKS GO FOR GOLD

NAIT Radio and Television Department is sending a TV crew with the team. They are hoping to show same day Ooks highlights on ITV news at night, courtesy of Toronto City TV Satellite.

score, after a closely matched first half, was 28-24 in favor of SAIT. The second half was close as well, but the Chicks bounced ahead in the last three minutes to take a 10 point lead and win 54-44. The win gave the girls a day of rest and advanced them to the A-side semi-final. High scorers were Susan Tomchuk with 15 points, Patti Marcinyshyn and Jodie Bucharth each with 10 points.

NAIT vs. Lethbridge Community College

At 9:45 Saturday morning, the Chicks ran up against the Lethbridge Kodettes. After several turnovers in the first half, the girls were down by 15 points, 35-20. In the second half, the Chicks were held scoreless for 10 minutes and, frustated, were not able to control the Lethbridge offense as they would have liked. NAIT fell to a 34-69 loss to LCC. Sue Tomchuk had 12 points for the Chicks.

NAIT VS. GRANDE PRAIRIE REGIONAL COLLEGE

On Saturday evening, the Chicks played the GPRC Wolves to determine third place for the Tourney. The Chicks dropped to an early GPRC lead of 14-2, but played even for the rest of the first half, leaving the court with the score 22-34 in favor of the Wolves. Coming into the second half the Chicks found it difficult to rally after a long, tiring weekend and fell to a fourth place finish as GPRC went on to take third with a 49-78 win over NAIT. Sophi Hicken and Patti Marcinyshyn had 12 points each for the Chicks.

DREAMSCAPE

November 11th is a time to dream as well as a time to remember. Yet, as the years roll by men ask, "is it wise to try to remember?" And as idealism turns out so often to lead to only disillusionment as well as to death, men also question whether it is either safe or wise to dream and hope for the future.

One answer is that unless we continue to dream we might as well not remember. And unless we remember, it may be dangerous to dream.

Happy Birthday Kent
Fairbairn Noul from Marketing C1 and C2.

To the IGNORANT twit at the Nov. 2 MIET cabaret. If you were too drunk to remember, here is what you did. You went through my jacket pockets, removed an exposed roll of film, and then dropped my jacket on the floor. I hope you are pleased with yourself. The film contained tech. pictures from the past week (for the yearbook), but the drycleaners were able to clean my jacket. If you still have the film, anonymously deliver it to the yearbook office in E-wing.

Sparky and the Elect-rods:
When we first received your letter,
We couldn't believe what we read.

As poet's your're nearly geniuses,
But you could use some class instead.

And when we heard about the test,
Well, we didn't know what to say.
Afterall, we just finished midterms,
And finals are coming up right away.

Nevertheless, we took a vote,
And decided to take your test. If you're still willing, we're able,

But we do have one request. We're all a bit romantic,
So we'd like candlelight and wine.

And we'd also like some flowers;
Red roses will do just fine.

If you can arrange for these things,
You've got yourself a date.

And you can bet your bottom dollar,
Our toothpaste is first-rate.

One last thing before we agree,
There'd better be a dozen of you.

You see, we're all quite selfish,
And sharing will not do.
