NORTHERN ALBERTA INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY STUDENTS' NEWSPAPER

NUGGET

UNVEILED!

NAITSA President Greg Scherf, NAIT President Dr. Stan Souch, Chairman of the Board of Governors Mr. Allan McCagherty and Mr. Carl Paproski, MLA for Edmonton Kingsway all worked together to generate funds for the lounge and all were present to unveil the plaque which is proudly displayed in the New Student Lounge, The Naitrium.

The Naitrium was officially opened on May 6, 1985.

The plaque inscription in the Naitrium reads:

This lounge is dedicated to the continuing spirit of cooperation among the three parties whose joint funding made it possible:

*Student Association Northern Alberta Institute of Technology
Board of Governors Northern Alberta Institute of Technology
Advanced Education Endowment Fund, Government of Alberta.*

Officially opened by Carl Paproski, MLA, Edmonton, Kingsway. May 6, 1985.

The name, NAITRIUM, was conceived by Doug Hansen, a second year student in Building Construction Engineering Technology and member of the Board of Governors.

Edmonton Kingsway M.L.A., Carl Paproski, unveiling the dedication plaque in the Naitrium lounge.

NO WITCH-HUNT IN CANADA

In 1952, Joseph McCarthy, a US Senator from Wisconsin, became chairman of the Senate Permanent Investigations Subcommittee. This position was a very powerful one for a Senator who had thus far had a rather obscure career until then. In fact, McCarthy's only prior claim to fame was when he astounded the United States by charging that the State Department had been infiltrated by Communists. In his new position, he used his power to propagate the fear of Communism. Through public hearings, the use of unidentified witnesses, reckless and unsubstantiated accusations, and a total disregard for the laws of evidence, McCarthy hounded anyone unfortunate enough to be labelled, by him, a Communist. Careers and lives were destroyed by the slightest implication and the flimsiest evidence. The term "McCarthyism" sprang from his unorthodox methods, and the word denotes assaults characterized by sensationalist tactics and reckless accusations.

The study of history is as imperative as it is interesting. We have been warned that "those who don't learn from history are doomed to repeat it." Have we learned anything from the embarrassment of the McCarthy era? I wonder. At the present, a 64 year old Lithuanian tailor is being brought before the Deschenes commission. He is accused of being a Nazi war criminal. Most of us know about this, however mainly because the front pages of our Edmonton newspapers have boldly pointed out that a Nazi has been found in our own backyard (Brooks, Alberta). The sensationalism surrounding his charges, coupled with the recent trial and conviction of Ernst Zundel, and the fact that emotions are at a climax due to the 40th anniversary of the end of World War II; all this sets a perfect scenario for our own Canadian version of McCarthyism.

It was only last month that the Simon Wiesenthal Center submitted a list of suspected Nazis to the Deschenes Commission. Was our 64 year old tailor on the list? And if so, how many more names will be called?

Before you make a rash connection between this editorial and the swastika ad that was displayed outside our office at the beginning of the year, pause a minute. I do not sympathize with Nazi war criminals; I believe that they should be prosecuted. However, above this, I advocate justice - democratic justice which is promoted by our Canadian Judicial System. To fall into the same quagmire that the US found itself in during the '50's would be a disgrace to all Canadians. Let us not be swept up in the emotion and sensationalism which could potentially surround this issue. Let us not rush blindly into a Nazi witchhunt similar to the Communist witch-hunt. We are presently walking a tightrope between justice and McCarthyism. Let's keep justice a priority. Let's not repeat the mistakes of our neighbours.

In the meantime, I'd better shut up. If things get out of hand, I might be called to Ottawa too. Auf Wiedersein.

WE HAVE NOTHING TO REMEMBER

United States President Ronald Reagan's visit to the Nazi Military cemetery in Bitburg West Germany has caused Ronald Reagan more political strife than he's ever encountered during his presidency. What originally was planned as a demonstration of reconciliation between the United States and West Germany turned into an incredible Public Relations headache.

Ronald Reagan accepted the invitation to lay a wreath at the military cemetery from West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl. Upon announcing the Bitburg visit in the itinerary of his recent European visit, Reagan received immediate flak from Jewish communities and veteran groups throughout the world.

Instead of being perceived as a gesture of reconciliation and peace, Ronald Reagan was perceived as a man who was willing to forgive and forget the atrocities that the SS unit of the Nazi army had committed. Although Reagan's speech specifically stated that "we can never forget", the offended groups felt that his actions spoke louder than his words (besides who would ever believe that Reagan himself actually wrote the speech but that's another story).

The excitement created over this recent mention of Nazi's has added fuel to the Nazi hysteria that our media seems compelled to promote. The Edmonton newspapers have had several major news stories regarding suspected war criminals living in Canada. "Alberta Man Denies He Killed For Nazis" shrieked Monday's Edmonton Sun. The story went on to explain how a now 64 year old tailor now living in Brooks, Alberta was a member of a Lithuanian army unit in World War II who fought along with the Nazis against the Russians.

I think the media takes a particular glee from slashing that one word on the front page; NAZI. What does it mean to you? Do you even know what a Nazi or Nazism actually is?

Here in North America we are so sheltered from the harsh realities of what actually happened during World War II. I was privileged to live in West Germany for five years and I've seen a glimpse of what that terrible war left behind. I've visited concentration camps and military cemeteries. The rows upon rows of white crosses needed no explanation and the emotion those crosses evoked was incredible to say the least.

I've also had the opportunity to visit Japan. Hiroshima was one of my stops and I've witnessed countless monuments to the war dead. In Europe and Japan you are reminded daily of the horrors war brings but here in North America all we hear about is who the "Nazi of the Week" is.

North American public opinion is established by the media (like it or not). If the media continues to present the war as

Opinion

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Letter to the Editor:

"So, of what value are the claims of some fool incapable of even managing his own money?" I heard someone say. Not many people give credence to the opinions or needs of such a person.

I am guilty (due to extenuating circumstances) of such a crime. In February I appealed to the Students' Finance Board for my student loan, which ultimately was approved. This application has run the gamut of every snag in the S.F.B.'s insensitive and cumbersome bureaucracy, and as of the end of the first week of May, I have yet to receive anything that my banker considers tangible. After three weeks of promise/no-shows from the S.F.B., I sought assistance from some of the many agencies that I pay for and that allegedly 'service' me, as a constituent.

Will Revelations Never Cease!

Social Services do not recognize that students have needs, or in fact that we are even human beings. STRIKE TWO! My next discovery was that there does not exist a competent Resource Person on the staff of NAIT. (If there is such a person, please come out of your hole!)

Try Again! What about your Students' Association - NAITSA?

NAITSA is a farce, having no socially redeeming purpose, other than as sponsors and purveyors of Cabarets, occasional 'Rock & Talks', as many ski-trips as possible and co-responsible for a "Naitrium" (the new lounge) both poorly designed and executed. From this association I sought help? Foolish me, to think that an elected group of students should exist for the benefit of their electors and fellow students! Upon my attempting to recruit NAITSA's assistance, their self-serving, cover-my-own-ass attitude became painfully apparent. A quick perusal of the NAITSA Constitution reveals that their function (in addition to those already mentioned) is to support sports activities at NAIT, and nothing more (heaven-forbid meeting the real needs of their electorate). STRIKE THREE FOR ME!

Perhaps my problem is unique; and why should you care, anyway?

The Problem, O fellow NAIT student, is mine as well as yours!

The Students' Finance Board is over-encumbered by an inept bureaucracy.

Our Students' Association purports to represent the general student body, in fact it only serves a small portion of those folks who annually fork out almost $100 to support 'jocular' activities.

The Counselling department is unable to advise.

These are but a few of our blessings here at NAIT, and these "blessings" are rapidly finding comfortable niches. WHO CARES? no one.

And who cares about the opinions of some fool who can't even manage his own money?

something bad which happened on the other side of the ocean which was caused by an Austrian with a brush cut moustache, than the world is in grave danger of a repeat preformance.

Even in the Soviet Union the people are daily reminded in one way or another about World War II and the 20,000,000 Soviets who were killed. Yet we sit here in our sterile environment never believing that this could happen to us.

The media has a responsibility to remind the citizens of this continent of the war in a serious rather than a sensationalist light. The media should jump on the eyewitness accounts of death and fear from veterans rather than the pasts of 64 year old Lithuanian tailors. The more we sweep the fear under the carpet as if it could never happen to us, the closer we come to repeating. At our present pace we really have nothing to remember except that Nazi and Communist mean bad and USA means good.

THE NAITRIUM

The Naitrium study lounge is a unique project on the NAIT campus. It is the first facility to be jointly funded by the Student Association, the Board of Governors, and the Government of Alberta.

The origins of the lounge can be traced to the recognition by both the Student Association and the Board of Governors that study and lounge space on the NAIT campus was not adequate to meet student needs. Following consultation with the Nait administration and the Campus Development Committee of the Board, the Student Association pledged $125,000 from its building fund to a proposal to develop additional space. The Board of Governors matched the students' pledge, and application was made to the Advanced Education Encowment Fund for a matching grant. With the receipt of a favorable response from the Endowment Fund in May, 1984, Funding arrangements were completed and architectural planning was undertaken.

Construction of the project commenced during fall of 1984 and was completed in the winter of 1985. Students have been enjoying use of the lounge since late February. The time lapse from initial idea to completion was less than a year, making the execution of the project as noteworthy as the funding arrangements.

"FUTURE POSITIVE"

On Monday and Tuesday night some staff and students had the opportunity to hear Ian Percy speak on motivation. He is an energetic and dynamic speaker, who can really move an audience.

Ian Percy is a management psychologist and president of the Canadian Training Resources Inc., a management consulting firm which he founded while an undergrad at the University of Windsor. A resident of Richmond BC, he was invited to Edmonton by NAITSA through the efforts of Joan Davies. While in Edmonton Ian Percy also gave seminars on motivation at the Edmonton General Hospital and the U of A Hospital.

He holds a degree in Education and Theology, as well as Clinical and Organizational Psychology. He is a frequent conference speaker through out Canada and the US. Ian Percy is particularly well known for his innovative work in organizational renewal, managerial effectiveness and motivation. With us he discussed motivation.

There wasn't many in attendance on either night and that was too bad because what this man had to say I think could have benefited all of us.

The seminar was called Future Positive and Ian Percy talked mostly about how we as individuals can influence our world. "You must think about your future....you are going to spend the rest of your life there." That's how he started his sermon on motivation. He discussed with us in detail four steps to influencing our world. These steps were; Understanding your Context, Utilizing Change, Developing your Credibility and Strengthening your Confidence. A lot of this stuff I think most of us know already but when it comes to doing them we sometimes forget our goals or get off track, and then we get down about ourselves, our friends, and our studies (work). After listening to Ian Percy lecture I came out feeling up about myself, my friends and my studies. In talking with other people, they expressed the same positive feelings.

STUDENT FEEDBACK

Ian Percy was a refreshing break in the long haul of studies that we have all endured. The man was a breath of fresh air to everyone who has ever experience the ever present "lows" in life that all students seem to get at this time of the year. For the price of a cold beer Ian Percy brought back the ideas that are instilled upon us at an early age. That is don't waste what you have been given. Every man is insignificant until you yourself make it great. Thanks Ian.

BILL GRIMBLE

Well, you can sure tell it's spring at NAIT.

The heating system is going full blast. Students are escaping in droves to the outdoors, tossing frisbees and playing that ridiculous game of kicky sack (or whatever the hell it's called - I suppose I'll get a letter about that now).

Hopeful students stare for hours at the job boards, shaking their heads at the low pay and shrugging their shoulders, knowing full well that they'll probably end up taking the job anyway.

The shortage of female clothing lately is turning entire tables of males into glassy-eyed zombies. Gang staring sessions are all the rage.

Then there's the horror of putting on your old summer wardrobe and discovering that the protective layer of winter blubber you put on is still there, bulging out from under that half-shirt your girlfriend said made you look sexy.

You know it's getting close to that time of year when the phrase "ice cold beer" has an almost magical quality. Especially after a quick game of pick-up football in the park.

Sorry folks - my mind is wandering. I just can't concentrate on my work these days. The world is a beautiful place to live. There's a bright golden haze on the meadow (everybody sing). I feel great.

Until I remember that final exams are coming up, and that Prince just came out with a new album, and the mosquito season isn't far off.

That tends to put things back in perspective. Now grab your kicky sack and get outa here.

STUFF TO CATCH

*The Destroyers sail into Edmonton with admiral George Thorogood May 11. Tickets may be gone by the time we go to press, so make friends with a scalper.

*Speaking of blues, Jim Byrnes is currently at the Sidetrack Cafe until the 11th. And before they head east for fame and fortune, be sure and catch Face crime May 14 - 18.

*The Wintergarden Showroom will be no more after the month ends, but the Nylons will be here to see it off in style May 6 - 11. Tickets at BASS.

*A blast from the past with Trooper at Dancin' Shoes in the Mayfield Inn May 14 - 15. BASS has the little pieces of paper that will let you in.

*If you're looking for something unusual that's a real hoot, an evening of barbershop quartet music will be held at the Jube May 11. Lots of great close four-part harmonies. Tickets at Woodward's and the door.

MOVIE UPDATE

BY BYRON A. MARTIN

Stick

"Stick" stars Burt Reynolds in the title role as an ex-convict who is given one last chance to go straight amid the turbulent underside of Florida's posh Gold Coast.

The film is Reynolds' latest effort as both star and director, a dual assignment he has performed with considerable success on three previous occasions: "Gator," "The End" and "Sharky's Machine."

Based on Elmore Leonard's popular novel of the same title, "Stick" tells the story of Ernest Stickley as he returns to Florida determined to pick up the pieces of his life following seven years in a Michigan prison for armed robbery. Almost immediately after jumping from a freight boxcar into the heart of Miami, Stick becomes mired in a tangled web of intrigue. Involved are drugs, death, a flamboyant millionaire and his beautiful financial consultant, shadowy criminals and, ultimately, revenge.

Co-starring with Reynolds in "Stick" are three former Academy Award nominees -- George Segal, Candice Bergen, and Charles Durning -- two of whom earned Oscar nominations for films in which Reynolds also starred.

George Segal as the flamboyant millionaire is excellent, as is Charles Durning, the crazy pill-popping drug dealer. Reynolds himself is up to snuff, as the ex-con who attempts to go straight but finds that it is easier to delve into crime.

Overall the movie is boring and falls short of what a Reynolds movie should be.

A first in "Stick" is Dar Robinson's 20-story fall from Grove Towers complex, a trademark that has become one of Reynolds' attempts to spectacular special effects.

The jump itself is mind boggling, not to mention the danger involved in such a leap. However on the screen, the effect loses its potential and becomes nothing more than just another gag.

The story of "Stick" itself is interesting. A man tries to clean the slate of his past but gets caught up in worse things that got him sent to the joint in the first place. On the screen, "Stick's" attempt gets stuck in the mud.

Gotcha

"Gotcha" stars Anthony Edwards as a Southern California student who goes to Paris searching for fun and romance and, instead becomes the target in a deadly game he can't comprehend.

Linda Fiorentino stars as the fascinating stranger who takes him for the ride of his life, a trek that leads behind the Iron Curtain.

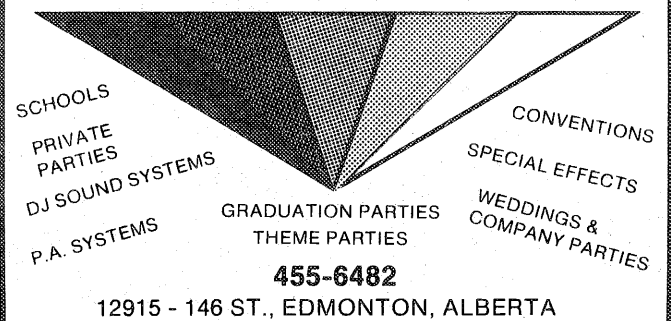

"Gotcha" idealistically becomes one of life's more enjoyable fantasies involving travelling to a exotic land, encountering a fascinating stranger, becoming immersed in an incredible adventure and surviving, a better person for the thrill.

The age-old scenario is at the core of Universal's latest release, the story of an American college boy's hair-raising adventures with precarious international implications.

Anthony Edwards as Jonathan, the idyllic dreamer, is the perfect choice to create the character of the student on the rampage - loose, away from home. Both Jonathan and his roommate Manolo (Nick Corri) are humorous in their search for new conquests in the land of love, mystique and the Eiffel Tower. Linda Fiorentino as the American spy is lack luster. She's dry, plastic and uninteresting compared to Edwards.

However, Fiorentino's stiffness doesn't take away from a good adventure story that takes us from America to France to Germany then back to America. "Gotcha" is a comedic-action adventure that is full of laughs. It is a good movie, enjoyable and fun.

BOARDSAILING!

BY ERIN LATIMER AND GRAEME BITTORF

Are you a part of the fastest growing sport of the '80's?

Boardsailing is a sport that is technically fifteen years old, but is only now beginning to catch on in the Edmonton area. Developed in Southern California in the late sixties, boardsailing has had a slow beginning as a new recreational activity.

The idea of attaching a sail to a surf board was created by Hoyle Schweitzer, he used a common universal joint to connect the sail to the board. Although this revolutionary idea received some interest by the locals at the beach, it never really caught on in a big way until the idea was tried in Europe. It was the Europeans that began to develop the idea and improve the construction of the sailboard. Over the past fifteen years, the European sailboard market has expanded to the point where over 600,000 units are forecasted to be sold in 1985.

The North American sailboard market is estimated to be five years behind the Europeans in terms of market growth. This potential is just beginning to be recognized in Edmonton, as local retailers are presently gearing up for an expected increase in sales of 50 percent over last year.

An abundance of ideal sailing lakes within close proximity to the City of Edmonton is one of the main reasons the sport will grow here. The sailing season for the lakes in the Edmonton area runs from late May to early September. There are numerous public beaches at these lakes, and some have excellent sailing clubs with "learn to boardsail" programs. For example this summer the Lac Ste. Anne Sail

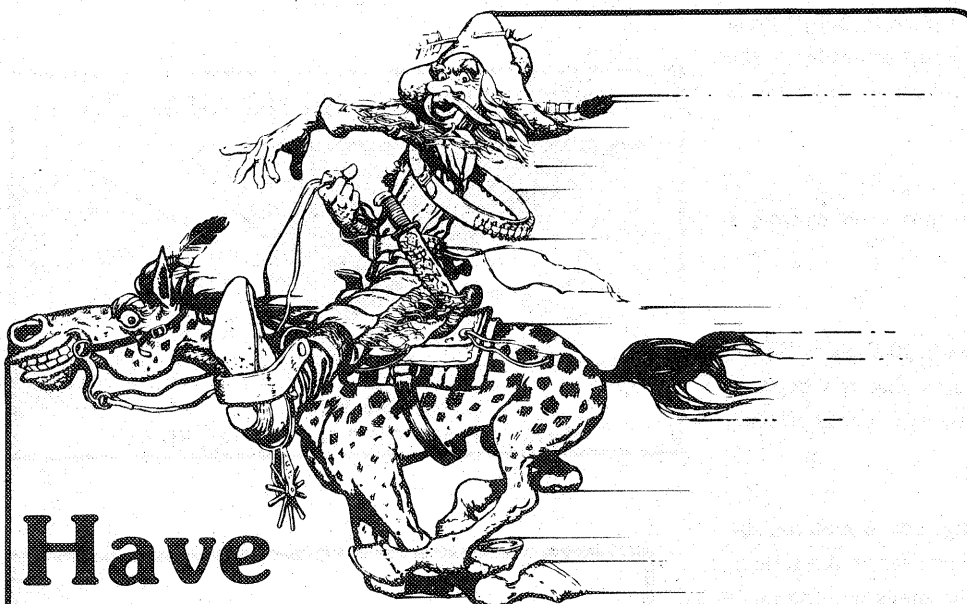

Club is offering a full Canadian Yachting Association (C.Y.A.) learn to boardsail certificate program. It will be available to all members of the public, as a club membership is not required.

One of the major aspects of boardsailing that appeals to the novice, is the relatively low start up costs as compared to other water sports. Prices start from $400-$800 for a basic beginner board, this price includes all the necessary equipment to participate in the sport. The intermediate and advanced board usually run from $800 to about $1800 depending on how it will be used.

A nice feature of the sailboard is the fact that there is no maintenance, it can be used continuously with no service requirements. Sailboards are easy to transport and can be stored just about anywhere. They are great if you don't own lake property, you can easily put the board on a car and head to the lake for the day.

Unfortunately reading about the sport will not provide you with the taste for the outdoors and the exhilarating feeling that this sport offers. You must now take the plunge, try the sport that is taking the country by storm. Join the thousands who are quickly making the sport of boardsailing the fastest growing sport in the world.

NAIT is holding a series of sailboard courses in the NAIT pool during the spring courtesy of the Physical and Leisure Education Dept.. The instructor is Graeme Bittorf.

Beerfest

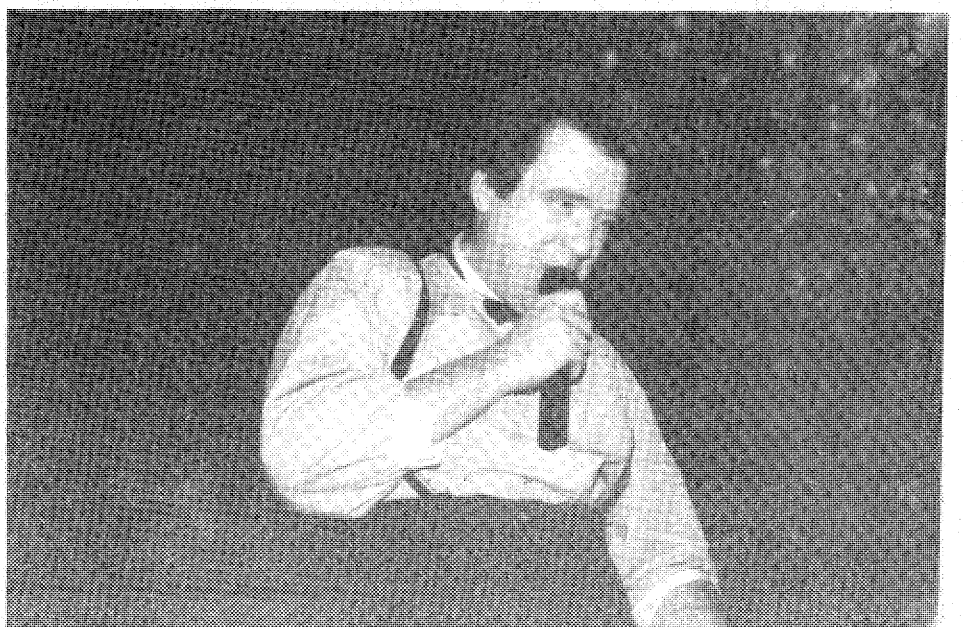

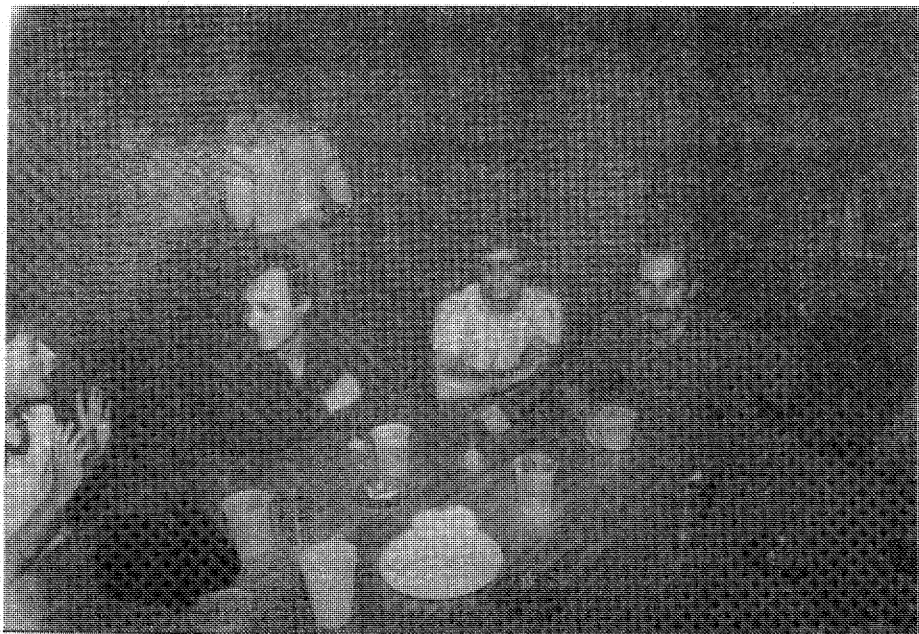

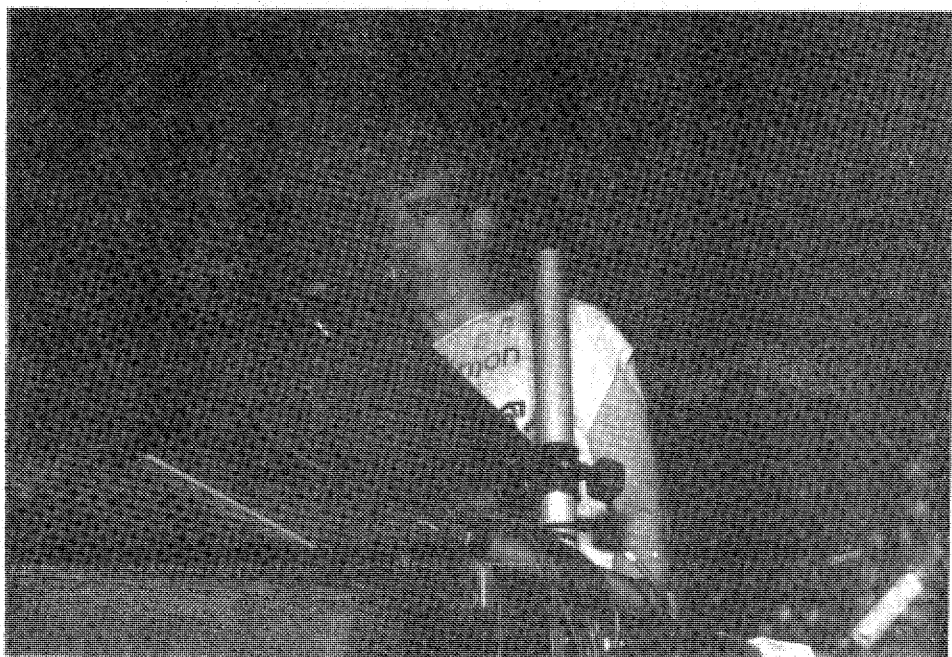

Everyone seemed to have had a good time as Doug and The Slugs played to a sell out crowd at the Convention Centre. Over 1700 students and guests attended a two hour energetic performance put on by the Slugs.

The opening act Airwave, began playing around 9:30. By that time everyone had already had a few artificial stimulants and were ready to go. Soon to follow was Doug and The Slugs. After the first song was played, Doug Bennett entered to a very receptive crowd.

Continuous non-stop dancing for two hours ended quite quickly and the Slugs were called back for a much appreciated encore.

Only a few minor incidents involving flying beer containers seemed to upset the Edmonton City Police. But all in all a good crowd who enjoyed a very successful cabaret.

Thanx for the grad present we always wanted, an eviction notice
Signed your party hosts Brent and Garry

Dear Cute Guy in EET,
You made an offer I just can't refuse. Name the time and the place and I'll be there!

P.S. Don't forget to bring Killer, it'll make for an exciting evening!!
Signed: M in BA

REWARD

If you witnessed an accident in the South main motorcycle parking lot on Friday, May 3rd PM, or know who did this please contact Kevin 467-6159 or Mr. Whetstone in the parking office. If your motorcycle was knocked over as well please contact me immediately. A reward will be paid if the culprit is charged and convicted.
