PERFECTION!

Story Courtesy of Edmonton Sun

There was no victory lap around the ice.

No swilling, spilling and spraying of champagne in a wild-and-wooly locker room scene.

And they only hoisted the coach onto their shoulders and carried him off the ice after being cajoled into it by an Edmonton Sun photographer.

Despite capping a record unbeaten untied 25-game Alberta Colleges Athletic Association regular season hockey schedule with a 13-3 massacre of the SAIT Trojans, all was cool with the NAIT Ooks.

The Ooks, it seems, believe the real season's still ahead of them.

HAVEN'T WON ANYTHING

"When I think about it now, I'm pretty happy - but we haven't won nothing yet," said Ooks' centre Sid Cranston who celebrated his 22nd birthday with a two-goal, six-assist performance in front of 300 fans at the NAIT Arena. "That 25-0 doesn't mean anything once the playoffs start. We're back to square one now."

NAIT, who open the ACAC playoffs this Thursday against Camrose, not only ran its mark to 25-0 in 1984, but stretched its winning streak against league rivals to an incredible 51 consecutive games, including playoffs and exhibition action.

Not since being thumped 8-3 by Red Deer back on Dec. 4, 1983 have the Ooks fallen to an ACAC squad.

Still . . . "The streak is significant," understated Ooks' coach Perry Pearn. "It hasn't been done before and when you look at the longest ones in the NHL and what not, we compare favorably, and we're very proud of that. But we didn't really emphasize it. The focus was on improving and getting ready for the playoffs."

So what does it mean?

A LOT OF CHARACTER

"I think it shows there's a lot of character on this team," declared two-goal man Mike Spencer, a guy who's familiar with winning - he was with the 1984 Centennial Cup champion Weyburn Red Wings. "You're going to have your lulls. Just to keep the interest up for that long a period of time is something. It's nice to go unbeaten."

Defenceman Ken Goodwin agreed. "We have to make sure now that we keep it going in the playoffs."

If anything was surprising about No. 25, it was the ease with which the Ooks handled third-place SAIT. After all, wasn't it the Trojans who, three weeks ago, nearly ended the streak at 19 games?

"Yeah, but that was probably our worst game of the year," shrugged Cranston, whose club scored twice late in the third period to pull out a 2-1 win. "This one was easy because we made it easy by playing our game. We wore them down."

And out. The only time it was 2-1 yesterday was after one period. NAIT exploded for five unanswered goals in the middle frame to make it academic, and then bombarded beleaguered SAIT goalie Rick Cuch with 26 shots in a six-goal third period.

Cuch, who faced 55 drives, as opposed to a mere 23 handled by NAIT's Cleo Rowin and Jeff Laskiwka, was beaten in just about every conceivable way. Breakaways, deflections, rebounds, 10-foot slapshots - you name it, he saw it.

Gary Leach had enough time on his second-period tally to run out for a coffee before popping a wrist shot high to Cuch's glove side.

KEEP ON COMIN

"We try to keep coming for 60 minutes," said Pearn. "In theory our strongest period should be the third, and that's what happened. They tried to play with four defencemen. And unless they're awfully fit, you can't do that against us."

Besides Spencer's hat trick and Cranston's pair, Ron Amyotte and Garth Hayes added two each for NAIT. Leach, Gary Haddon, Scott Melnyk and Mike Tookey added singles.

Daryl Baxandal, Marty Shenfield and Duance Potekal replied for the losers.

COMPLAINTS HANDLED HERE

Sometimes, somewhere along the line you have to step back, take an objective look at what you're doing, and ask if you're doing it right. In order to tell if you're doing it right, however, you first have to look back at your original goals. Usually, we rarely look back until we perceive that we are failing to achieve our objectives. Or, there is always the case when someone will gladly point out our mistakes for us. I think the latter is the more common occurring of the two.

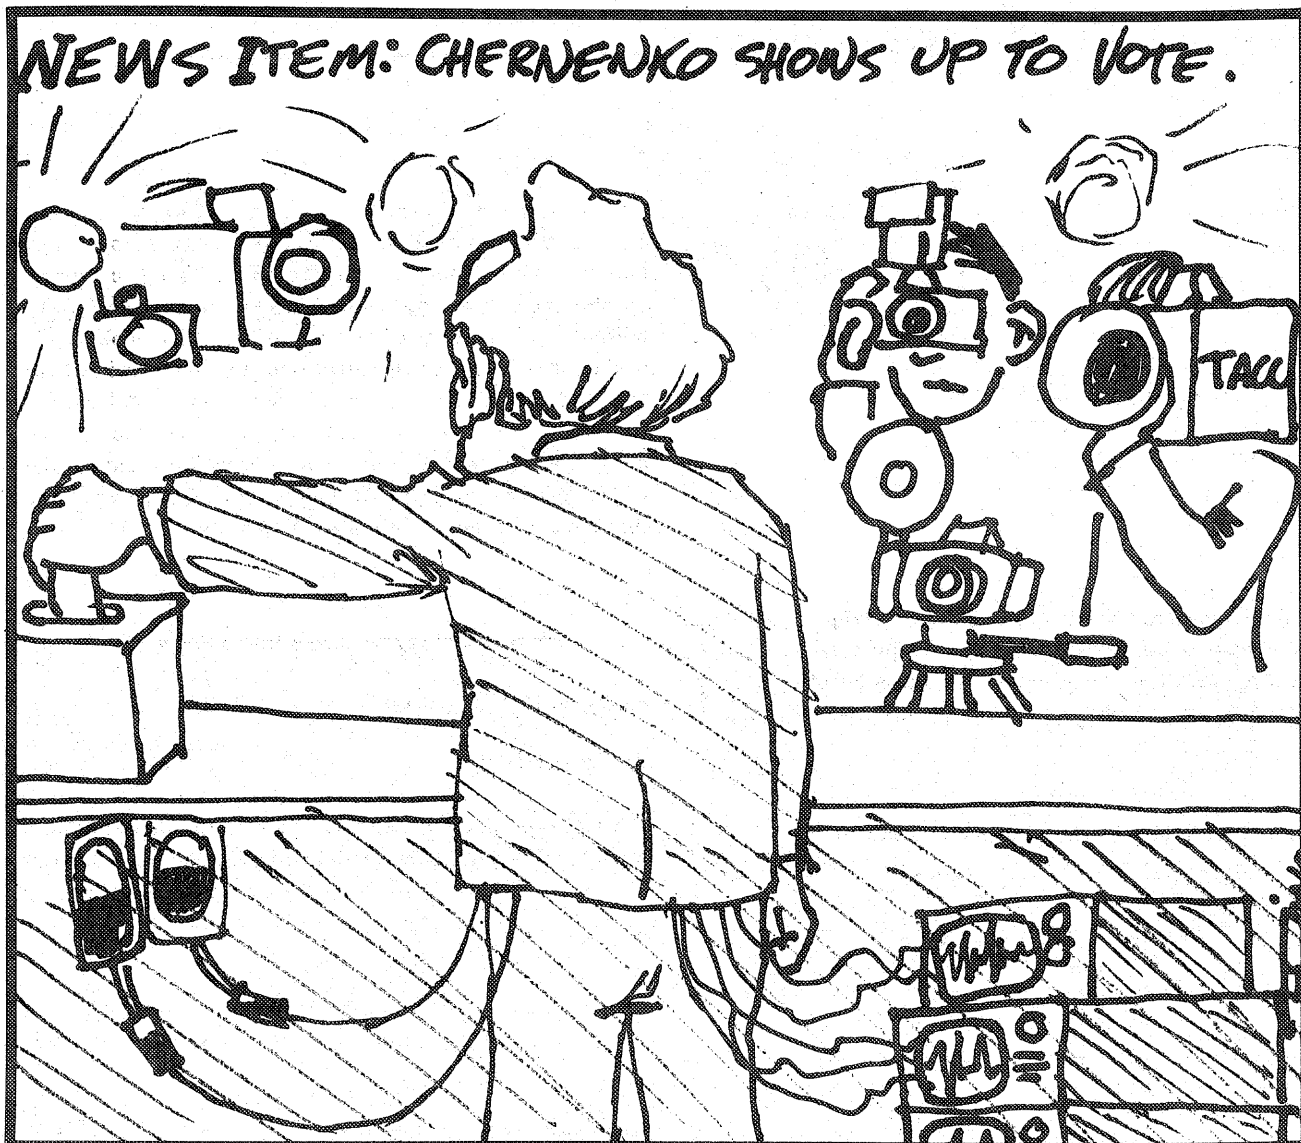

People are always more than willing to point out our oversights here at "The Nugget." And they have such a predictable way of doing it. It's really neat - slogans and rhetoric never seems to change. When people get ahold of some tired, old cliché, they are never loath to use it again. I have worked on the newspaper for two years. One thing that I have learned is that people who feel like criticizing our operation have their own patent phrase. It goes something like "I (or we, whatever the case) don't see why NAIT even needs a newspaper?!" This is always said in a tone of much indignation and authority, as if it's up to just one person as to whether or not the newspaper does continue. Although, I don't like hearing criticism, I nonetheless take it as a signal to take a look back at our objectives. Last week, I received a signal that prompted me to re-examine our goals.

At the beginning of the year, we said the newspaper would be a source of information to the NAIT student. So far, I think we've done this. We said that our employees are NAIT students. So far, we've always acknowledged this. We also said the "The Nugget" will be an open forum for student comment and opinion. So far, it has been. As a matter of fact, I can look at where we are now, and say we've done a damn good job of fulfilling our objectives. So, we'll still print the news, we'll still recognize student ownership, and our letter page and our classified section will still be an open forum for student input.

Most of you will probably realize that "The Nugget" came under some sort of fire last week. Upon further perusal of this week's paper, you'll probably understand why. I'm not going to bother spelling it out here. This week's editorial has partially been an opportunity to let off steam. Let me try to sum it up by saying the whole staff and myself have worked long and hard to put out a good newspaper. I know we've succeeded. If anyone wants to complain to us about anything they have the right to do so. Just remember two things:

- 1) As we are funded by NAIT students, it will take a mandate from the students to change their newspaper.
- 2) Anyone who wishes to complain shouldn't use that self-righteous, non-sensical, "why do we even need a newspaper?" attitude. They will be ignored.

BRING ON THE GOLDEN BEARS!

Picture Canada's number one collegiate hockey team playing the top University hockey team to see which post-secondary hockey team is indeed number one. It could very well happen in mid-March at the Northland's Coliseum.

A local promoter may stage the event and he estimates that it could attract from 6,000 to 10,000 fans. Wow!, the NAIT Ooksiks vs. the U of A Golden Bears in a clash of the post-secondary hockey titans.

This one event, which would be much more than just a "hockey game," will prove wrong any misconceptions that may exist about the competitive hockey programs between the two schools. Judging purely from pre-season about the Hockey Bears and their celeb. coach Clare Drake, it seems almost suprising that NAIT even has a team. And do they ever have a team!

Because of the Ooksiks' magnificent 25 and 0 record this season, some of the media attention has been taken away from the Golden boys. It's great to think that the lads on the other side of the river are probably quivering in their topsiders wondering how to get back in the limelight.

The Edmonton media has suggested that the U of A have more to lose so consequently they may choose not to play. I doubt it! If there's a way that they (the University) could get back on the front pages, they'll find a way.

NAIT students should be getting very excited about this one. Wouldn't it be great to be sitting in the Coliseum, NAIT students on one side and University students on the other. Visions of fanatical behavior displayed during U.S. college football games comes to mind. No matter what the outcome would be, this game has the potential to be an extremely memorable event.

The publicity surrounding the event has already enhanced NAIT's image around town. A victory in this game could make NAIT, and not U of A, the darling of the Edmonton media. The Ooks' excellent coach, Perry Pearn, and the rest of his super staff will be able to recruit better and better players and so on and so on and so on. In any event NAIT cannot lose.

So far this year NAIT has defeated the U of A in other head to head competitions other than hockey. One of our computer teams defeated a U of A team during a computer competition this year.

The NAIT ski team has won both interschool meets held this year. The only element these events needed was the much needed publicity.

NAIT needs you Ooks! Go out there and make us proud as you've done so far this year. You'll always be winners with us!

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

DISGUSTING CLASSIFIED AD.

DEAR MR. O'NEILL:

We wish to express our extreme disgust and disappointment at the crudeness of the ad regarding "gynecologist's chair for sale" in the February 21 issue of The Nugget.

Tired of going fishing but like the smell. For sale or trade one used Gynecologist chair. Phone Rick 477-9645

As employees of this Institute, we attempt to treat the students as adults worthy of our respect as well as our assistance. The above mentioned ad is an offense to the intelligence and self-respect of students and staff alike.

Is this an indication of the much-touted maturity and good taste attributed to the current Nugget Staff? Is it a flashback to the now infamous "Fugget" mentality which embarrassed the whole Institute last spring? Surely, Mr. Editor, you and your staff need not revert to pre-pubescent attitudes about the functioning of the human body in order to appear clever. That young adults such as yourselves are still snickering over "bathroom" jokes is pathetic, and we are embarrassed for you.

We suggest that you keep in mind the population that your readers include: Students with a level of self-respect and maturity, staff who would like to be proud of their student associates, and parents, incoming students, and prospective employers who will form their impressions of the Institute and the people within it, partly from what they read in the pages of the student publication. To exactly what depths of journalistic slovenliness and bad taste do we wish them exposed?

Ed's Note: The preceding ad was run through routine policy administration on my part. This ad in no way reflects NUGGET staff views or opinions.

Editors:

I was less than amused at the futile attempt at humor expressed by "Rick" in the classified section of Issue #18. Lord knows we all need a good joke to keep us in good spirits for the upcoming exams, but his joke crossed the line of mildly permissquiss to downright vulgar. Rick is obviously well read as far as Hustler magazine goes and that is where the joke belongs. The author's attempt at wit only shows his lack of it. Jokes such as these definately have their place, but the Nugget isn't one of them. I hope in the future you will exercise some descretion and not publish tasteless jokes that have to resort to filth to get a chuckle.

LOVE IS THE ANSWER

DEAR EDITOR:

Last weeks letter to the editor, "Love is the Answer" was, I feel, a very good letter. Abortion has been found to be an easy way of removing the responsibility of "adults" who, at times, indulge themselves in permissive activities.

It is ironic, five month's before the birth of these "individuals", their parents decided to give birth to a child.

Their mere existence is proof of that. Now, why do these people want to remove the life of a person, a person that could enjoy the pleasures of living, of making decisions of their own. Because of a "decision" of having an abortion they remove the life of a potential citizen of society.

If the child is truly not wanted by the biological parents, adoption is a real alternative. I personally know an adopted person who is truly proud of his adoptive parents, and is very (!!!) happy that he is alive today.

Why anyone should have the "right" to have an abortion, to have the "right" to remove the life of another person's real right to life, is beyond my comprehension.

HUMOR THE UNIVERSAL LANGUAGE

Letter To The Editor

Good Day - Humor is a universal language as you all know. I think most people like to laugh, so I will try to put some humor into your day, but I must warn you I have a semi sick sense of humor.

I think "one liners" are pretty funny and you can freak people out by saying something they will not expect. 1 example is when you go through a McDonald's drive through and the person says "Welcome to McDonald's may I take your order", you can say a number of things. 1. No thanks I'm just driving through. 2. 3Big Macs, 2 large cokes and a partridge in a pear tree. 3. A case of blue, and a 26 of tequila, $500 and an address to a party or if your at a restaurant and the waitress comes and says "how is everything?" you can say "not bad except I have this terrible rash on my thigh" or if she says "Can I get you anything else?" you say "Yes, how about that cute blonde sitting 2 tables away."

Insults are pretty humorous too, if the person who you insult knows it's a joke. I think my favority insult is "You're ugly and your mother dresses you funny." It can apply to anyone no matter how ugly he/she is or how they dress. Another good insult is, if you see one of your friends has a new car, shirt, hair cut etc. you can say "Nice car, shirt etc." pause for a second and say "just kidding". There are a lot more insults and one liners. If you want more send $200 in check or money order to Scott Purdy c/o NAIT Newspaper, or save $3 C.O.D. by using your Visa or Master Charge toWell this was my first attempt, and I hope you got a chuckle or two, I would like to hear from at least a few people to give me their honest opinion, well, maybe not too honest, but tell me if you would like me to continue.

Thanx

Scott Purdy

P.S. I will try to write on which ever type of humor you want.

GRIMBLE GRUMBLE

Dear Bill Grumble,

I read your article in the last edition of the Nugget. I've never met you. . . personally, but, until this point I found you're articles to be quite amusing and I would allow them to be classified under entertainment. . . until this issue!

For one thing, your opening line, "You wanna know what's wrong with the world? Eight track tapes. . ." I must say that is an assinine remark since the least of our worries is about eight track tapes and the people who purchase them!

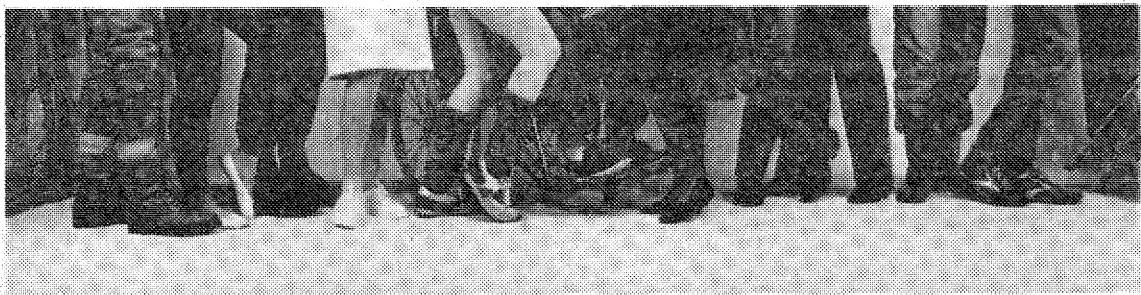

In case you hadn't noticed Bill, the unemployment in our country is extremely high. Not all Canadian citizens have the money to spend on buying a new stereo system to accomodate cassette tapes, let alone the video disc player, a record turn table (that only plays 45's), a seasons bowling pass, an outing to the "Driftwood Room" in "The Chuckwood Motor Hotel," a tent trailer, and a Black and Decker saw, which you mentioned an eight track tape owner would have on hand.

Oh, by the way, I've never met anyone recently who seems to posses an eight track anything, but, I have met many, many "cassette people," and you know what Bill? They seem to meet all of the qualifications of you "eight track cowboys," except they have trouble manipulating "large" objects!

I hope you find more relevant subjects to comment about in the future that relate to our institution and its people!

POSTER POLICY EXPLANATION

Dear Editor:

In the last edition of the Nugget, there was a letter to the editor regarding NAIT poster policy. The policy is in place to protect students and student clubs from outside organizations that run events to line their own pockets with money. On several occasions outside organizations advertised events on campus. They asked for deposits and then disappeared. This left many angry students and they blamed NAITSA because the posters were allowed on campus. That is the first reason why we don't allow outside clubs to put up posters. The second being that if an outside club advertises that UB40 or Doug and the Slugs is playing at the Convention Centre, what chance would one of our tech clubs have running a D.J. at Bonnie Doon Hall? It has been pressure from students in all technologies clubs at NAIT that has influenced the rules of the poster policy.

A third and equally important factor is that the administration of NAIT is also against the advertising of outside clubs.

Finally, if you look around the school the walls are already plastered with posters. If we allow outside businesses and clubs to put up posters, the walls and windows would be layered with them.

So Kevin, if you did lose money, I'm happy that it was you and Powder Fiends and not one of the NAIT technology clubs or a bunch of students. That's right, Kevin was working for Powder Fiends Ski Club and not as a student just trying to arrange a good time and cheap trip for fellow students. I guess he just forgot to mention this fact or he can't read the posters and brochures that he was passing out.

Very Concerned (for the students),

Bruce Antoniuk

A SMOKER'S SIDE

Dear Editor:

Re: The letter by Doug Watters, The Nugget, Feb. 14:

"And the scribes and Pharisees brought unto him a woman taken in adultery They say unto him, Moses in the law commanded us, that such should be stoned: but what sayest thou? But Jesus said unto them, he that is without sin among you, let him first cast a stone at her" (John 8:3 - 7)

I feel that I have been judged unfairly and prematurely by Mr. Watters. I will admit that there are some slobos who smoke, however, his letter seems to say that all smokers, or at least the vast majority, are slobos. I smoke, and I know many other smokers, and very few, if any, use dishes for ash trays. Instead, we use ashtrays for ashes. And we use garbage cans for garbage! Using ashtrays might be easier if they were not filled with: scraps of paper, old gum, orange peels, sandwich wrap, candy wrappers, lids from coffee cups, etc. The number of ashtrays (especially in the hallways) filled with such garbage is a whole lot higher than the number of plates used for ashtrays.

I did enjoy reading about how easy it is to quit. Mr. Watters has obviously never been a smoker. I have tried to quit more than once, and I will probably try quitting again. But, if you have never been addicted, you couldn't know how much 'will power' it takes. Figure out how much will power it would take to turn down a free of charge, night out, with all your friends, doing your favorite activity, on a Friday night, because you have a half an hour worth of unimportant homework to do sometime during an otherwise unplanned weekend. To quit smoking takes more for a lot longer period of time.

Finally, to all who would criticize me for smoking. One of the most annoying things to the average smoker is the self-righteous non-smoker. I'm not proud to be a smoker, but I resent being made to feel like a lower form of life because I smoke.

MORE DALY DILEMMA

LETTER TO THE EDITOR:

Why did NAIT administration let our investment instructor go part way through the term? They obviously did not look for the opinions of the finance students. We lost six classes and valuable knowledge as a result of their handling of this instructor.

He had the students's interests at heart. He gave us individual help on our research projects. He did a good job with us and we were enjoying his teaching.

Material was well organized and clearly explained. The course objectives were clearly outlined. His material had improved because we are getting interesting new handouts over Mr. Daly's name that classes last quarter did not get.

Obviously we must remain anonymous because we want to get our diplomas. We want to express our disappointment on losing a good instructor that we liked.

THE TUNES NAIT HEARS

Dear Editor:

I'd like to say something to Steven P. Smith, author of Nugget Noise. Forgive me if I'm wrong, but I seemed to get the impression that you didn't like CHNR. You said our music isn't new or contemporary, well let me explain our situation to you. Each DJ is responsible for our own playlist and where we get the records is our business. Our library of records at school was mostly accumulated in the 60's and the stuff we did get was basically rejects from stations since our listener range is not in top ratings. Now that I have the opportunity, phone our station and REQUEST what you want if we can get it, we'll play it. We want to hear from NAIT.

IN MEMORY OF JAMES LLEWLYN DEAN

The first year chemical technology class regrets to announce the death of one of our classmates. James Dean passed away on February 19, 1985. He had leukemia. Jim was well liked by everyone in his class. He was friendly to all. Jim's loss will be suffered by his wife Dorothy. Jim will be missed by all who knew him. We, in chemistry, will miss his good natured attitude, his willingness to lend a helping hand and, most of all, his encouragement to others in light of his own problems. Jim will be fondly remembered by us all.

Letter To The Editor:

A rose
Budding, blooming,
Sending its love out beyond the horizon.
Across miles of loneliness
Reaching out to those in need.
Trying to help.
Trying to lighten the load.
No one sees the beauty.
No one notices its fragrance.
All that's known are the thorns,
The imperfections,
The faults.
The rose slowly fades away,
Leaving only a memory.
Painfully sweet, acutely bitter.
No one had time to see the rose,
And now it's too late.
The rose if gone,
Perhaps never to return.

KATIMAVIK

Katimavik (pronounced Ka-teem-a-vik), Canada's national youth volunteer organization, is currently recruiting participants for projects in 1985. Now entering its ninth year of operation, Katimavik offers a unique learning experience to young Canadians between the ages of 17 and 21. While serving Canadian Communities, participants can learn valuable work skills, a second language, travel to different regions of Canada; and make lifelong friendships. Each group of twelve participants spends three months in three different regions of Canada. This includes one rotation in a French speaking Community. The work projects undertaken by Katimavik participants are arranged in conjunction with local agencies and may include social or physical work.

In the Praries/NWT Region approximately 110 projects have begun since June of 1983. Another 75 are planned for June 1985-86.

SMOKING IN THE WORKPLACE

Once again there has been mounting concern about the potential health hazards of second-hand smoke in NAIT. A student of NAIT presented the problem in a letter to Dr. Souch. The letter contained concerns about not having designated non-smoking areas within NAIT and particularly the new lounge.

This is not the first time that Dr. Souch has been confronted. Over the past two years a number of concened staff and students have tried to persuade the President and Health and Safety Committee to come up with some sort of policy. But the only accomplishment obtained was the partial non-smoking area in the cafeteria.

When confronting Dr. Souch with the problem, he claims there is action being taken. His concern was to make sure that any action taken be done carefully so as not to upset smokers and non-smokers.

Dr. Souch states that "it is difficult for both sides to be totally satisfied, thus there must be some sort of compromise made.

When Dr. Souch was asked about the problem of no-smoking signs being ignored in the tower, he replied that without these problems being brought to the attention of the administration, no actions can be taken. Of yet no mention or complaint has been leveled regarding the tower lounge.

NAIT's counterpart SAIT was faced with the same problem. Their efforts surmounted to a non-smoking area in the cafeterias and non-smoking offices for those who wanted them. SAIT feels they have the same problems in getting new policies as we do, and that getting any action taken is half the problem.

There are legal responsibilities for NAIT to take. NAIT has the legal right to prohibit all smoking but realistically this will probably never happen. Hopefully, with the upcoming recommendations from the Health and Safety Committee there will be some changes made. But again the responsibility will fall on the Board of Governors and Dr. Souch to implement and enforce a no-smoking policy.

SAIT NEWSPAPER MUZZLED

The attempted impeachment of SAITSA Vice President Lavina Wohlford during a closed-door session Monday night has raised a number of questions regarding freedom of information on Campus.

The main question posed is: Does the student body have the right to know what is discussed and how their representatives voted during SRC meetings?

Normally all SRC meetings are open to the public and the Emery Weal reporter who represents the SAIT community has the freedom to report which issues were discussed, what motions were passed, and, in the case of division, who voted for or against a motion.

But Monday night when the motion to impeach the Vice President was introduced, council, without discussion, voted to hold the debate and vote in secrecy.

The Emery Weal reporter and other members of the public were ordered to leave and all members of SRC were further ordered not to reveal or discuss any of the proceedings of the secret session.

A secret vote was ordered on a representative basis which means each member of council gets one vote for every 20 people in his or her faculty. And, apart from the result, Chairman Steve Harding would not reveal how each member voted.

What council won't tell the Weal or students is why a matter of such obvious importance was debated and voted on in close secrecy.

It would appear SRC needs to be reminded of a few fundamental obligations of elected office. Such as the fact that they were democratically elected by the student body to represent them, to echo their views, and to report back to them on preceedings.

Council should also be reminded that although their secret meeting may well have been quite legal, fair and just, that this is perhaps not enough. To quote a well-known phrase "Justice must not only be done, it must be seen to be done."

The only question left is how the student body feels about this secret meeting.

You could try talking to your student representative who voted for you Monday night but don't bother asking how he voted, or what was discussed - he won't tell you - he's sworn to secrecy.

THE 12th ANNUAL CONCRETE TOBOGGAN RACE

"PARTY ANIMALS ON MISSION FROM GOD"

On Feb 7 a rag tag contingent of 33 party animals set out on a mission to race concrete toboggans in Winnipeg, Manitoba. With Molson's supplying the necessary survival goods for the 17 hour bus trip, we set off on our mission. Unfortunately our token bus driver "Fi Fi La Phew", attempted to jump ship with the keys along the way. With peace restored "Fi Fi" continued on his way only to hear the frequent cry of "Where's the hash" throughout the night. When we finally arrived in Winnipeg "Fi Fi" insisted that we attend the beer & pizza bash. The U of S teams decided to liven things up by starting a pizza fight (save the beer). To this NAIT responded with beer soaked toilet paper bombs to the chant of "Gimme, Gimme, Gimme".

During this time SAIT introduced a new Olympic sport called "Belly Bucking", be sure to watch for this in 88 winter games.

University of Waterloo won the technological design award, thus the opportunity to host next years competition. The U of C, SAIT and UBC also felt that NAIT deserved the team spirit award due to our wild and lewd behavior. So they presented us with a trophy for team spirit.

Will Sherm of Earth Res. ever find his missing eyebrow or the lost condominiums?

Who is going to pay for MIET's long distant phone bill to Ralph on the great white telephone? (What a team effort)

Will the hotel have sent in divers to retrieve the pool furniture and the pinball machine from the bottom of the pool?

Will "Fi Fi La Phew" ever want to drive for NAIT again?

Will Craig S. ever get out of Junior High School action or will he just continue to do the gaitor?

Will Howard C ever get a job as professional speed bum?

RACE DAY

With 23 teams entered from across Canada, Alberta made up the largest contingent with 10 teams. Two from SAIT, Three from U of C and Five from NAIT. NAIT placed three teams in the top ten. The Beer Bullits from BCET, comprising of Greg Rudolph, Rod Reid, Dan O'Farrell, Paul Vincent, Reg Roy and Grant Stuart did the best finishing with the third fastest time in Canada, 11.07 seconds. The Beer Bullits also won most spectacular run due to a radical brake design that stopped the sled (all 250 lbs) but not the occupants. U.B.C. managed to win with the fastest time of 10.86 seconds, U of M second with 10.91 seconds. The

THE FUTURE OF EDUCATION IN ALBERTA

Edmonton, February 21, 1985 . . . Is the quality of education declining? Will technology change it for the better? Does living in the new information society mean that lifelong learning is everyone's destiny? These are some of the questions that well-known broadcaster Laurier Lapierre and panel of guest experts attempt to answer on an ACCESS NETWORK Special Edition program, "Education: A Life Sentence?"

Joining Mr. Lapierre will be educators from Alberta and from across the country. Dr. Ann Ironside, President, Canadian Association of Adult Education; Dr. Walter Worth, Professor of Education, University of Alberta; and others will discuss the issues in a lively and thought-provoking manner.

This one-hour program will be broadcast on Wednesday, March 6 at 9:00 pm via your local cable company. It is part of the ACCESS NETWORK Special Edition series that explores the major issues today and how Albertans are affected. Each program will feature Laurier Lapierre as host of a panel of guests discussing topics ranging from the economy to culture. Special Edition airs on the last Wednesday of every month until the end of May.

SAIT EDITOR OUSTED

An uproar has occurred over the firing of Greg Harris, Editor of SAIT's Emery Weal. The Communications Board concluded that "Harris had been fired due to his inability to communicate, administer and give guidance to other members of the Emery Weal staff." Greg Harris was in charge of the SAIT yearbook, SAITSA Seeker, Activities Calendar and the Emery Weal.

The smiles on these faces soon turned sour as these first graduates headed out to join the work force, only to discover that they had been made obsolete by the advent of the Water-Pik. Many of these disillusioned alumni had to take other lines of work, as was the case with Milton Gludowski (middle row, second from the left) who became an Elvis impersonator, and Gladys Nerbit (top row, fifth from left) who became a female wrestler and achieved some local fame by going to the Game Farm on weekends and dead-lifting a moose. NAIT cancelled the Dental Flossing Technology program the next year.

THE NUGGET LAWS OF EXAMS...

REPRINTED FROM NUGGET '82

1. THE harder the exam, the more you need to go to the john.
2. THE more important the exam, the bigger the mental block.
3. THE more you cram, the more you will forget when exam time comes.
4. THE question you can't finish is always worth the most.
5. THE time you budget per question will never be enough.
6. THE instructors idea of a good exam, is your idea of a bad exam.
7. THE best mark in class is never yours
8. IF you spell the instructors name wrong, you can forget that 100 percent.
9. IF you think you did well. . . you didn't.
10. NO matter where you sit, you will get your exam last of them all.
11. IF you finish an exam early and leave, you probably forgot a few pages.
12. THE longer and harder the exam, the quicker your calculator dies.
13. SURE fire answers - aren't.
14. DON'T chance changing your answers on a multiple choice exam.
15. No matter where you sit, the person behind you will chew his fingernails during the test.
16. THE class that you skip, will constitute 70 percent of the exam.
17. YOU will spend all night making cheat sheets, the exam ends up being open book.
18. THE hardest exam will be scheduled for 8:00 am on Monday.
19. IF the exam is going well . . . you obviously don't know what the hell you're doing.
20. THE exam questions have nothing in common with your in-class examples.
21. Our answer written on the hand is safer than two in the memory.
22. THE later you are, the slower the traffic is.
23. THE room the exam is in, is the one you never had to find before.

It's funny how some things are put next to each other. For example, City Hall is not too far from the Remand Centre - and the nurse's office is right across the hall from the cafeteria.

Two things may happen to you if you eat in the NAIT Cafeterias - they eat there once and immediately start bringing their own lunch, or they eat there once and start bringing up their lunch.

First, the fries. The ones in the South Cafeteria are close to edible - enough people pass through there that new fries are constantly being made. But in the North Cafeteria, the fries may sit for days in those little cardboard boxes until they're so hard you could pick your teeth or build a bungalow with them.

But, it's argued, that's what the gravy is for. Perhaps - but not the gravy that sits in those little styrofoam cups. This hybrid of butterscotch pudding and Beef-In-A-Mug eventually takes on the flavor of edible oil product as the styrofoam cup melts.

Then there's dessert. Every day you see those experiments by the Baking Tech freshmen - cream puffs, strawberry something - or others, little chocolate-and-bread things with white stuff drizzled over the top. Most of these things seem to have too much sugar and too little flavor in them. Some friends of mine enjoy speculation over what kind of mark the Baking student must have gotten for that particular morsel.

Now don't get me wrong. I'm not knocking all of what the cafeterias put out. There's nothing like a Cafeteria Mega-Coffee in the morning. It beats the hell out of that hot water with . . . brown crayon dipped in it that you get out of the vending machines. And just the other day, I was surprised by a cinnamon-mocha cake sprinkled with burnt almonds that was exceptionally good. No Sara Lee special, that one.

I guess it all boils down to the fact that some foods need to be mass-produced in different ways from others. What we need is some of the fine folks from the Golden Arches to offer some pointers to our boys in white. Say what you will about McDonalds food - if nothing else, it's consistent. (Consistently great or consistently nauseating - take your pick)

In closing, I'd like to acknowledge this week's letter about my column, and say this: Would you please get one of your friends to write another letter explaining what the hell you were talking about? Thanks, and keep writing; now get outa here.

STUFF TO CATCH

-Grab your cracklin' Rosie and say "Play me"; Neil Diamond is in the Jube March 23.

-Heads are gonna bang when Triumph hits town March 21.

-Finely crafted funk from Countdown will be served up at the Sidetrack Cafe all this week.

-Don't try to lay no boogie woogie on the Highway Motor Inn while Long John Baldry's there (Feb. 28 to Mar. 2).

-Eurogliders - a band from down under - hits the big Edmonchuk on April 1 at SUB. The little pieces of paper that will let you in are being exchanged for larger green pieces of paper right now.

-Have a last fling before finals at the Rock and Talk this Friday. It's a Beach Party - paint yourself blue and wear a white hat so you can scream "Smurf's Up!"

NAIT WINS BY A NOSE

Not all of NAIT's victories are in the sports arena. Last Sunday, a team from NAIT's Radio and Television Arts won the 3rd Annual Theatresports Media Challenge. The NAIT team vanquished challengers from K-97, CFRN, and even defeated last year's champs, the 630 CHED team.

The four valiant competitors - Matt Burlet, Tim Dixon, Kevin Frazer and Eleanor Harper - came up with improvisations that had the audience rolling in the aisles and the judges racking up the points. Or congratulations to the victors.

For the uninitiated, Theatresports is a form of competition through theatrical improvisation. Two teams challenge each other to various improv games, with points being awarded by a panel of judges. The team with the most points wins the match.

If you'd like to see Theatresports in action, head down to Theatre Network on Sunday nights at 8 pm. It's a fun-filled evening that should't be missed.

FEATURE PICK OF THE WEEK

BY DAVID HULL

With movies in town like "Mrs. Soffel," "The Killing Fields," "A Passage to India" and "Beverly Hills Cop" it can become tough on a movie goer trying to figure out where to part with five bucks and get your monies worth.

This weekend I went to see "The Mean Season" with Kurt Russell and Mariel Hemingway.

Orion Pictures has managed again to keep a high standard set for films released through them. This time Producer David Foster has done a marvelous job of picking a great screenplay and making it work on the big screen.

"The Mean Season" refers to the hurrican time of year off the Florida Coast. Our story takes place in and around Miami where Malcolm Anderson (Kurt Russell) is a reporter for the Miami Journal.

Anderson is ready to chuck the big city and move to Colorado with his girlfriend (Mariel Hemingway). Once there, they planned to live happily ever after and he would be editor of the local newspaper.

After returning from the interview in Colorado, Anderson stops by the paper to quit. Instead his Boss (David from One Day at a Time) send him out on a murder story with his sidekick photographer (the Pimp from Risky Business).

Shortly after he files his story in the paper the killer phones him and wants to confide information with Anderson and no one else. Still intent on Colorado, Malcolm tries to quit but being the only one in touch with the psycho, starts talk of winning pulitzer prizes.

The interaction of the other members of the media pounding Russell for information gives him a taste of how blood thirsty and inconsiderate some reporters can be when chasing a story.

The killing goes on and Russell gets to meet the killer face to face but is tricked into believing him to be someone else.

Finally this psycho gets mad at our friend the reporter and takes his girlfriend hostage.

To tell anymore would only spoil "The Mean Season". As for a rating, I wish more films had this much of a story and were put together as well. "A DEFINITE MUST TO SEE," that is if you like these kinds of movies

MOVIE UPDATE

By: Byron A. Martin

When Loudon Swain turned 18, he made a deal with himself.

To keep it, he's running through the streets of Spokane, Washington, in a rubber sweat suit, doing push-ups till he drops and eating less than an anorexic swallow. His goal is to lose 23 pounds. No more, no less.

At present, Loudon is a stand-out wrestler at Thompson High School. But the toughest wrestler in the state is a human battering ram named Shute who works out with a seven-foot length of telephone pole between his shoulders and weighs in at 168 pounds. To take him on, Loudon has to make the weight. His coach thinks he's crazy. His friends are less complimentary. They predict that Loudon will wind up in traction "from his eyeballs down."

The sexy drifter Loudon loves doesn't know the first thing about wrestling except that it smells awful. In any case, she won't be around to witness the carnage; she's moving on to San Francisco as soon as her car is fixed.

It takes Loudon's self-appointed "half-Indian spritual advisor," Kuch, to put his pal's problem in perspective. Loudon, he claims, is on a vision quest, an attempt to gain communion with the Everywhere spirit and find his place in the eternal circle.

Bull, say Loudon, he just wants to wrestle. . . that's all.

Based on Terry Davis' novel "Vision Quest" in 1979 which was nominated for the years "Best First Novel" is an excellent movie. It has the excitement of "Rocky" and the comedy of "Porky's." Both Matthew Modine and Linda Fiorentino are humorous in a movie about growing up.

The Mean Season

After eight years of covering crime, Miami Journal reporter Malcolm Anderson (Kurt Russell - "The Thing" "Escape from New York") has seen more than his share of murder and mayhem. He and his girlfriend, elementary school-teacher Christine Connolly (Mariel Hemingway - "Star 80"), are ready for daily editions of good news in a small town when his life is changed by a simple phone call.

What appears to be a routine report of a shocking murder suddenly explodes when the killer contacts Malcolm. He appoints the reporter his personal spokesman to explain to the public why this heinous crime was committed and why others just as brutal will follow. Malcolm dubs him the "Numbers Killer."

The killer's calls continue, each revealing details of his mayhem and clues to his own identity. Malcolm is manipulated by the power of the story and pulled into a trap laid by a shrewd, calculating madman. The "Numbers Killer" takes Malcolm with him on his trail of murder. The curious teaming of criminal and reporter becomes national news.

The seduction is complete. Its insidious effects find way into every element of Malcolm Anderson's life. His relationship with Christine is torn apart as Malcolm unwittingly surrenders to the killer's lure.

Though Christine pleads with him to be cautious, he is oblivious to her demands. Her questions of conscience are ignored as the man she loves gradually loses his ability to judge the consequence of his circumstance.

Journalistic ambition overpowers journalistic responsibility. It is a deadly miscalculation.

Don't miss "The Mean Season" it's easily so far the year's best in suspense drama.

Ooks Hockey

OOKS RUN AWAY WITH RECORD!!

The NAIT Ooks are the number one ranked hockey team in the nation and reserved a spot in the ACAC hockey record books for themselves this past weekend.

NAIT closed out the ACAC regular season at the NAIT Arena with two home games this past weekend. On Saturday, February 3rd, the Ooks tripled the Red Deer College Kings 6-2. The Ooks then felled the SAIT Trojans Sunday, February 24th, 13-3.

The Ooks concluded the season with a 25 and 0 record the best ever in ACAC hockey. NAIT now has 51 consecutive wins against ACAC rivals.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 23rd--NAIT OOKS 6, RED DEER KINGS 2 AT NAIT ARENA

The Red Deer College Kings finish second in the ACAC even though they lost their last two games of the regular season. The Kings dropped a 6-2 decision to the NAIT Ooks on Saturday, February 24th at the NAIT Arena.

Grant Couture of the Kings started the scoring on the Red Deer power play at 1:21 of the first period. Mike Spencer of the Ooks notched his 20th of the year to tie the game at 1-1 with 12:50 gone in the first on a play with Sid Cranston.

The Ooks then exploded for four goals in the middle stanza. Sid Cranston's 28th of the season from Brenn Leach lifted NAIT into a 2-1 advantage at 3:05. Randy Repchuk and Ken Good win then set up Ron Amyotte with 4:32 elapsed in the frame. Sid Cranston's second of the night increased NAIT's lead to 4-1. Mike Tookey then tallied his ninth of the campaign completing a play with Ron Amyotte and Jamie Bartman.

Like the first frame, the two teams traded goals in the third. Garnet Klassen pulled the Kings to within three of NAIT at the 3:06 mark of the third. Ron Amyotte's 27th of the season closed out the night's scoring with 50 seconds remaining in the game.

Jeff Lastiwka faced 27 Red Deer shots in the Ooks crease. At the opposite end, Bert Brooker blocked 48 NAIT shots in the Kings net.

SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 24th--NAIT OOKS 13, SAIT TROJANS 3 AT NAIT ARENA

The drive for 25 was completed successfully as the NAIT Ooks capped off the regular season with a 13-3 triumph over the SAIT Trojans at the NAIT Arena Sunday. The Ooks became the first club in ACAC history to go undefeated in regular season play as ACAC scoring champion Sid Cranston added eight points (two goals, six assists) to up his total to 68.

The SAIT powerplay captialized with 5:03 elapsed in the first as Daryl Baxandall connected. Sid Cranston tied the game for NAIT one minute and two seconds later. Cranston then found the net for the 31st time this season at 14:26 to move the Ooks ahead 2-1.

With 1:11 passed in the second, Scott Melnyk tallied his eighth marker of the campaign to give NAIT a two goal cushion. Mike Spencer widened NAIT's lead to 4-1 at the 10:59 mark. Mike Tookey's 10th goal of the campaign increased NAIT's advantage to four. Gary Haddon accounted for NAIT's seventh goal at the 16:54 mark. One minute and 58 seconds followed before Garth Hayes of NAIT rounded out the period's scoring.

Ron Amyotte chalked up his 28th of the year with 7:16 passed in the third. Mike Spencer placed NAIT in double digits a short 38 seconds later. Gary Leach made the score 11-1 in favor of the Ooks at 8:23. Marty Shenfield of the Trojans then replied with SAIT's second goal at the 9:22 mark. One minute and 42 seconds followed before Mike Spencer reinstated NAIT's ten goal advantage. Duane Potekal then placed the biscuit in the NAIT net with 14:09 gone in the period. Ron Amyotte of the Ooks scored his 29th of the season at 16:26 of the third. Garth Hayes then scored the final goal of the regular season with 30 seconds left in the game.

The NAIT netminding tandem of Cleo Rowein and Jeff Lastiwka blocked 23 SAIT blasts. At the other end, the Trojans Rick Cuch was tested 55 times.

In Memory Of The Late Telecom Tiger

He was a man we all admired. His yellow hair and his bright smile enlightened our everyday. Last week he was told by his love, a particular hairdressing student, to take a jump. On Feb. 23 he did just that. His jump left a big hole in our lives, a big hole in the ice too. Now the telecom students are left without the joy he brought us. We have yet to find the answer as to why someone so heartless could tell him to jump. Maybe some day she will tell us but the words will never be heard by the one it meant the most to, THE TIGER

Signed: Saddened Telecom Students.

To the Lovebirds from locker T5003: Congratulations!! You've just broken the worlds record for close bodily contact (If you got any closer you'd be wearing the same clothes). Some of us other Business students have to eat lunch after watching such displays of emotion. So please, could you use a little discretion and move to a more private location, like the cafeteria where some other students can enjoy losing their lunch.

Signed: A Concerned Business Class.

Lost: Pulsar wrist watch. Black in color, with gold numbers. Lost on Friday afternoon Feb. 22 in the Electronics Wing Mens washroom (H Wing) main floor. Reward offered. Contact the Nugget office Moe Amirie (BAS) Home Phone: 475-7910

Dear Telecom Tiger, BACK OFF!!

Dear Den of Iniquity, You're History, You're Archives, You're Out of There "Nightshift"

Dear Lydia, Kathy, Sylvie, Darla, Grace and Company; of the Westwood Campus:

We males of the main campus also are extremely bored with the lack of female attendance in our Technologies, we hope to appeal our way into the Westwood Campus within the next semester. Keep your fingers crossed and heads up, we're coming.

Signed: Ron, Mike, Lorne, Ross, and Rosco. Concerned males, with you in mind.

P.S. Please keep correspondings.

Dear Ladies of the Westwood Campus:

The reason Forestry is a 90 percent Male Tech is because only 10 percent of the females had the stomachs to handle Class C. Believe us ladies, these males (if you want to call them that) are far from exciting, in fact most of them think they're still up north where it's o.k. to act like male moose in rut.

Just a friendly warning from the Forestry ladies - remember we know how to use chainsaws - tangling with Class C is not recommended unless you have similar training. P.S. Class "C" Sucks

Dear ladies of the Westwood

Campus: Two fun loving gentlemen from Electronics Engineering would love to have a guided tour of your beautiful campus. Following your kind hospitality we will take you dancing to a place of your choice. Please slip a reply soon to Locker #A470, Love the Males of Moto Mich found in A wing 155.

Keep Thursday, April 4 open! Wear What You Dare Beach Party. Watch the Nugget for details.

To the girls of Westwood Campus

The guys at NAIT would like to say
We sure wish you'd come back our way.

Poor Bill, Mike, and all the rest

Feel no ones left here to molest
I hate to see them in this state
So we may have to go to SAIT

Because you're gone, and not around

We now keep Bill, gagged and bound

We're going to let him loose one day

Expect to see him down your way.

The rest of us are all but tame

In fact, we're all quite insane
But because we soon all have to go

We plan to give you girls a show.

We hope to take you by surprise

So we've planted little spies
Soon, beware the time will come

When you'll see more than 1

Our last remark before our word closes

A heartfelt apology to our favorite white roses.

When we first started, it seemed like fun

To write to you and have a series run

All through our writing, we thought we had the best in the land.

But imposters dove in, and it got out of hand

But now we've found out, that it wasn't you

And through all of this mess we hope this will do,

DEAR JOE:

I would like to meet you as you sound like such a sexy mature MAN. These messages written on the desktop are so impersonal and such a bore, but the "vibes" I get from that desk are wonderful. Just the thought of you placing your "derriere" in the same spot I place mine thrills me to death.

Please meet me at the elevators on the sixth floor on Monday, March 11 at 12:00.

Looking forward to meeting you and assessing your potential assets.
