The fun of the games and the elegance of the Royal Gala may not have happened but two individuals were crowned for Mr. and Miss NAIT. Because only two applications were received, one for each position, the Royal Games committee had to deal with a first in the 26 year history of King and Queen Week.

The two individuals who have gained the prestigious honor of being Mr. and Miss NAIT are: Darren Stepaniuk (first year) and Sandy Eyben.

Mr. NAIT 1991, Darren Stepaniuk is a first-year business student and feels it is important to get involved in activities sponsored by NAIT and NAITSA. As a representative of NAIT

Darren says he will help promote NAIT's outstanding academic programs as well as its many social benefits on and off campus. Darren would like to remind students to get involved and to remember that there is a lot more to your education at NAIT than the textbook aspect.

Miss NAIT 1991, Sandy Eyben, is a first year Secretarial and Office Administration student and looks forward to getting involved in the different activities at NAIT and meeting new people. Sandy hopes that students will get involved and take an active role in their education and time spent at NAIT.

Darren and Sandy would like to thank their respective technologies for all their support. They look forward to the events over the next year.

Both winners expressed concern over the lack of participation from students in NAITSA sponsored events. Sandy was looking forward to the week long events and was disappointed over the games cancellation as her technology was ready for the pyramid building. Darren also looked forward to the week long events and said the Male Date auction could have proved most interesting.

This event was highlighted by the presence of five former Miss NAIT winners and Miss NAIT 1990 Karen Wall.

When asked about their reaction to the cancellation of the Royal Games, the former Miss NAIT's all expressed disappointment. The Royal Games were a chance to meet new people and pit one technology against another--showing fan support and technology supports for their candidate.

Miss NAIT 1984 Lori Hancock, the same Lori Hancock of K-97, remembers the week long events as being wild, crazy, full of comradery and competitiveness.

The prizes awarded to each were:

$50 Gift certificate for Downhill Riders,
$250 Travel voucher

from Travel Cuts., $100 Certificate from NAITSA for a grad ring, portrait sitting and photo package, $100 Scholarship from Molson, and free entrance to all NAITSA events.

Congratulations to both winners. A special thank you to Crystal Mechor for the hard work and she put into everything associated with King and Queen Week.

Sparks at War Forum

The War Forum with guest speaker Dr. Saleem Qureshi, Professor of Political Science at the University of Alberta, was well attended by both students and staff. The event, a presentation by NAITSA, gave all in attendance a chance to better understand the Gulf Crisis.

In his opening remarks, Dr. Qureshi explained many different aspects of the Gulf region. He touched on the political, religious, and economic aspects of the crisis. He also discussed the history of the region and the events leading to the Crisis.

"The Arabs are looking for respect from the Western world."

Dr. Saleem Qureshi,
Professor of Political Science, U of A

The audience was then invited to ask Dr. Qureshi questions. At one point a man had verbally attacked Dr. Qureshi. He (the gentleman) had stated in an angry voice that Dr. Qureshi had no right speaking and should go back to his homeland. The outburst had caught everyone off guard including Lisa Meilen, Publication Vice President, who chaired the forum. The gentleman was booed and heckled into silence. Dr. Qureshi took no offence to the verbal attack.

There's a Place For It

By Brenda Manser

Obscenities and fowl language, where do they belong in our everyday language at NAIT, or do they belong?

These are just a couple of questions that crossed my mind while watching the Ooks hockey game this past Friday night. There I was, sitting in the stands enjoying the game, when a group of male students from one of our athletic teams sat down. I won't mention which team, but you guys know who you are. They no sooner sat down and the four-letter and other colorful words came spewing from their lips like lava from a volcano.

Their language had no place at the hockey game. Parents, visitors, children and fellow students who were trying to enjoy the game were subjected to their display of immature behavior.

The kind of language they were using might be okay when in the locker room or out with the guys but not when various others are present.

It's no wonder the younger generation, kindergarten, elementary and junior high school kids, are picking up this kind of language when the older generation is setting a poor example.

Don't get me wrong. I've used the occasional "bad" word too, but never around young children and those who would be offended.

I wonder what was going through the minds of those Red Deer parents. Remember at such events you as a student are representing NAIT--don't give it a bad name.

Letters To The Editor

"Politics Don't Have Justice".

This was the answer by Mr. Saleem Qureshi when I asked him why the UN and the government of America have taken a fast decision and action to stop the aggression that took place in August 2, while they have done nothing seriously to the government of Israel and their soldiers who are killing and beating up women, children, and old men in Palestine.

Infact, this answer is true on what is happening now in the world, but normally politics do have justice depending on who is the one who controls it. To prove this point, here is an example.

Back in the Islamic history, Omar the third president in Islam had stolen from him a sword by a Jewish man. When Omar told him to give it back, he refused and said that it's his sword. Later, they went to the judge and he gave the decision that it's the Jewish man's sword because his reaction was unfair. Do you know why his reaction was unfair? Not because Omar didn't get the sword, but Omar said that while the judge was doing his job, he called Omar and said, "President Omar", and called the Jewish man by his name. And this is unfair because he should have called both of them by their names. When the Jewish man saw this, he gave the sword back to Omar.

Can you imagine a president who acts this way with a man that there is no relationship with him. If this situation happens now, you would see the Jewish man in the grave the next day.

Therefore, politics do have justice depending on who is controlling it. And from Mr. Ron Mustafa and Mr. Dave Palmer articles, we had an idea on who is controlling the media, government of America, UN and the whole world.

Amro Osman (Each has his own viewpoint on the Gulf War situation).

Going Up?

By Jennifer Hawthorne

My topic of the week is pretty simple. It's elevators. There's nothing like an elevator to get people excited. You can literally see the anxiety on the face of those who seem to be riding in peril. They quietly stand with their knuckles turning white burning holes through the elevator doors with their eyes. Just waiting to get out.

Elevator rides can be very uncomfortable situations. People either stand silently and shy away from their fellow riders, or they feel they must talk to everyone. It's like some force comes over them upon entering an elevator and does not leave until they walk through those steel doors and plant their feet firmly on the ground.

Good old Webster's defines the elevator as "a cage or platform and its hoisting machinery for conveying something to different levels." Now that sounds pretty archaic. But none-the-less, I guess that's what it all comes down to.

So, try to be aware of your fellow elevator riders and not to shove, push, or knock them out of the way when you're in a hurry. I'm sure everyone can relate to being bombarded on all sides by a herd of people in a rush. Let's face it, for the amount of time we spend in elevators we may as well enjoy the experience.

the war from only one point of view, it seems to me that you are the one with the biased opinion.

You said that the Arabs are people who are generous, sophisticated and stick to their principles, and that they gave education and technology to the world. Who are you trying to kid? Would you then please explain to us Hussein's careless disregard for the environment. Does the loyalty of Arabs allow Arabians to destroy the environment? And does it also give him the right to fire inaccurate scud missiles at the people of Israel?

All Hussein is trying to do is entice Israel to retaliate so that the other Arab nations will get involved and help save his butt and dig him out of the hole he has put himself in. Hussein is trying to make this a holy war, but in reality this all started because of oil, not religion. You also said that Hussein should have kept the hostages as human shields. What kind of a spineless coward would keep innocent civilians as protection? First of all, most of these people were in Iraq only to help the Iraqi's and Hussein didn't let them go out of his own free will.

In conclusion, we are not trying to say that war is always a viable option but in this case it was our last option.

Car Pool NE1?

My heart throbs faster when I look at the beauty of this planet in a satellite picture. I am at the same time overwhelmed and saddened by what we are doing to it in the name of comfort, pleasure, freedom and technological advancement.

Enough information and evidence has been presented in various publications with regards to the state of global air pollution and the contribution humans make to it by the way we use our vehicles (American Scientific, Special Energy issue, Sept.90). We are, at the same time, becoming increasingly aware of how interdependent our lives are. A single political, economic, moral, or environmental choice made in one corner of the planet affects the inhabitants of another.

There are 1236 staff vehicles who commute to NAIT, plus another 500 or so student cars who park in and around the campus. I imagine out of this significant number there are many who use very similar (if not the same) paths to get here. The issue is how can we encourage

Bob (The Dean of Sports Columnists)

I can see where you're coming from. Wayne Gretzky is really not the Great One people think he is. Anyone with a knowledge of sport should be in agreement with you.

Rewriting the record books isn't really so great. Neither is raising a team from the cellar to first place in a tough division. For his office etiquette he can be grouped with other "Great" whiners including the likes of Joe Montana, George Brett, and Kareem Abdul Jabbar.

I guess that such sports personalities should start to keep their opinions to themselves, and start letting writers such as yourself speak for them.

In conclusion Bob why don't you move back to Calgary and get yourself a life. (writing for Sait?)

Dear Editor:

I would just like to forward my opinion of NAIT Hairstyling. After many attempts to make an appointment for February 5th, I was finally slotted in. I was informed that they were "Booked solid". Upon arriving for my appointment, I was greeted only by a sign taped on a door explaining that they were closed until 9:45 the next morning.

Normally, this would not be a major issue, but considering the NAIT Business Conference was the next day (Feb. 6), this WAS a major inconvenience to not only myself, but to those others fortunate enough to get an appointment. The NAIT Business Conference is a place for graduating students to meet prospective employers, thus allowing them to get ahead start on beginning their careers. I would have preferred to go looking my best. This is why I made the appointment in the first place. I have patronized NAIT Hairstyling many times, and am very pleased with the results. I think, however, that if they are trying to operate as a business, then they should ACT as a business, and treat their clientele with the consideration that would be expected in "real world".

Yours Sincerely,
A graduating student
(See Page 4 for the reason Hairstyling was closed).

What course/instructor do you enjoy most?

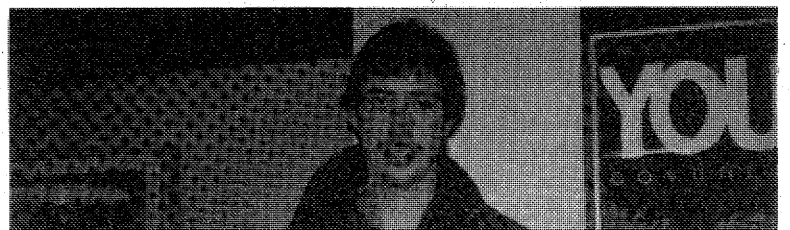

Michelle Kidd - Hairstyling - I enjoy all of them. They all have strengths in different areas.

Wanda Bengert - Hairstyling - I believe all courses are unique. Donna Mills is one of the better instructors I've seen so far. For me I feel hairstyling will be most beneficial.

Ray Daneluk - Instrumentation Mech. III - Mr. Doug Rigs. He always had a good joke for the class.

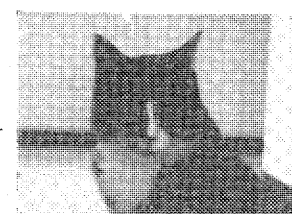

Warren Abbott - Mech. Eng. - Mr. Miller, Quality Control, it explains what we are doing in the field and it's interesting.

Laurie Morris - Pre-tech - Mr. Boodram, Physics, he kept your attention and made things more interesting as he was teaching them.

Daniel Dubuc - Business - Communications, Bill Fricker, the class is casual and fun.

Nixer - The course I enjoy most is one you can eat, like the main course.

Locker Thefts

By Brenda Manser
Editor

Since the last week in January, there has been a rash of locker thefts.

Five lockers in F-Wing were broken into between 12 noon and 2 p.m. Four of these were in the basement and one was on the main floor.

Lockers have also been vandalized over at Plaza II-Engineering Technologies, with personal property being the items taken.

Several students at Westwood Campus had contents from their purses taken, the purses were left unattended at the time of the thefts.

"There seems to be an excessive number of locker thefts this year."

- Dick Maertens-Poole, Manager, Safety & Security.

Mr. Maertens-Poole

reminds students not to keep valuables (money) in their lockers, to ensure your locker is locked before leaving the area, and to never leave your wallet or purse out of eyesight (unattended). Students are encouraged to use a hardened shackle locks to prevent break-ins.

Students should also be wary of persons in and around their locker area who should not be there. If you see someone suspicious lurking about or your locker is vandalized call security at 471-7477 or just 7477 from any white phone on campus. To prevent vehicle thefts, valuables such as wallets, cassettes, and radar detectors should be locked in the trunk or glove compartment. Items of value should never be left in view in the cab of a vehicle.

Remember, you can help stop and prevent such crimes.

$5,000 Coin

The Government of Canada recently announced its intention to organize and promote Canada's 125th anniversary as a nation and one of these events is a special circulation coin program.

The Royal Canadian Mint has extended an invitation to you to submit coin designs to be considered in recognition of this historic milestone.

The series of coins to be issued in 1992 will depict the beauty of Canada. The images you submit should be well known and recognized by the majority of Canadians.

Twelve designs will be selected (one for each of the provinces and territories). As well, a design will be selected to become the standard bearer of Canada.

All designs submitted must be original, not modern or stylized in their approach.

Three designs will be chosen for each category (a winner, first runner up and a second runner up). These selections will be made by a prestigious panel of Canadians and become the exclusive property of the Royal Canadian Mint.

Each winning originator will receive $5,000, the first runner up $2,000 and the second runner up $1,000.

Non-selected submissions will be returned if your name and address is clearly printed on the back of each design submitted. Include your postal code as well as a telephone.

All designs should be in a 20.5 cm (8") diameter circle in accordance with the mock-up featured with this article.

To maintain anonymity and to ensure fairness to all entries reviewed in the selection process, your initials or name should not appear on the design surface. If you win the competition, your initials will become an integral part of the final design.

You are invited to submit up to a total of four designs: a maximum of three in the provincial, territorial category and no more than one for the Canada Coin category.

Submissions should be appropriately packaged with CONFIDENTIAL marked on the outside and forwarded to:

Opportunity Knocks (Are you Listening?)

By Rob Binette
Staff writer

Success, whether in your personal life or work, is to a large part determined by recognizing what an opportunity is and when you should seize it.

Since the time of Socrates and Ancient Greece, people have recognized that physical fitness is an integral part of a student's education. (A sound mind in a sound body.) Today we realize that it is also important in serving as a physical and emotional outlet for the ever increasing stress in our day to day lives.

The PLE program is designed to meet your needs in this area. The program's mandate is to offer students courses, based on sound educational principles that will allow you, the student, to develop lifelong recreational skills.

Some of the benefits available to you are:

- improved health
- more energy
- credit on NAIT transcript
- increased skill levels in many varied activities
- increased understanding of game strategy
- better bodies for the beach.

The NAIT Physical and Leisure Education department provides you with the opportunity to participate in over 150 courses that are offered each semester.

All of these services, as well as fitness appraisals and life style counselling, are free of charge to all full-time students. The PLE staff would like to invite you to take advantage of their expertise and make the most of your time at NAIT.

NAIT Cuts Another Program

EDMONTON: As part of its financial planning for the 1991-92 academic year, the Board of Governor's of the Northern Alberta Institute of Technology (NAIT) has decided to discontinue the Institute's Hairstyling Program as soon as practical.

Institute President Dr. Stan Souch stated that the decision was not made lightly. "It is an excellent program and the staff are highly regarded professionals."

He explained that the decision was based on three major considerations: the availability of similar training in the private sector in the Edmonton area; programming priorities of the Institute; and economies required to balance the budget.

Dr. Souch extended assurance that the 49 students currently enrolled in the program will be able to complete their training. Seven full-time staff will be affected. NAIT will employ a variety of strategies-employment counselling, redeployment, retraining and severance arrangements--to lessen the impact on individuals affected.

The decision is part of NAIT's ongoing 1991-92 financial planning effort which requires that the Institute realize a $2.3 million operational saving at its main campus to balance the budget.

Series of the Season This Weekend at the NAIT Arena

One point separates the Mount Royal College Cougars and the NAIT Ooks in the ACAC standings. Without a doubt, both teams know this weekend's series between them could make or break the season. In all likelihood, the team which comes away with the most points in the series will gain home advantage in the first round of the playoffs. The games are slated for 7:30 p.m. in the NAIT Arena on Friday, the 8th, and Saturday, the 9th. The Cougars moved into second place over the weekend with a pair of victories over the Grande Prairie Regional College Wolves in Calgary. In contrast, the Ooks split a home-and-home series with Red Deer to fall into third place one point behind MRC. On Thursday, January 31st, the Ooks fell behind early and dropped a 5-1 decision to the Kings in Red Deer. In the first, Erin Ginnell pocketed a pair of powerplay goals to give the Kings a 2-0 lead at 5:54 and 8:04. In the second, the Kings acquired a 3-0 lead on Mike Kadar's marker at the 11:46 mark. In the third, the Ooks powerplay clicked with Todd Kinniburgh finding the mark with 6:31 gone in the frame. The Kings closed out the scoring with a pair of goals off the stick of Corey Belitski at 11:53 and 18:11. Grod Besse blocked 38 of 39 shots in the Red Deer net. Rob McKinley stopped 28 of 33 shots in the NAIT crease. On Friday, February 1st, the NAIT Ooks overcame an early deficit to skate away with a 6-3 win over the Kings at the NAIT Arena. In the first, the Kings jumped out to a 2-0 lead with goals from Trevor Buchanan at 11:37 and Stu Jackson at 14:09. In the second, the Ooks tallied four unanswered markers. Tim Murphy netted his second of the season at 4:43, Lonnie Spink notched his ninth of the campaign on the powerplay at the 7:48 mark, Mark Hilton accounted for a shorthanded tally at 14:31, and Greg Geldart scored his eighth of the year at the 18:40 mark. In the third, the Ooks received powerplay goals from Todd Kinniburgh at 8:19 and at 10:42. Brett Stephenson of the Kings closed out the night's scoring at 16:05. The Kings outshot the Ooks 35 to 25. Lee Wiebe of RDC and Rob McKinley of NAIT went the distance in their respective creases. ON THE BENCH: Approximately 50 former Ooks participated in the NAIT Hockey Alumni Tournament held on Saturday, the 2nd, at the NAIT Arena. A good time was had by all as a number of acquaintances were renewed. Perry Pearn, the man who coached the Ooks to five national titles, was unable to attend as he was on assignment for Team Canada in Minnesota.

Ooks and Griffins to Battle for First Place

By Dave Hoy
Head Coach
Three weeks after the first clash between the ACAC's two top teams in league play, the 9-2 Ooks and 9-3 Griffins will meet again this Friday, 8:15 p.m. at the Millwood's Campus of Grant MacEwan Community College. Both teams had last weekend off to prepare for the game and should be primed and ready to battle. As the season moves into the final two weeks of its regular schedule, the winner of Friday's game will be in a good position to finish the league schedule in first place, gaining home advantage for the playoffs. NAIT has narrowly beat the Griffins in all four meetings this season including an 83-79 victory in the last meeting between the two teams. The Ooks go into Friday's game ranked 5th in Canada while the Griffins hold down 8th spot. NAIT students and staff can make a significant contribution to the Ooks cause by going to support their team in its drive to remain number one in the ACAC.

Volleyball Oaks Split

Women Crush Lakeland

By Maury Bautz
Sports Editor

The Women's Volleyball team kept on playing inspired volleyball from the weekend before, taking two matches from Lakeland College here at NAIT over the weekend.

The Oaks started out dominating Lakeland, winning the first two games in convincing style on Friday night. Lakeland battled back to take game three, but the Oaks bounced back to win game four and the match.

In a doubleheader weekend match there is a tendency for teams to come up flat the following day after a convincing victory the night before. This, however, was not the case for the Oaks on this weekend. The team had a bone to pick with Lakeland and preceded to blow them away by a combined three game score of 45-12, leaving the Lakeland girls with a long, demoralizing bus ride home.

Coach Farmer feels the team has peaked at this point, however, maybe a little late to make the playoffs.

"As coach, when you see a team apply themselves as out team has done in this home stretch, you can't help but be optimistic about the team and the program. I am..."

-Coach Glen Farmer

With some important matches coming up, the team could look back to some key matches earlier in the season that could have gone either way. But playoffs are still looming in the picture and the women will play hard for it. A strong finish, however, would secure the Oaks at least a fifth place finish which would represent great strides over last years' finish.

Following a match in Red Deer the team will be at home this weekend to play Grant MacEwan, the team in which they are in hot pursuit of. Game time is 6:30 p.m. in the Oooknasium.

By Maury Bautz
Sports Editor

The Men's Volleyball team put a stop to their losing skid over the weekend posting, a convincing victory over Lakeland Friday night, but dropped Saturday's matinee match.

The guys dominated Lakeland with great serving and serve reception. Defeating Lakeland by game scores of 15-6, 15-13 and 15-6, there was never a real doubt who the better team was. Matthew Blokker and Wes Grenke each put in strong performances with 19 and 15 kills respectively.

On Saturday the Oaks started where they left off whipping Lakeland 15-2. The remaining games, however, NAIT faced a noticeably different Lakeland College team. Lakeland started playing inspired volleyball and it seemed that they couldn't do anything wrong. The match went into a tie-breaking game in which Lakeland won 17-16, to steal the match.

Coach Mike Trent was happy with his team's performance and hopes it is a sign of things to come. Trent is inviting anybody who is thinking of playing volleyball next season to come out and practice with the team. The Oaks will sport an entirely new look next season with no returning players. The team is planning on touring Germany next season so this should be an added incentive for any prospective volleyball players out there. Contact Dianna Paton at 471-7613 for further information.

The Oaks are at home to battle the Grant MacEwan Griffins this Friday. Game time is 8:00 p.m. in the NAIT gymnasium.

Bob Prince Speaks Out

by Bob Prince
The Dean of Sports Columnists

One of the most talented and most disappointing hockey teams in the 1990-91 NHL season is the Calgary Flames.

The Flames are a different hockey club without Lanny, Rammer, and Pepper. Since the departure of these three individuals, no one has stepped forward to take charge on the ice or the dressing room consistently.

At times, it appears the Flames have turned to trainer Bearcat Murray for advice on how to lead the team. Bearcat may be the fastest man on ice in spikes and the most famous trainer in the NHL, but he can't do it himself. Leadership comes from the players who don the blades.

In 1990, Terry Crisp was used as a scapegoat after the Morel fiasco in Los Angeles. The team despite the diligence of Crisp could not get their act together. Twenty-one players couldn't be fired so they axed the coach.

Currently, Doug Risebrough is having problems with the players performing on an even keel. The problem may lie in the coaching methods, but the problem, in all likelihood goes deeper. The Flames, for the most part, need to look at the fact that each player must contribute and work within the system on every shift of every game in order for team goals to be achieved. If the Flames, get their act together, look out!!!

Most college hockey players are on a fixed income that keep them strapped for cash, but first year player Tim Murphy must have a pot of gold stashed away. Smurf is the first player in college I know that is able to purchase at least one outfit from GQ a month. Tim may be a clean cut GQ man off the ice but when he steps on the ice, Smurf definitely acts like someone who subscribes to Truckin' USA. Tim may be as small as his nickname states, but like Theoron Fleury, Smurf is not afraid to mix it up. His Junior career was played out with the Sherwood Park Crusaders, of the AJHL, where Tim found himself in the top of the scoring and never shy of bumps and bruises from his work in the corners. This year Tim has found himself playing centre with lines which are primarily mucker lines. The first year Business student will be a dominant player when the playoffs roll around due to his determination to overcome his size. When Smurf is hitting and working hard, his play will inspire his teammates.

Sports Striptease Show

Maur with Sports

by Maury Bautz
Sports Editor

Leafing through the Sports section of the Edmonton Sun, I found interesting layout features. For the second time in as many weeks, I found female stripper ads strategically placed throughout the Sports section.

Is Sports the place for these types of ads? Has the Edmonton Sun found a target market in their Sports section readers?

Looking on page 43, in the heart of the Sports section, I found a full page ad for strippers at Rusty's. Is there no other place for this? Entertainment maybe? The Edmonton Sun should see how it looks in the business section!

Don't get me wrong, I have nothing against strippers personally. In fact, I can be found across the street at the Palace on occasion, but the Sports section is not the place for that kind of advertising.

I wonder if the Sports Editor of the Edmonton Sun has any say in this matter? I would doubt it. But I would never allow it in my Sports section. I mean one cannot get serious about a well written Sports feature while being stared in the face by the "Wet Dream Duo!"

The Edmonton Journal does not even accept these ads, anywhere in their paper much less the Sports section. But then again, the Edmonton Journal has class (and is a little bit boring).

This Sports Editor is not saying abolish these ads altogether, but to put them in a more appropriate place, not just where they're most likely to be seen.

At the Movies

by Steve McGuire
Entertainment Editor

"L.A. Story"

7 out of 8 bucks

Last week, "L.A. Story" premiered and by knowing of Steve Martin's last works, I may have had already established my opinion of how the movie would turn out and how I would like it. The nineties may be Steve Martin's decade, for after this movie he will have a whole new world open up for him in the way of money. I mean big money to make more movies of this quality.

"L.A. Story" is the type of movie that could only have taken place in Los Angeles. The modern problems and modern culture revolves around a realistic and virtual reality only found in L.A. where people take courses in conversation and espresso can be ordered in a thousand different ways. If you decide to watch this movie, I suggest renting it, for you will miss all the subtleties in the film the first time.

Out and About

by Cabaret Clairence

The PMT boys have pulled off another one--a party I mean. The evening started rather slowly, but it rocked later. There were a few altercations in the evening, but cooler heads prevailed. All in all, it was a successful "Operation: Draft Dodge".

The Civil Engineering "Ground Hog Cabaret" was another party that was happening. The music was great and the populous of girls was astounding.

Coming Attractions

by Steve McGuire
Entertainment Editor

The comedy concert of the year will be in the Jubilee, April 4th. Bill Cosby will be there for two shows at 7:00 and 9:30 p.m. He has a clean stand-up act with this in mind; it may be a good ticket for one's parents--hint.

"No Prayer on the Road" tour will be in town March 8th at the Agricom, featuring "Iron Maiden" with special guests "Anthrax". This will be a good concert, but it is tough to develop good live sound in this building.

The Concerned Cupid's Column

Ok people it's this time of the year when we should be expressing our motives to the ones that we are seeing now or want to be seeing (no pun intended).

It's time for all you romantic want-to-be's to become extremely original. The gorilla suit was good ten years ago but it's worn out it's welcome now a days. Flowers are the standard last minute standby, although I've heard interesting variations using flowers that would get the attention of even the most frigid recipient.

"So what's a guy/girl do in the 90's to be themselves-to be original? Maybe take your favorite person to Banff for supper? Maybe McDonalds? I guess it would depend on what suits you the best. Extravagance doesn't necessarily guarantee the best results. Just do what you figure is the best for your situation. Don't let people talk you into doing the things you don't want to do. If you're a party animal deep down then don't be afraid to let it show. Everyone knows that at some point in the future you're going to have to let it go so you might as well let it go right away. Your favorite girl/guy (or both) will appreciate your sincerity.

I guess the long winded end to this is "take that chance on the person that you're interested in". You're entitled to make a fool of yourself one day of the year and this is it. So make the best of it!

Actually, .08% is the legal blood alcohol limit for driving. The only thing at 8.0% is probably a pickled egg. But what does it all mean? Basically there are two considerations—the rate at which alcohol enters the bloodstream and the rate at which alcohol is taken out of the blood by the liver. The difference between the two determines the concentration of alcohol in your blood. And it is this blood alcohol concentration (BAC) that determines the effect on your brain and nervous system.

Twelve ounces of beer, four ounces of wine or one and a half ounces of spirits have about the same amount of alcohol—half an ounce. And your body can break down about half an ounce an hour or .02% (based on 150 lb. person).

Because alcohol is a depressant, it works by putting portions of the brain "to sleep" and the effects are cumulative.

Less than .03 to .05%. Feelings range from no effect to mild alterations of moods and feelings. Minor modification of control is happening but not discernible.

Between .05 and .10%. Increased feeling of relaxation, sedation and/or euphoria. Feelings of stimulation and increased confidence are illusions because alcohol has put the "attitude" compartment of the brain "to sleep". Your physical co-ordination is impaired and reaction time is longer.

Between .10 and .20%. Further deterioration of your motor control, judgment and reaction times. Speech may be slurred.

Over .20%. You're well sedated. Your brain is anaesthetized to the point that you have trouble knowing what's happening. Even standing or staying awake is difficult.

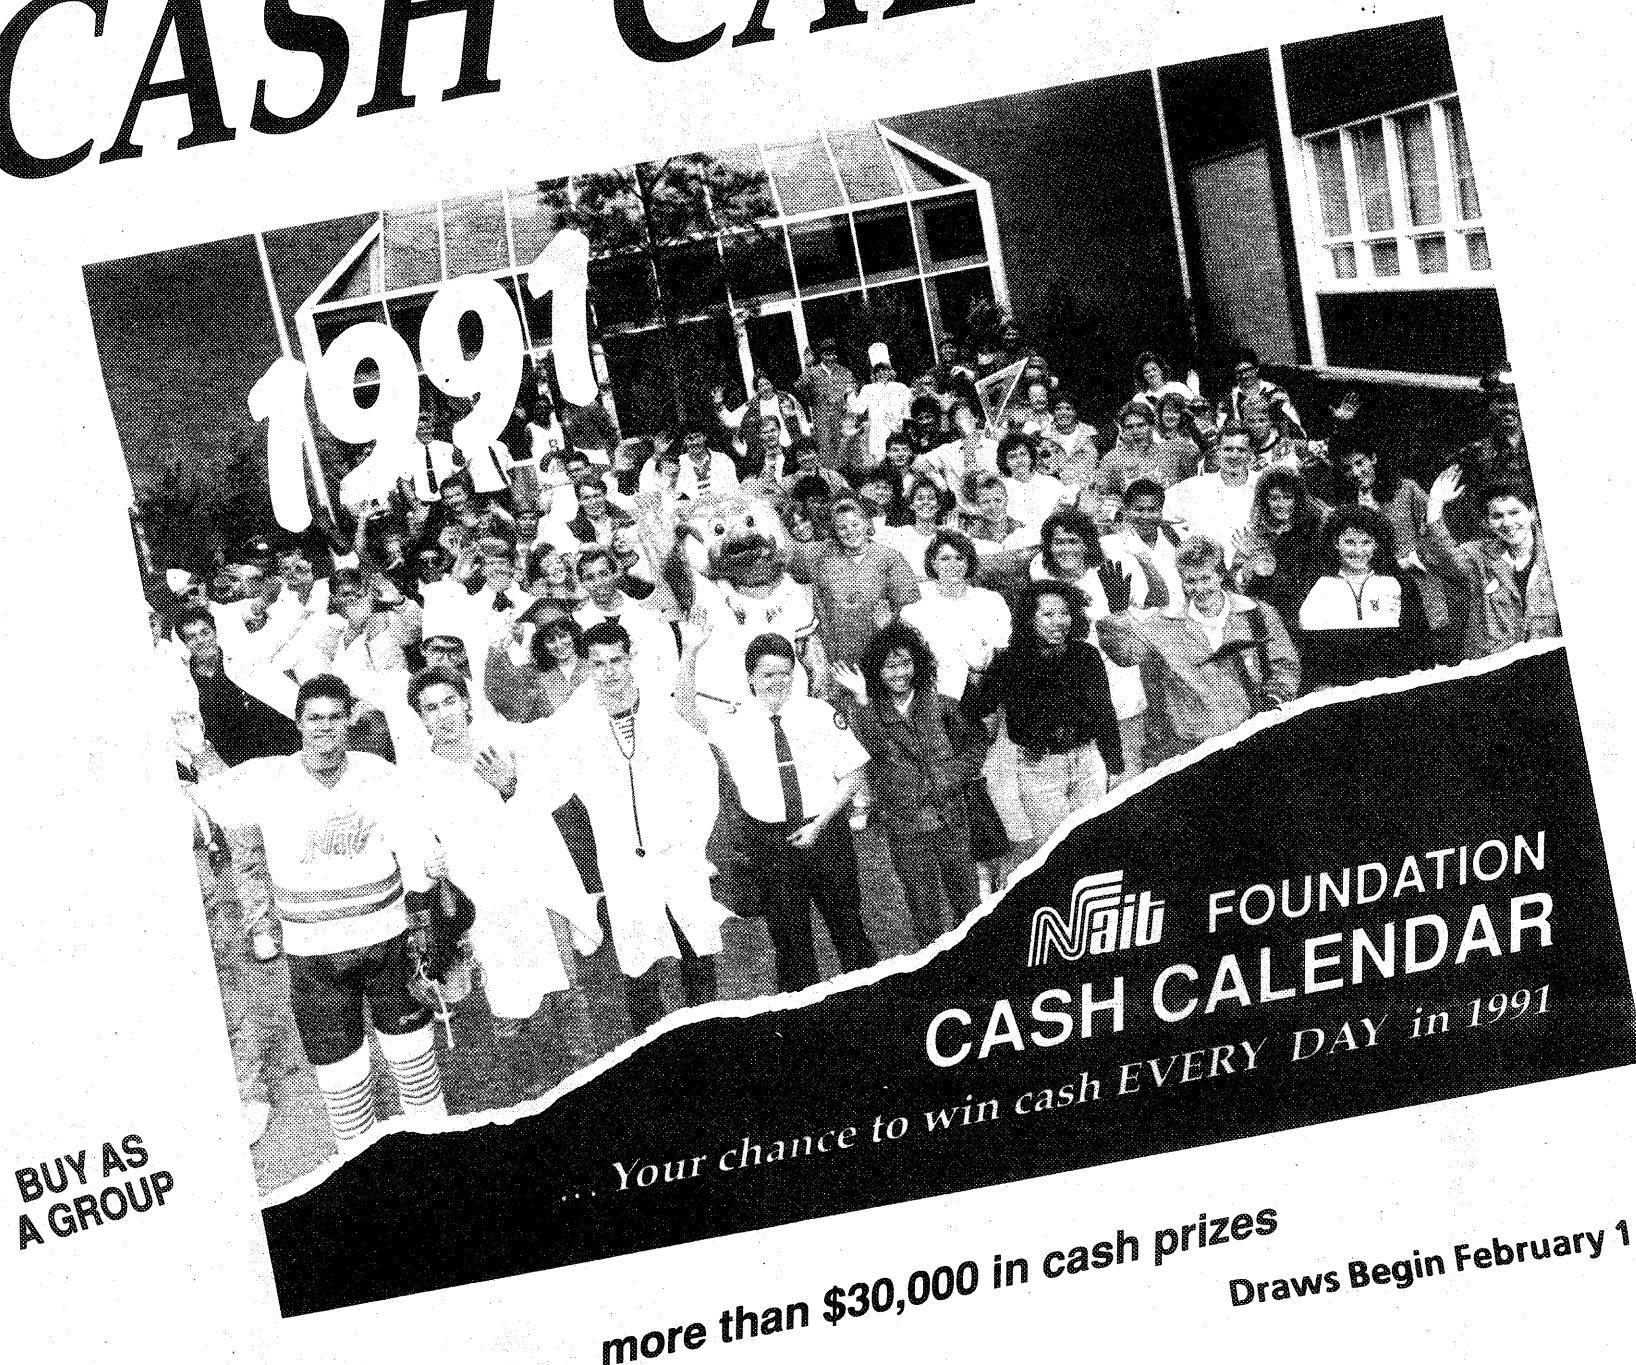

Over .40% - .60%. Usually fatal.

This is one of a series of alcohol and health-related messages. If you or your company would like a complete set, contact your local AADAC office.

Grapevine

To Laurie "A" (Short Brown Hair In Pre Tech):

Have noticed you in the Naitrium during lunch. I think you are as cute as a button. Don't know how long I can keep looking at you without being able to touch you.

Signed, Hopeless Fool

To the 2nd Secret Admirer:

I know who you R! Sorry, I'm not interested in a guy who's 2x my age. (4 your info, I'm only 18 years old). Though I'm flattered about the diamonds and emeralds, but I hate the thought of being part of your wild goose chase.

P.S. There's others out there for you.

To Breathless Secret Admirer:

I have an idea of who UR, but I'm not sure. U could introduce yourself 2 me, 2 C if I am right. I'm not that intimidating! And besides, what can U lose?

From Dyannah (Oh, Dianna)

To the hot girl with the burning words:

I'm glad that you have noticed me. Yes, I'm single and would very much like to meet you too.

But I am at a disadvantage, For you have seen me and I haven't seen you.

Be at the Nest this Friday night, sit by the bar. I will be there at 5:00.

I'll see you then.

My Chica Bonita

Signed, Moreno Caliente.

To Lee in Business Admin.:

I saw you at our last cabaret and I was impressed with what I saw. You were with a group of people, and I was too shy to ask you to dance. I see you a lot in the afternoon on the 6th and 7th floor with a guy with brown hair and wears a green shirt with Milsbros. on the back. I think you're in 2nd semester, but I'm not sure. I really want to get to know you but I'm not sure how to. I'll be at Goose Loonies this Saturday. I hope to see you there.

An admirer from afar.

Mr. Bungy:

To the blond guy, with the bungy shirt, I saw you scouting for babes awhile back. How about checking me out? Maybe we'll swing together on the bungy cord. When the times comes I'll tell you who I am.

E. Wing.

Dear Anxious:

I'd like you to know, I'm flattered as can be,

But the short spanish looking guy is taken by me.

It's his fiance who's leaving this message for you.

I'm short and blonde, A business student too.

So I hope you'll understand what I'm trying to say.

Just remember to admire from far away.

To Ripped Jeans:

Before I write to the Grapevine anymore, there is one important thing that I need to know. Do you have a girlfriend? I hope that you don't but I ask that you send in a response to the Grapevine.

Signed, Super Shy.

This is for you Home Boy:

Coming from a Fly Girl,

With a new toy, We checked you out, And we like what we see.

So let's drop that beat, And let's get busy. We're gonna kick it, One more time, And hope we're not out of line.

When we say your locker number is T6__9__

So stay hip-hopin'

While we try to make things happenin'.

Some more hints are comin'....

Signed, Fly Girl.

To The Guppy In B404'

There's a lot I could say but words really can't express the thoughts I have. Thoughts like: Wine by the lake? A dress (black or flowered)? A car (Acadian or Mazda?) Par Avion or Skip? Maybe WC? Only you can answer these questions. Please let me know soon. L.O.A.

To Tara:

I met you at the last IET/DA cabaret two weeks ago. We talked and danced and I found you really attractive, I would like to see you again. Let's meet around 4:30 this Thursday at the west end of the study hall.

Dear Anxious:

Your letter was very appealing to me and the many other sort of Spanish looking guys. Maybe you can describe my car or clothes in your next letter, it may narrow things down.

Signed, Guy #23

Anxious!?

U make me curious? But I must know, if I'm the Mr. Right that you have in your sights? Please describe my car and are there any other noticeable characteristics about me? By the way I have no commitments. How about some descriptive hints about U?

P.S.: Lignum bonum est (a hint to where I can be found).

Signed, the guy who comes into the cafeteria only once in a while.

Gary:

Roses are red, Violets are blue, And I must admit I've really noticed you. Our eyes have met At many a site Both in the Naitrium And Amnesia's Friday night. You are very good looking And wear Levis well But if ever we'll talk Only time will tell. Until that time I will patiently wait Watching you go by These remaining d at Nait.
