On April 2nd election speeches were held in the new lounge. Each candidate brought forth his or her own ideas to those few individuals that attended. Promises were made by all, while reoccurring issues were mentioned in each speech. A licensed lounge, quiet study areas and Shinerama were most frequently talked about.

Voting on April 3rd resulted in 8.9 percent of the Nait population turning out. The 1985/86 Naitsa Executive is:

TREASURER: Cheryl Anslon
ACADEMICS CHAIRMAN: Bruce Janzen
BOARD OF GOVERNORS: Larry Retzlaff, Tom Walls

NUGGET CORRECTIONS

Oops we goofed! Last week's edition had some errors and we hope these did not cause any inconveniences.

- i) Apologies to Craig Somers for mistakenly putting B.C.E.T. instead of Earth Resources under his candidate photo.
- ii) Apologies to Bruce Janzen of B.C.E.T. and Larry Retzlaff of Architechtural for putting their pictures over each others names.
- iii) The voting was held from 11:00 am to 1:00 pm as opposed to 7:00 pm as was indicated on page 5.
- iv) Apologies to Ernest Larocque for misspelling his name. What read Lardque should have read Larocque .

Opinion

WHY BE NORMAL?

Most of us would like to think that we live in an enlightened, tolerant society. Especially in Canada, where multi-culturalism flourishes, you would believe that some form of understanding for our fellow human being would exist. This country is known as a safe harbour for "different" people, this is a reputation that we should be proud of. This is why the events of a day in the life of Edmonton last week disturbed me profoundly. Perhaps you heard about it? A "punk rocker" on an Edmonton Transit bus was riding the bus when the man behind him decided he didn't like the before mentioned haircut. Doing the most logical thing, the man took out his lighter, and set fire to the punk's hair. Fortunately, no one was hurt, but the police issued a rather amusing statement saying the punker was "hot under the collar." I suppose the whole incident is rather funny when you first hear it, but when you actually think about it, it's somewhat frightening.

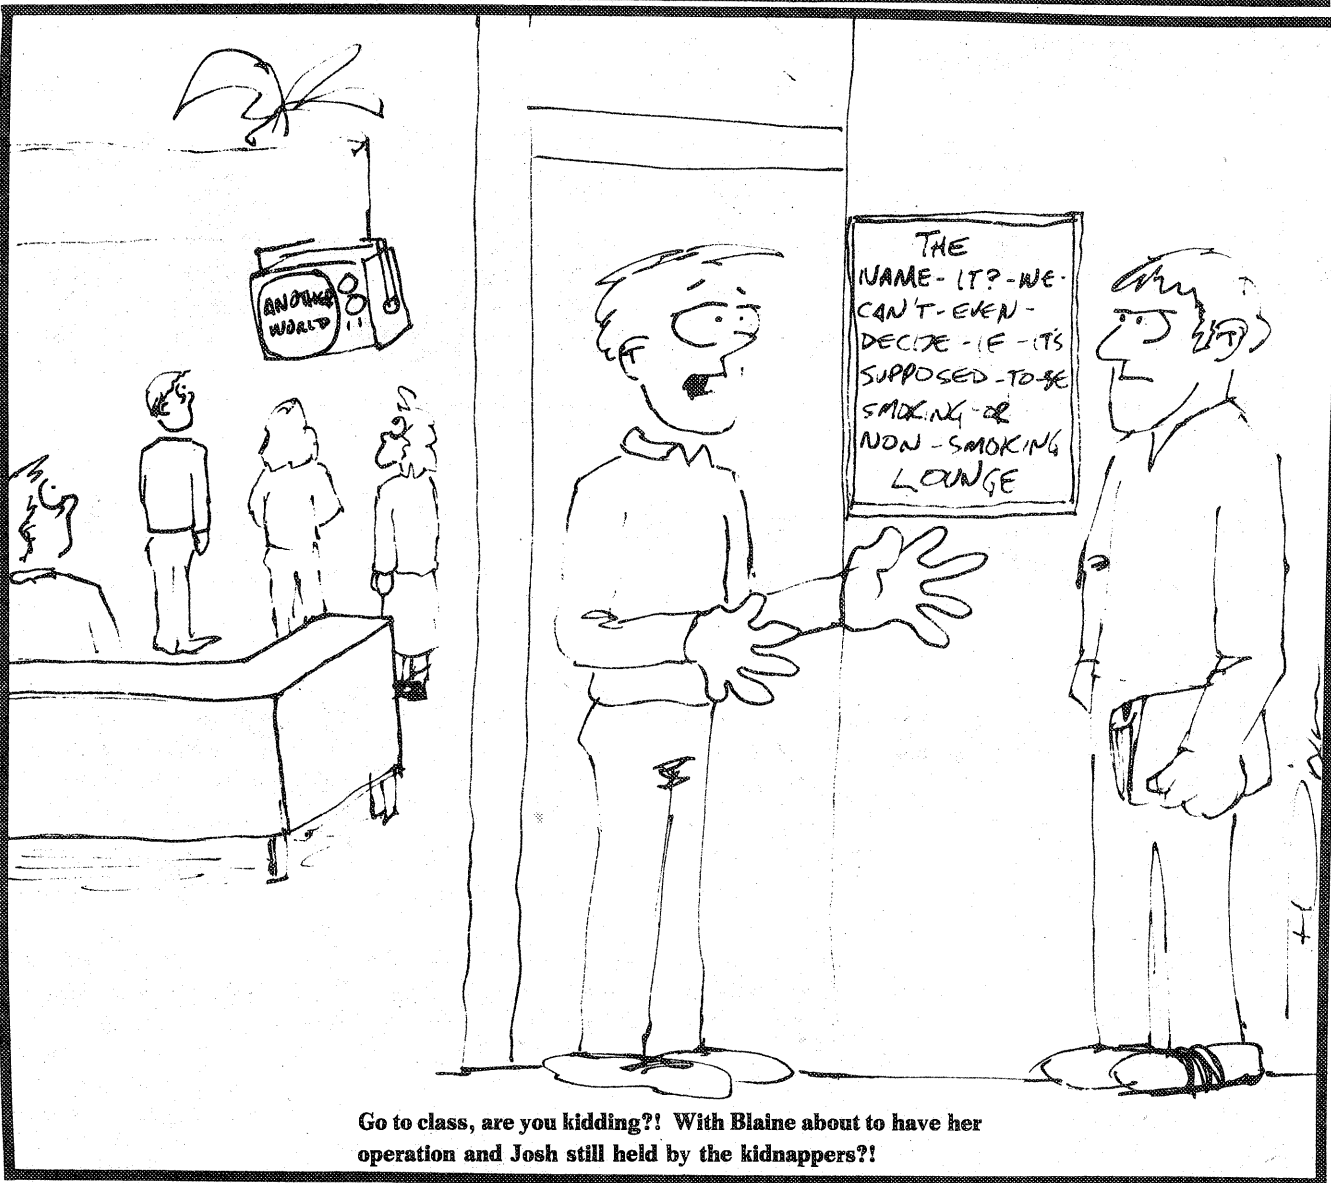

Consider the meaning of this man's senseless attack. Is not liking a person's hair a good enough reason to set it on fire? Can we expect him or his friends and followers to continue making unprovoked and brutal attacks on people who they feel are different? Are we all to be left in a shadow of fear if we don't conform? As cliché or trite as it may sound, the punker was exercising his right to be different, a right which I think more of us should exercise more often. I'm not professing the virtues of spiked hair and dog collars, but this certainly would be a more boring society if we all looked and acted the same way. Unfortunately, it's this rednecked sort of mentality that was displayed by the man with the lighter that stifles any creative or innovative spark within people. People who are so wrapped up in conformity that is rampant in our system and resort to violence towards others they can't understand are barriers to innovation. This incident makes me even wonder how comfortable and secure people are in conformity if they must stoop to utilizing their brawn upon anyone who they can't understand?

Western Canada, except for British Columbia has an image that is perceived to be somewhat the same as the image projected by the southern states in the U.S.A. Namely, we are the more intolerant, bordering on rednecked province in Canada. How this image comes about, I don't know. Maybe because Alberta was founded on farming, ranching and oil-drilling we have a somewhat "blue-collar" label attached to us. Maybe our distance from the Canadian fashion centers, Toronto and Montreal, makes us seem somewhat less liberal. Whatever the reason, an incident like the one last week only serves to reinforce this bigotted handle. Who knows, maybe we'll even have the pleasure of the Ku Klux Klan attempting another membership drive.

Just because one man did not have the intelligence to recognize distinction in another person does not mean we also have to follow his mistakes.

Take the time to try to understand why people attempt to differentiate themselves. Self-expression is a vital part of everyday human interactions and is very important to many. Please, do not try to put down a person or stifle them for being "out of the ordinary." Rather, ask yourself why you are the way you are, and this can be the first step towards accepting others the way they are.

A NEW BEGINNING

The promises are over and the talking is done. The 1984-85 NAIT winter session is essentially over, the sports finals are over, the NAITSA executive has been replaced and spring seems to be here to stay. Preparations are already being made for next year's school session and the time for creativity and innovation is now.

Glenn Mason and his troops are full of vim and vigour now and, if they can see down the road, they can avoid the complacency which a school term breeds.

This year's NAITSA activities started off with a bang. The Orientation days tent was new and exciting. The tent was well accepted at NAIT but the same cannot be said of the neighborhoods in the surrounding area. Bruce Antoniuk, NAITSA's Activities Chairman and Student Services had to deal with numerous nasty phone calls complaining of the noise. While we were outside enjoying ourselves, Bruce was inside convincing higher powers that the tent was indeed a good thing for the students. Bruce used this same enthusiasm to get televisions in the new student lounge and "Doug and the Slugs" for the upcoming Beerfest.

Bruce was not alone on the NAITSA Executive in coming up with new ideas that worked. Rod Reid has to be applauded for his effort in promoting our Institute.

Rod's most notable accomplishments included purchasing a new Ook suit to properly represent this school inside and outside of NAIT and the organization of fan bus trips to see Ook Pik games.

Rod may not agree that these were his most important accomplishments but it's safe to say that they were his most visible. Rod offered the students of NAIT concrete examples of what he was doing.

Next year's NAITSA Executive Council can take the example from these two guys. Bruce demonstrated that the job of Activities Chairperson is not to simply rehash old events but it is to come up with newer and different activities. On the same token, Rod showed that there is plenty of room for creativity for an Athletics Chairperson outside of the gymnasium.

Providing memorable moments is one of NAITSA's reasons for being. Bruce and Rod can be proud that they've provided this opportunity. With intuition and creativity, next year's students will have the same opportunity.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor:

The NAIT Nugget attempted to move into the big leagues, but proved it still needs to know the basics.

On Tuesday, March 19th, two individuals of the Nugget, Sean O'Neill and Brian McDonald blatantly erred in collaborating to undermine the coverage of the NAIT Hockey Oaks.

On this particular night, Faceoff '85 between the NAIT Oaks and the U of A Golden Bears unfolded before 13,354 fans. For one of the highest profile games in NAIT history, these individuals unilaterally decided to alter coverage of the NAIT Hockey Oaks.

These individuals chose to hold back the paper for this occasion, which was a mistake in itself. The fact the Oaks would be going to the CCAA Hockey Nationals for the third time in four years is a credible lead into the CCAA coverage.

As NAIT hockey writer, I was shocked to find that the coverage of this particular game would be done by an inexperienced individual, who to my knowledge, has not followed the Oaks all year. In fact, I discovered that coverage would be altered during the game. All this was without consultation.

Later that night, contingency plans were established. I was to compose a column and it would be on the front page of the March 22nd Nugget.

Following the game, I interviewed Clare Drake and Perry Pearn. These comments were included in a column dropped off at 1:30am on the morning of March 20th. Upon receiving this issue, I was amazed that despite assurances my column would appear, it did not run. A situation like this should never occur. Communication and truth inside a newspaper are necessities.

In my four years with the Nugget, I have never encountered a problem as serious as this one with past sports editors and editors.

There is no doubt a public apology is in order.

Mr. McDonald and Mr. O'Neill should seriously question themselves as to whether they have the integrity and communication skills to run a student newspaper properly. I have formulated my own opinion.

Brian Stein

To really understand the planning that went into the decision of printing any article on the "Face-off '85", one would have to have some understanding on the actual weekly production schedule that "The Nugget" follows. Unfortunately, Brian as you have chosen to work on a more independent basis, you may sometimes forget that we don't work on a round the clock schedule like the major newspapers. Suffice it to say, the decision was not "collaborative" or meant to "undermine" anything. Rather, it was an attempt to provide coverage for the game in the best, and most practical way that we could. By the time we received your article, the paper had already been "put to bed."

You are right in saying, Brian, that there was a lack of communication on this issue. The fact that you wrote an article that had already been written by another perfectly capable writer attests to this. I apologize most sincerely for the fact that I did not get in contact with you. However, you must have also realized that when you made the decision to be a freelance writer four years ago, that your independent relationship with "The Nugget" would someday lead to a problem like this, if only for the simple fact that we never know where you are. As to my questioning my ability to run a student newspaper, if I had harshly interrogated myself on this issue at the time I made the decision to become Editor, I probably would not be here now. I like to think that I'm doing my best though, and will certainly mark this incident down as a learning experience, as I'm sure you will.

Again, I apologize to you Brian, for failing to communicate effectively, and I apologize to all the NAIT students who were inconvenienced by the sudden change in writers.

Sean O'Neill
Editor

Dear Sirs:

As of yet, I have no idea who won the elections. I am concerned however with one of the presidential candidates. My concern lies with Mr. Mason. On the basis of what the candidates had to say, Mr. Mason seemed better prepared than Miss Watson, yet when I cast my ballot it will be for Tracy. Not because of her platform or her looks or really anything she said or did. No it was Mr. Mason who convinced me to vote for Miss Watson when he showed blatant disregard for us the students by managing to be late for his speech. Who the hell does Mr. Mason think he is anyway. I feel that he shouldn't have been given the opportunity to speak-out of place. He said he's been preparing for a year. He sure didn't prove it today by showing up late. I hope that this person does not get elected. The last thing we as students need is one of our distinguished representatives showing up late or not at all for important meetings with people outside the institution.

B. Snow

Your point being late has probably been well taken by Mr. Mason. However, I question your logic about voting for someone whom you seem to feel is not as prepared as his competitor. Although this response will reach you after the election, let's look back. If you feel that Tracey Watson was indeed the best Presidential candidate, then congratulate yourself on a wise vote. But, if you felt that Mr. Mason would have done a better job as President, and you did not vote for him out of spite for his tardiness, I think you should question your priorities, and ask yourself just why and for what you are voting. The large picture of Presidential effectiveness should not be marred by a trifling misunderstanding.

Sean O'Neill

"ELECTION 85"

By now, most of you know who won what in the elections for the 1985-86 Naitsa Student Council. Some of you have probably already uttered your first complaints. While the figures are not yet in on how many people voted; I can tell you that attendance at the candidates speeches on Tues. April 2nd was disgraceful.

Less than two percent of the student population turned out to witness and participate in what should have been an event important to all. That means that less than two percent of the student population went to the polls with any real first hand knowledge of what the candidates stood for and/or against.

I realize that a lot of you had classes and couldn't make it but that's no excuse for such a shabby turnout. Doesn't anybody out there care what's going on? Don't you have any desire to know what these people are all about? Those of you who have no idea of what these people said may have voted for someone who vowed to make large donations to the communist party. Who cares, right?

You should! The first time these people screw up a lot of you are going to be screaming and yelling bloody blue murder; yet those of you who didn't vote will have no right.

Voting is a privilege, not a chore. It gives you at least some control over your future. For over a decade Canadians moaned and groaned about the Trudeau Liberals; yet they kept getting re-elected (albeit on the strength of eastern votes). Without students getting involved and questioning candidates about issues that concern them, it could be a decade before we get a student executive that is truly in tune with the needs, wants and worries of Nait students.

Don't get me wrong, I'm not jumping on the new council yet, but with so few people informed as to what they stand for, they can't possibly represent the majority of students. It seems that what the winners are is popular. Last year only 8 percent of the student population voted in the election. That to me translates into nothing more than friendship votes. I hope this year's turn out was much better - this is being written the day before elections - but if it isn't I'll have to give serious thought to running next year. I mean hell, I've got just as many friends and acquaintances here as anybody else, and if nobody bothers to question my platform, I just may slip through.

THE NAIT OUTDOOR EDUCATION PROGRAM

Did you ever wonder how much it would cost you to go on a canoe trip, to learn how to ski or to learn how to survive in the outdoors? Well the Physical and Leisure Education Program at NAIT is currently offering these courses throughout the school year at no cost to the student. All equipment transportation and instruction are provided free of charge. The outdoor education courses vary with the seasons from Canoeing and Backpacking in the Fall, to Cross Country Skiing and Wilderness Skills in the Winter, to River Canoeing in the Spring.

Over the years the Outdoor Education Program has evolved from being totally optional for all students to a point where several technologies have included specific courses as being compulsory for their students. The Biological Science program was the first to recognize the value of good outdoor skills to graduating students in the "ecology" option. separate courses are now offered to Bio Science students in River Canoeing, Survival Skills, Cross Country Skiing, Rifle & Shotgun Familiarization, Swimming, First-Aid and Fitness. Other technologies have made certain courses compulsory for their students ie. Surveying Survival course, Forestry, Cross Country Skiing and next year, Earth Resources Survival.

As more techs made outdoor Education compulsory there is a corresponding reduction in the number of optional courses available for the general student body. The optional courses have been plagued by a number of cancellations over the past few years by lack of sufficient numbers even though plenty of students had registered in the course. Such lack of responsibility by these people threaten the optional program which is being offered as a service to the students.

In the third quarter there are two optional courses offered; Wilderness Skills March 30-31 and Canoeing May 4-5. These courses held their registration at the beginning of the third quarter but you can register in person by attending the first lecture (late registration is subject to space available). Normal Outdoor Education courses are designed for the novice outdoorsman and are looking to provide a positive initial outdoor experience. The program welcomes staff involvement as well as students, so take advantage of this service while here at NAIT.

GOOD PR, BAD BUDGET

Alberta Liberal Leader Nick Taylor states that he is "amazed at how the media have been taken in by the Alberta government budget and congratulates Hyndman and the Lougheed team on being able to elicit headlines like 'Alberta Holds Line', or 'Alberta Will Not Raise Taxes' or 'Taxpayers Saved Again'."

"Premier Lougheed, who purports to be a fiscal conservative and an admirer of Reagan, did the unheard of thing for a pro-market economy by refusing to cut taxes and thereby increase spending. Nearly every capitalist government which can afford it, is cutting taxes so that more income is placed in the hands of the people. That action would generate spending and create jobs," explains Taylor.

The Alberta Liberal Leader points out, "last year the government ended up with a budgetary surplus although a deficit had been forecast. Likely the same thing will happen this year. With unemployment at about 15 percent in our major cities, it has to be almost criminal for the government to keep hoarding tax money."

Taylor wonders what Hyndman and Lougheed are afraid of. "Government might heavily tax away money in times of inflation; but our inflation is practically zero. Now Government should put money back in the hands of the private sector, particularly small business and individuals, to make the economy grow.

"Added to this insult to the taxpayers, is the injury of literally ignoring the farmers in spite of huge bailouts to financial institutions and favoured businesses. We have a government which has lost all touch with reality and seems obsessed with milking our non-renewable resources as fast and quickly as it can to maintain its Heritage Trust Fund and protect some special interests," concluded Taylor.

Ooks Hockey

THE OOKS, THE FANS, THE BUS OOKS TAKE NATIONAL CHAMPIONSHIP AT MOOSE JAW

This is a true story. Any names or resemblances to persons living or dead are purely coincidental.

March 30th at 5:30 a.m., the NAIT Ook Cheering Squadron left on a mission of rowdiness and oblivious craziness. On boarding the "Beer Boogie Bus" everyone was required to give their qualifications in beer consumption by beginning their morning with a bottle of suds. Our destination: Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan; the CCAA National Championship.

Our venture started at about 3:00 when Activities Chairperson Bruce Antoniuk was kidnapped by the alial villians, Don-O and the Rapper. Wheels started rolling at 6:00 a.m., and by the time we hit the city limits Greg Rudolf TKO'd (maybe it was Sherwood Park). Several beers later, we caught the NAIT Chicks playing with Chippendale. At lunch in Saskatoon our waitress commented on our distinct aroma of our cologne "Essence of Labatts." Our Nugget Sports Editor Brian provided after dinner entertainment by breakdancing in the parking lot.

After restocking our codies, we continued on our quest to Moose Jaw. The Moonies in the back of the bus didn't let a vehicle pass by without shining a little light on them. Our Craig Somers clone, WaWa the Ook got nooked. By the time we hit Moose Jaw we had broken the 4 commandments of the bus:

1. No consumption of intoxicants.
2. Cigarette smoking only.

3. Remain seated while bus in motion.
4. Prohibited by law to cross the white line in front of the bus.

On arrival at Moose Jaw, we settled into our Oasis of Inequity, before heading to the game. Although 29 people went on the trip, NAITSA executive purchased 39 tickets, they could even explain the logic behind this (What frame of mind were they really in?).

Saskatchewan shook with fear as the NAIT Ooks Cheering Squadron took their post on the stands, lead by WaWa the Ook. GO OOKS GO, garbage can lids, air horns and screams drowned out the QUEBEC FANS and whistles of the referees. RTA press delegates had a hard time keeping their cameras on the ice, because of the presence of the French Bunnies from the Quebec Team. After a spectacular effort from our Ooks, the final score was a raging 9 to 2.

The victorious cheers roared from our fans as the Ooks received the National championship trophy and banner. Then the party started.

It was supposed to be held in the basement of the hotel but expanded to the third floor and everywhere in between. Special thanks to the Quebec Vulcans who supplied a full tub of beer. The Ooks took pleasure of wearing all the champagne they didn't drink. United as one the victory was celebrated by all with some of the best highlights provided by our champions.

Rosco playing with a hose in Room 217 decided to do a complete wash down of it. Melnyk sprayed everyone with beer. The boys proved that hockey players are tough by removing stairwell rails and signs held on the wall with 3 inch screws with their teeth. Mr. Amyotte provided everyone with a live Chip & Dale performance.

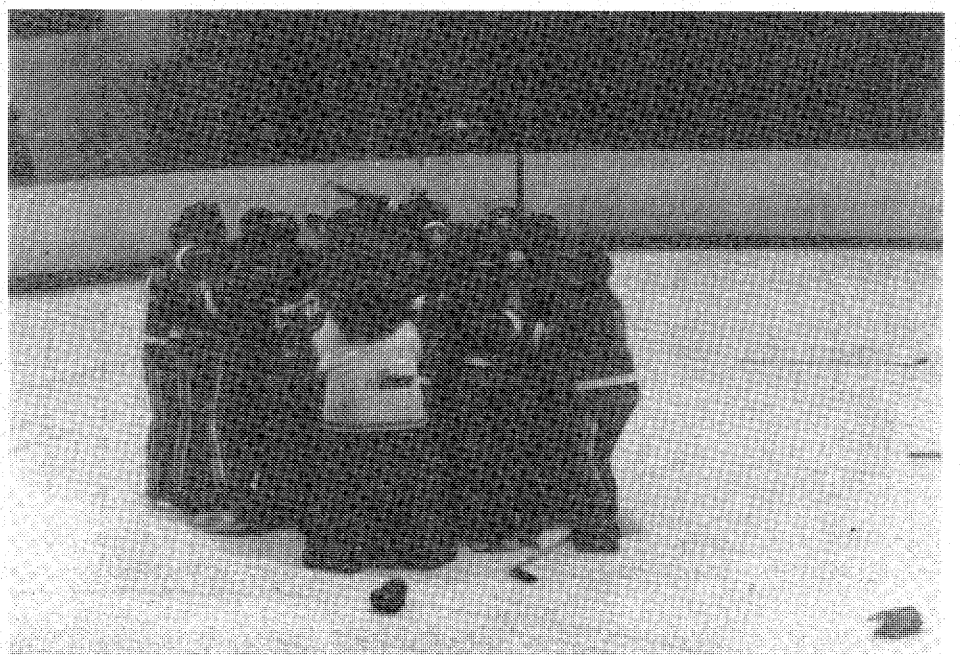

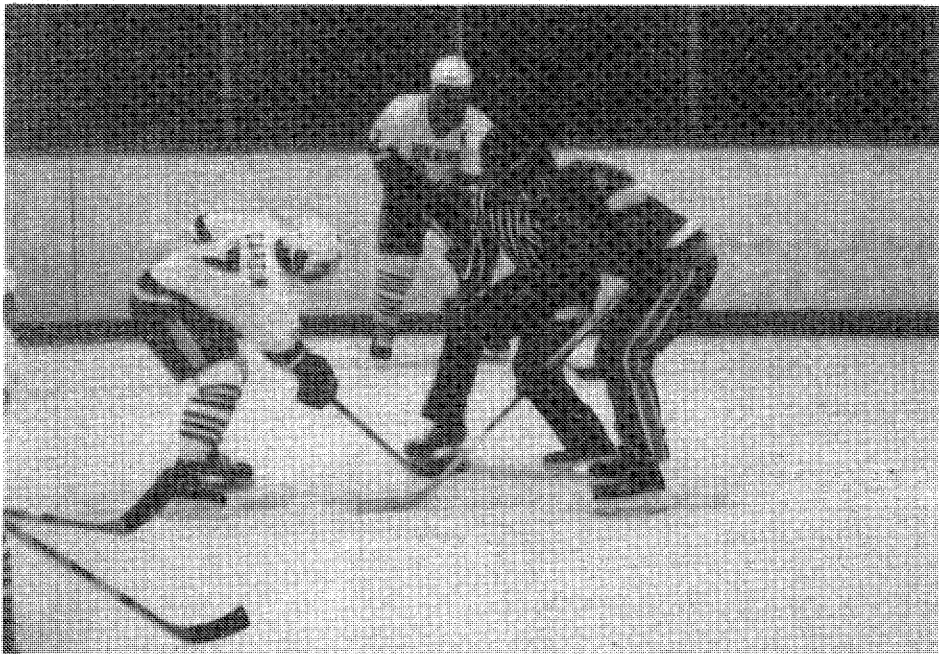

Room 237 provided us with some wrestling bouts. Hulk Hogan was not in attendance so Cleo took his place.

We headed on our way home at 9:00 with many of the fans suffering from the no sleep syndrome and hang-over blues. To Bob our bus driver we promise Tony won't deposit as big a tip in the back of the bus, as he left for the cab driver in Moose Jaw.

To the people of Edmonton, we thank you for the use of your garbage can lids. Unfortunately they were in no shape to return.

To the Diversified bus drivers, we thank you for putting up with us.

We the fans would like to declare Monday, April 8 a NAIT school holiday in honour of our lads who brought great pride to the City of Edmonton and especially NAIT. (Too bad the Bears blew it!).

Dental Month

APRIL IS DENTAL HEALTH MONTH

The Dental Assisting Program at NAIT is bringing you our own Dental Health Week from April 8-11.

Good nutrition is a key factor in maintaining a healthy body and also maintaining a healthy mouth.

During this week of April 8-11, we will be selling fresh fruit & vegetables near the main cafeteria & near the north cafeteria.

Be sure to see our display in the showcase near the main kiosk.

There will also be a toothbrush exchange at the fruit stands. Bring us your old toothbrush and we'll give you a new one.

Don't be alarmed if you see some strange costumes floating around, they are just Dental Assistants in disguise.

DENTAL ASSISTING

Dental Assisting is a nine month program during which we are taught many different skills which augment the dentist. Upon completion of the course we are Certified Dental Assistants with many intra-oral skills, such as applying webber dams and taking x-rays. We also do propylasais and fluoride as well as taking impressions.

During the course we have patients in to have x-rays and during 3rd quarter, we will also be cleaning teeth for children from 5 to 15 years of age. We then have a 3 week externship at a private practice.

DENTAL WORKOUT:

MAKE IT PART OF YOUR FITNESS PROGRAM

Fitness. The word has become a part of the everyday vocabulary for most Canadians. It means working out in the local fitness club at lunch time, jogging or walking to work, taking the stairs rather than the elevator, eating good, wholesome foods.

Sound good? It could be...except for one thing. Fitness also means taking care of your teeth, but many people forget that.

It's never too late to make dental care an essential part of your total fitness program. The care you put into cleaning your teeth now will go a long way to helping you keep them when you're older.

So start your day the right way - with the three-minute dental workout. Keep your teeth and gums healthy by daily brushing, flossing and rinsing. Eat nutritiously balanced meals, avoid snacks and visit your dentist regularly. You'll not only feel better for it; you'll look better too.

Make the three-minute dental workout part of your daily fitness regime today. It's as easy as one, two, three.

Along with our clinical duties we learn the oral anatomy in a Basic Dental Science course, we learn the secretarial duties through our Practice Management Course, and of course to take x-rays we have our Dental Radiography.

Graduates from our program obtain the NAIT Certificate in Dental Assisting and are eligible to apply for Provincial and National Certification.

WHAT'S GREAT AND WHAT GRATES

The Smiths - "Hatfull of Hollow," ROUGH TRADE RECORDS. The second album from this Manchester quartet. Consisting of Morrissey, Voice; Johnny Marr, guitars; Andy Rourke, Bass; Mike Joyce, drums. Highly recognized and admired by the British press the Smiths have yet to break the North American market.

This album contains some new songs such as William, it was really nothing, sung by Morrissey, taking the woman's perspective on marriage and other songs remixed from the 1st L.P.

The songs take you through the emotional passage of breakup and back again to make-up. Morrissey's voice is definitely the distinctive attribute of the band. He can range from a baritone all the way to soprano taking your heart and soul with it.

One of my favorite cuts is "This Charming Man"-lyrics sing "I would go out tonight but I haven't got a stitch to wear."

Not only does this band have excellent vocals but superb guitar work demonstrated well on "Back to the Old House," an acoustic track, and "Please Please Please let me get what I want."

Although their instruments are very straight forward (voice, drums, guitars), their musical approach is quite unique. You will require a few listens to fully appreciate the full scope of their talent. The Smiths are definitely not just another name in the telephone book.

KING DAVID

Every spring, it happens. The snow thaws, the buds on the trees bloom, and the People With No Sense find their driver's licences.

You've seen them - they haven't driven since last fall, but now they come out in droves. But they seem to have forgotten a few things.

First, speed limits. They forget what the little dial with the numbers behind the wheel is for; probably, they think it's a very inaccurate "Guess Your Weight" machine. So they drive at whatever speed "feels right" - which is either twenty kilometres above or below the speed limit. Depending on the day, you feel like you're on Indianapolis or the Rose Bowl Parade.

Next, there's that funny little handle on the steering column they keep forgetting about. Or maybe it's on purpose - it just makes a lot of funny little clicks and flashes, so why bother with it? Just a nuisance, anyway. If other people can't figure out when they're going to change lanes or pull across from the left lane to an exit on the right, they reason, then they don't deserve to be on the road in the first place.

But in spite of the things they forget, they do like to have fun. They play all kinds of games, like Who Will Be Off the Line First, and Let's See If The Yellow Light is Long Enough For Me to Get Through the Intersection From Two Blocks Away. But the most fun game of all is the 3 a.m. No Muffler Drag Races. This game is best played on quiet residential streets where the cops don't go, and the in-store stereo set no lower than five on the volume.

Yes the People With No Sense are out on our streets once again. Aren't you glad spring is here once more?

Now, in response to Mr. Trivial Pursuit, who corrected me on that small point of the song title for that 1910 Fruit Gum Company tune; who gives a bucket of crap what it was called? You trivia smart-alecks are always spoiling people's lives. Jumping into conversations with useless facts, correcting people's grammar - WHO CARES?? The important thing is that the 1910 Fruit Gum Company is no more - and I wish the same for people like you. Okay, enough abuse for one week. Get outa here.

It is almost a generation since the last great vogue for biblical films. In the years since then, filmmaking techniques have changed considerably, and so have filmmakers. It goes without saying, therefore, that the biblical epic of the '80's will not be the same as its earlier incarnation.

Paramount pictures decided that the time was right to look again at the stories that have held the whole world in thrill for thousands of years. Ambitiously, paramount decided it wanted a screen version of a story never attempted in its entirety before -- the life of David.

David, the shepherd boy anointed by the prophet to succeed Saul, first King of Israel. The same David who composed psalms, slew the mighty giant Goliath, formed a bond of friendship with Jonathan, fought terrible battles in those turbulent times around 1000B.C., loved well if not always wisely, joined in marriage to five different women including Bathsheba, and fathered among others two sons who left their own mark on time, Absalom and Solomon.

King David stars Richard Gere in the title role, Edward Woodward, Alice Krige, Jack Klaff, directed by Australian Bruce Beresford.

Spanning 55 turbulent years the film captures the tragic and triumphant times of this life; the patronage of King Saul that turned to hatred; the ambitions of his two sons; and David's fall from grace with God and, eventually, his redemption.

According to Beresford: "I wanted to do the film in as realistic a way as possible. It's such an incredible story and it's never been told in its entirety before. I hope it comes off. It's a wonderful script and the chance of a lifetime."

Indeed it is. And yes, without question he has pulled it off.

SOME SPORTS

Well, here we are in the sports section. The usual sports editor Brian McDonald has been asked to vacate the position. The reason for this is that Brian is running for Publications Chairman in the just finished Nait's Elections, and some people felt that his writing for the Nugget - in an issue due out the day after the election - might present a conflict of interest.

How, I do not know; but the situation has left me in charge of the sport's section this week. Problem being, except for the Oaks winning the National Championship there's been no sport's happenings in the last couple days.

So, besides all the filler you've just read, I've decided to pass along some funny and/or controversial sporting moments, plays, or stories.

1) The Toronto Maple Leafs

Canada's most vibrant city possesses the countries least vibrant team.

2) The N.A.S.L.

In recent times, the league deteriorated to 2 teams - Toronto and Minnesota. Now they've folded altogether, but have promised to regroup and be back next year.

3) Hartford 8 Edmonton 7

Coupled with last year's 11-0 blastout, the Oilers should give thanks that the Whalers won't make the playoffs.

4) Women's Boxing

I recently viewed such a spectacle and believe me it was "Ugly."

5) A.C.A.C. Ice Hockey Officiating

Brian Stein had a good article on this in last week's Nugget.

6) Yogi Berra Says

"Home openers are always big games, whether they're at home or on the road."

7) Hamilton Tiger-Cats

Another Harold Ballard team. Need I say more

8) John Ducey Park

Baseball will never get the recognition it deserves in Edmonton, until it's put into an establishment that makes spectating fun, not a chore.

9) The U.S.F.L.

Even die hard football fans have a hard time watching a whole game.

10) The Toronto Maple Leafs

INTRAMURALS

Men's and Women's singles and doubles tennis, co-ed doubles tennis and Men's and Women's team handball are all getting underway. Men's and Women's floor hockey are well into their schedules, and the deadline for Men's and Women's snooker and ball hockey are just about upon us.

Then that's it folks. These are the last events on the calendar. If you've been putting off getting into the I-M's, it's just about to late. If you've been competing in them all year, it's time to start thinking about Intramural Athlete of the Year.

The Intramurals have been a lot of fun this year, thanks to Irwin and the Intramural representatives from the various tech's. In past year's upwards of 60 percent of the student body have participated in the Intramurals, and although the figures are not yet in, this years participation should be somewhat in line with previous years totals.

I personally would like to apologize to all the referees I've slandered and opponents I have enraged. All in the spirit of the game I hope you understand.

To the second year students who will not be returning next year, we thank you for your participation and wish you all the best in your chosen endeavours. To first year's, we wish you the best of luck through the summer and hope to compete against and/or with you again next year.

Thanks again Irwin for a good year.

NAIT OOKPIKS CANADA'S BEST

It was a week to remember.

The NAIT Ooks joined the elite company of the 1948 Calgary Stampeders who won a Grey Cup, the 1972 Miami Dolphins who were Super Bowl champions, and the heavyweight boxer, Rocky Marciano who retired as heavyweight champion. All of the above finished their season or career as undefeated.

The NAIT Hockey Ooks captured their second Canadian Colleges Athletic Association (National) Hockey Championships on Saturday, March 30th by wrapping the season with a record of 33 wins and no losses in the regular season and conference and national playoffs. The Ooks were 25 and 0 in the regular season, 5 and 0 in the ACAC playoffs, and 3 and 0 at the CCAA Hockey Championships in Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan.

TUESDAY, MARCH 26th

The day started out with the taking of the team picture at 8:00am followed by a brisk practice at the NAIT Arena. The Ooks then returned to the NAIT Arena close to 12:00 noon to prepare their baggage for their trip to Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan for the CCAA National Hockey Championships. At 12:30, the Ooks left as a team on the NAIT bus for the Edmonton International Airport. The Ooks then left on Air Canada flight AC274 bound for Regina. Also on the flight were the Grande Prairie Regional College Wolves Women's Basketball Team who were hoping to bring home a medal, too.

The Ooks arrived in the Queen City around 4:40 CST only to load up and head for the city of Moose Jaw, a center with over 30,000 people.

Following a team meal, the team attempted to see a show. We did not know that there are great line-ups on $2.00 Tuesday and were left stranded outside the theatre.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 27th

There were a pair of things on the agenda for Wednesday, March 27th. One was a gruelling 50 minute practice. The other was the CCAA Awards Banquet to be held in Caronport, Saskatchewan.

The practice was the first time NAIT skated inside the Moose Jaw Civiv Centre. From all indications, the players seemed to like the atmosphere at the venue.

Then at 7:00pm, the NAIT Ooks were joined by other college teams participating in basketball and hockey teams at CCAA All-Canadian Awards Banquet hosted by Briercrest Bible College of Caronport, Saskatchewan, 15 miles west of Moose Jaw. Saskatchewan Premier Grant Devine was among the dignitaries at the head table.

The NAIT Ooks were up for awards in four categories. NAIT goaltender, Cleo Rowein, received his third All-Canadian Award by compiling a 2:19 goals against average in 685 minutes of play. NAIT right winger, Ron Amyotte, was selected as an All-Canadian in his first year with the Ooks. The former Weyburn Red Wing finished second in the ACAC scoring race with 29 goals and 22 assists for 51 points.

NAIT goaltender commented on his award, "I think in my position as a goaltender, goaltenders are only as good as the hockey team in front of you. It was really easy to be an All-Canadian with an All-Canadian team in front of you."

NAIT winger Ron Amyotte was surprised with his selection. "It was a great experience, I didn't expect it at all. When they called my name I got a thrill down my spine."

Coach of the Year honours went to Alain Chainey of the Victoriaville Vulkins. Chainey could not accept the award in person as he returned to Quebec to make arrangement for his father's funeral. Yvon Pare, athletic director at Victoriaville accepted the award on Chainey's behalf.

NAIT coach Perry Pearn was relieved he did not win Coach of the Year honours like last year. So far, a CCAA Coach of the Year award winner has not been able to win a national title in the same year.

Alberta did very well at the Awards Banquet bringing away plenty of hardware. In women's basketball, CLC coach Gail Amort Larson was named Coach of the Year in her final year behind the bench before retirement. Tricia Harrison of CLC was named to the All-Canadian team as a forward. In men's basketball, Dave Adams of Lethbridge College was named Coach of the Year after the outstanding fight his club put up against the SAIT Trojans in the ACAC finals. Two ACAC men's basketballers were named All-Canadian. They were Chad Nicholson of the Medicine Hat College Rattlers and Ryan Heggie of Lethbridge Community College.

THURSDAY, MARCH 28th

Action began at the Moose Jaw Civic Center on Thursday, March 28th, and there were no upsets in the first round. Although the Kelsey Amaruks appeared to be vastly improved and the Red River Rebels from Manitoba seemed to fold like an accordion.

THURSDAY, MARCH 28th--NAIT OOKS 8, CARIBOO COLLEGE CHIEFS 2 AT MOOSE JAW CIVIC CENTRE

Like their first playoff series with the Camrose Lutheran College Viking, the Ooks seemed to be tentative in their first match at the CCAA Hockey Nationals. The Ooks shook the cobwebs off in the last 40 minutes with the Cariboo College Chiefs to score an impressive 8-2 win.

The Ooks opened up the game with Ron Amyotte receiving a Mike Tookey pass on a breakaway and fooled Cariboo netminder Gerald Forbes for NAIT's first goal on the powerplay at 5:05 of the first period. Brent MacMillan tied the game for the Chiefs at the 10:23 mark. The Ooks gained a 2-1 advantage when Hugh McCaskill rallied shorthanded with 42 seconds left in the period. The Ooks then thought they would go into the dressing room with the lead. This was not to be as Rob Cederberg, and All-Canadian with the Chiefs, capitalized on a giveaway at center ice and scored on the resulting breaking with 10 seconds left on the clock. The Ooks were outshot 15 to 13 in the first period.

The Ooks were a different hockey club in the second continually applying pressure. Sid Cranston scored the go-ahead goal for the Ooks with 4:06 elapsed in the second on a Gary Haddon set-up. Mike Tookey and Garth Hayes then combined to set-up Ron Amyotte's 7th goal of the playoffs at 6:00 even. The NAIT powerplay then clicked once again as Garth Hayes netted his third goal in post season play. Assists went to Mike Tookey and Sid Cranston.

Ken Goodwin of the NAIT Ooks then scored on an unusual play with 2:30 passed in third from Ron Amyotte. Ken shot the puck at the Cariboo net, the puck hit a Chiefs defenceman in the calf and went into the net. Two minutes and 31 seconds later, Murray Melnyk's initial playoff tally came on a play with Mark Schultz. Garth Hayes then pocketed his second goal of the game from Mike Tookey and Randy Repchuk. The game MVP was Sid Cranston of the Ooks.

Gerald Forbes of Cariboo handled 44 NAIT shots. NAIT goaltender Cleo Rowein was tested on 28 occasions.

NAIT rearguard Ken Goodwin felt that condition played an important role in the Ooks' dominance as the game continued. The third period we came through playing really well. The other team just couldn't keep up with us."

Garth Hayes, right winger for the Ooks was relieved to win the first game. "Coming into the first game, everyone had some butterflies. As the game continued, the nervousness wore off and we just got stronger."

Other scores from the first day were predictable. The Cape Breton Capers of Nova Scotia scored nine straight goals en route to a 12-7 victory over the Red River Rebels of Red River, Manitoba. The Victoriaville Vulkins of Quebec coasted to a 10-4 triumph over the host Briercrest Clippers of Caronport. The Kelsey Amaruks of Saskatchewan put up a valiant effort against Seneca but came up short, losing 4-2 to the Braves of Ontario.
