Bob Prince Speaks Out

by Bob Prince,

In the 1970's, the Philadelphia Flyers were heralded as the best thing to happen to hockey. The Flyers had a unique style that helped the team in becoming the first expansion team to win a Stanley Cup.

The Flyers were known as the "Broad Street Bullies" due to the fact they attempted to use intimidation to beat their opponents. The enforcers -- Don Saleski, Dave "the Hammer" Schultz, Bob "Mad Dog" Kelly, and Andre "Moose" Dupont -- did not have the tools to make it the game as clean hockey players. These individuals used intimidation to their advantage in an attempt to conceal their weaknesses as well as their lack of skill.

Soon after the success of the Flyers, coaches throughout North America attempted to copy the coaching techniques of Fred Shero. For a time, hockey was transformed from a clean, hard-hitting sport into a dirty, cheap-shot free-for-all. The stick work on the ice became more prolific and dangerous. A number of careers including that of Henry Boucha, who lost his vision in one eye, came to an abrupt end.

Canadian and American hockey officials were reluctant to deal with the issue. Ugly stick-swinging incidents, like the one between the Flyers and the Leafs at Maple Leaf Gardens in which an usher was hit by a stick, did nothing to help the image of hockey. The procrastination in dealing with the situation placed a black mark on the sport throughout the world.

Some of the actions taken by the NHL and the CAHA have changed the sport for the better. Penalties for hitting from behind, and malicious stick work are required. The attempt to minimize the chances of bench clearing brawls is also commendable.

Today, the sport of hockey is not the spectacle it was in the six team league. The use of intimidation by the Broad Street Bullies hurt the sport. The unfortunate thing is that, in a situation where intimidation rears its head, it is the classy individuals who are hurt.

Soccer Ooks Earn Berth in Nationals

Although the ACAC gold medal final has yet to be played, the Ooks soccer team is preparing for their third straight visit to the CCAA National Championships. This past weekend, the Ooks breezed past the LCC Kodiaks 5-0 and 9-0 in a tow game (total Point) semi final series. Since two teams will represent Alberta at the Nationals, NAIT has assured themselves a placing in the tournament by winning the semi-finals. NAIT will now meet either Red Deer College or SAIT for the ACAC title.

In the first game against Lethbridge on Saturday, the Kodiaks played very tough against the Ooks holding the Ooks to only one goal in the first half scored by Efo Otomogie. Otomogie headed in a pass past Lethbridge keeper Glen Ball to open up the second half. Curt Elchuk put a penalty shot. Kevin Wilson added two more goals for a convincing 5-0 victory over Lethbridge. NAIT keeper Paul Wilson recorded his third shutout.

The second game against Lethbridge on Sunday could have been called the "Charles O'Toole Hour". O'Toole (coming off a one game suspension for a red card infraction against GMCC on October 16th) scored five goals in an 8-0 massacre. Lionel Gomes, Nandor Takats and Kevin Wilson rounded out the NAIT scoring.

NAIT keepers Paul Wilson and John Vinci shared the shutout for NAIT. Although the Ooks goal scorers were on target during the weekend, the defence was outstanding. Scott Parsons, Keith Johnson, Don Boothe and Ian Steinke all had strong defensive games.

EXTRA KICKS: Stuart Brown has been honoured with a coaching award from the Alberta Sports Council for his outstanding contribution to sports in this province in coaching both men's and women's soccer. . . The Ooks will play away at either RDC or SAIT on Friday, October 28 and return home of the second game of the final on Sunday, October 30. All fans are urged to come out and support your Ooks.

Hockey Ooks Lose Opener

The NAIT Hockey Ooks opened up the regular season with a 6-2 loss to the Red Deer College Kings on Saturday night at the NAIT Arena.

NAIT jumped out to a 2-0 lead on first period goals from Scott Melnyk and Cory Siermachesky.
