GREENER CURRICULUM NEEDED

By David Harvey
News Editor

There should be a much "greater environmental focus in post-secondary institutions" like NAIT, says Susanne Glenn, NAITSA Communications V.P. and delegate to the Canadian University Students Environment Network conference in Waterloo last week.

The problem with the present curriculum is that "students are not getting a wide enough perspective" says Glenn. While students may be given an understanding of production, they are relatively unaware of the environmental aspects of their technology.

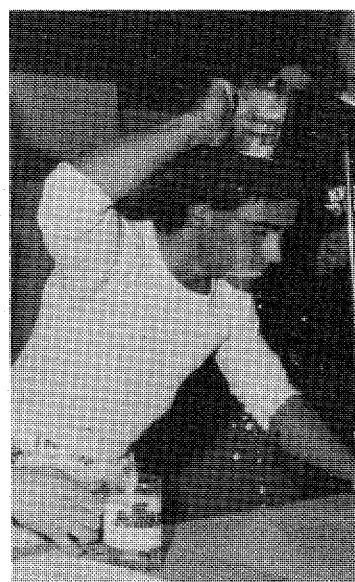

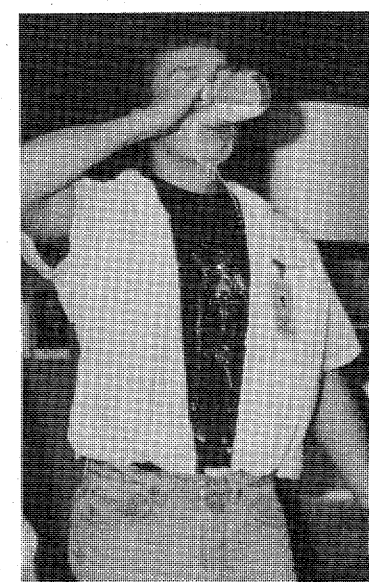

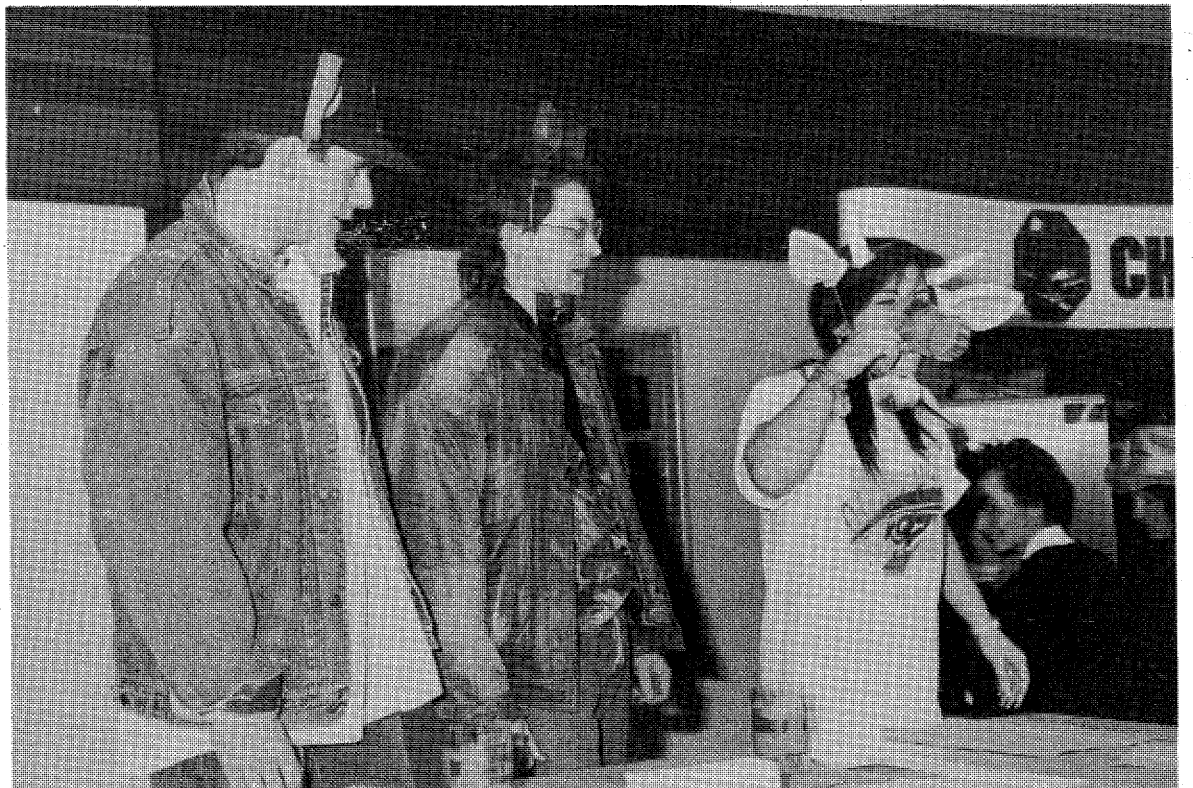

Glenn says that technologies like Plastics and Computer Systems do a good job recycling. Yet, a technology like Business, which ultimately has the most potential to affect the environment, virtually ignores the environmental aspects of business. For example, Business concentrates on the financial advantages of mass production and discounts the ensuing environmental damage.

Glenn admits that making money is what business is all about yet, she asks, "Why not try to make a socially conscious dollar?"

Further examples that Glenn gives include Cooking. She would like to see students learn about the environmental effects of food production. Cooking students should be aware of cattle's effect on the ozone layer or how the purchase of cashews and brazil nuts help save the rain forest.

Glenn doubts that NAIT as an institution has considered bringing in an environmental curriculum. However, NAIT is a member of the Association of Canadian Community Colleges (ACCC) and they "do realize this has to be done" and "probably in five to eight years it will be instituted."

Moo Milk Mania

By Miller Malone
Entertainment Editor

Last Wednesday the Moo Milk contest took place in the north lobby of NAIT. The contest involved singing the Moo Milk song and chugging a mug of milk. Contestants were judged on singing ability, original dress and chug speed.

The contest was a part of NAIT's Alcohol Awareness Week which was being put on by SUDS SQUAD, (Students Understanding Drinking Sensibly). The general aim of the contest and Alcohol Awareness Week was to educate students about drinking in moderation as opposed to excess.

The contest was standing room only as students and staff watched the participants sing the Moo Milk song and gulp down a mug of milk.

Some of the highlights of the contest were bagpipe playing by the MacUdders and the guy from oldies 1260 drinking his milk too fast and having milk come out his nose.

The 3 live coaches, Jeff Riddle, Dave Iloy, and Mark Bosworth, won the contest with their original brand of singing and chugging. Prizes were supplied by Molsons and Boston Pizza.

NAITSA has once again proven themselves to be a perfect sounding board for obvious facts and well known truths. Alcohol Awareness week. Personally, I am surprised that these people were able to expand a 10 page government pamphlet into a whole week of activities, lectures, and displays. Alcohol Awareness Week was a pointless exercise. Here's proof.

Raise your hand if you didn't know 1 week ago it is illegal to drink and drive.

NAITSA has tried to validate their existence by putting on Alcohol Awareness Week. Now, no one can say that NAITSA is not directly involved with the students; that they're detached.

The only problem with what they are doing is that they are not accomplishing anything. The laws about drinking and driving are extremely well known.

But what about the over-consumption message?

The students of this institution are adults. A condescending temperance lecture is an inappropriate waste of the students' money. We are capable of deciding how we spend our evenings, and more importantly, how we shape our lifestyles.

But alcohol is a drug, and it's dangerous, and something must be done before it's too late and we all wind up in de-tox, and go straight to hell!

It's on this premise that Alcohol Awareness Week exists. It is practically impossible to dispute this point. Alcohol is used as an easy target by NAITSA as their whipping post because it causes no controversy. Speaking against alcohol insures no negative feedback, no repercussions, no argument. Once again, the spirit of political correctness parades through the hallways of NAIT.

And what a juvenile message it is.

Once again, the student who is able to think, reason, and understand is at a loss due to political correctness.

A student association must strive to make a difference in the students they serve. NAITSA should be exploring topics that are ignored by other organizations simply because they're too hot to touch. That is where the difference can be made.

So let's look at what NAITSA is not doing this year.

AIDS AWARENESS WEEK

(well, we did receive two articles on AIDS)

SEX EDUCATION WEEK

(safe sex, contraception, abortion, homosexuality)

FREEDOM AWARENESS WEEK

(equality, racism, justice, opinions)

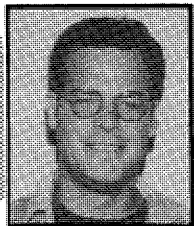

These topics will provoke thought in the minds of the student body. These topics represent larger, more fundamental dilemmas all people face. It is here that NAITSA'S focus should be, not on easily accessible media driven hype.

But here's one you won't see.

CRIMES OF CHOICE WEEK

(public drunkenness, drug use, true freedom of expression)

A Sheep in Wolf's Clothing

By David Harvey
News Editor

It has been a peculiar year for the United Nations. It opened the year with an uncharacteristic flexing of its muscle in the Middle-East, liberating Kuwait from its Iraqi conquerors. Yet, as the year draws to a close, the Yugoslavian civil war has shown the U.N. to be back to its normal impotent self.

Why is it that the U.N. was so determined to stand up for Kuwaiti aristocrats and will do nothing for Yugoslavians except declare one ineffectual cease fire after another?

Kuwait was a case of Iraqi interests against those of the rest of the world. The thought of so much of the world's oil in the hands of an extremely unpredictable man combined with the fall of Soviet power provoked the U.N. to stop Iraq's international aggression.

However, the aggression in Yugoslavia is not international but internal. This is an immeasurable distinction for most member countries of the U.N., including Canada. If the U.N. sends in troops to stop the fighting in Yugoslavia, does this set a precedent for the U.N. to get involved in all kinds of internal conflicts like perhaps Northern Ireland or some Oka-like standoff here in Canada?

Clearly, most countries would be reluctant to see the U.N. evolve to such a stage that it restricted their sovereignty, thus the do-nothing policy in Yugoslavia.

Proponents of this policy warn that if the U.N. gets involved in ethnic conflicts in Yugoslavia, they will soon be committed all over the globe, especially with the looming possibilities of ethnic wars in the Soviet Union. Yet, during the Persian Gulf War, the U.N. seemed almost self-righteous in defending the right of self-determination and maintaining the peace everywhere.

During the Persian Gulf War, the U.N. showed promise evolving into an institution with real power and real principles. Yet, with each passing day that the U.N. refuses to send in peace keeping troops, more Yugoslavians are killed and the U.N. ebbs further back to its old position, bound by its members' hypocritical self-interest.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor:

I am a frequent reader of the Nugget, especially the letters to the editor, as it allows the students to voice their opinions. Censorship; where do you draw the line? Everyone's opinion differs. As for Mr. Stephenson stating "you caused disruption . . . because of your lack of editorial discretion," he made Hitler sound like a good guy because Hitler didn't have much disruption among his people because he censored the press.

That is minor to the offense I took by our NAITSA president, Chris Horne, a rep. of 7000 full time students when he voiced a personal opinion against a student publicly. Where does he get off calling a students' opinion "bone-headed." Is he not a student public servant? In doing so he voiced the opinion of NAITSA, all 7000 students, against a student, whose opinion some agreed with, some not. Or am I taken in by all the political propaganda? I believe Mr. Horne owes Mr. Marks an apology for his personal statement, as he is a President, interests of all, and not a dictator.

Signed,
H.R.C.

(P.S. A concerned student on impeachment).

To Carl Marks:

I must apologize. I don't give Carl enough credit on basis of intellect. His ingenious way of taking what someone writes, and twisting it to fit his perceptions shows some sort of intelligence. Touche!

As well, his letter writing abilities prove an intelligence level greater than that in his supporter, T.K.I.T. Hall.

The new thing with these bum buddies is that business students have no sense of humor. Not true. YOU'RE NOT FUNNY! How many negroes have you met who enjoy being called nigger?

How many Jews laugh when you call them Wop[sic]?

I must admit, though not funny, Carl Marks' and fan club letters are amusing. This is partial reason I responded a second time. I want to see if he ever says anything sensible, or if he can actually outdo himself. Carl's like "The Penpal From Hell."

About this "rebel child stage" Carl may be right. Many students, business and others, probably never were rebellions in a big way. Is that a flaw? I've had my

More CMA's Graduate in 1991 Than Ever Before

390 individuals received the right to call themselves Certified Management Accountants (CMAs) at the Society of Management Accountants of Alberta convocation on November 16, 1991. This is the largest graduating class in the Alberta Society's history. 80 of the new CMAs earned a business diploma from the Northern Alberta Institute of Technology prior to enrolling in the CMA accreditation course equivalencies through NAIT's Accelerated Accounting Program.

The fact that 98% of the graduating class is gainfully employed, in the field for which they are trained, signals that the management accounting profession is becoming increasingly popular and demanded as the nature of management operations in business, industry, and government changes. These changes are the result of intense global competition, changing regulations, technological innovations, and tight financial and human resources. The consequences: organizations are using management accounting professionals to evolve traditional organizational and management structures to compete in product innovation, product quality, customer service, and efficiency. These changes signal that management accounting has come of age and that CMAs are prepared for the future.

CMA accreditation has evolved in response to the emerging issues and demands of employers, as well as the shortcomings they cited with respect to traditional accounting. Businesses recognized the need for the traditional stewardship functions of accounting while demanding management accountants who could provide the fiscal and operational expertise necessary in setting future directions and evaluating performance. The 1991 CMA graduating class join a profession of specialists whose professional accreditation process blends the essential advanced management practices and technical accounting fundamentals that provide the broad business perspective required to effectively influence strategic, tactical, and operational decision-making.

The successes of the individuals who attained their CMA designations is attributable to their personal determination and to the quality of education they received while completing prerequisite courses at Alberta's post secondary institutions. The advanced education earned at universities and colleges provide CMA graduates with a foundation of business knowledge. CMA accreditation builds on this, and the Society delivers a program that adds significant value to business degrees and diplomas.

In Alberta, the 1991 graduating class increases certified membership to almost 4,000 CMAs. They will join a legion of over 20,000 CMAs in Canada. These professionals are members of the Society of Management Accountants, the only professional organization dedicated exclusively to accreditation, research, career management, and professional standards in management accounting.

Designated Drinkers

By David Harvey
News Editor

How much can you drink before your reactions are significantly slowed?

This was the question posed by Constable Meads of the Edmonton Police Service at "How Much is Too Much" last Friday in the Nest and with the help of Brenda Powis of CST and Colin Porowski of Marketing as the "Designated Drinkers", he intended to prove that the answer is a definite "not very much."

Before the participants started drinking, they were run through a battery of tests. They had to walk down a balance beam, then read a public announcement to the crowd and execute a test in which they were to grab a falling pole as fast as they could.

When the tests were finished, the real fun began. Based on their weight, Porowski and Powis were given the equivalent of seven and six drinks respectively and forty minutes to drink them. Neither were told how much alcohol they were to consume.

While the drinkers drank, Activities V.P., Darren Stepanik, questioned the spectators on their alcohol knowledge. A few interesting facts came out. For example, alcohol affects women taking oral contraceptives for roughly double the normal period. Also, if a driver fails a roadside co-ordination test, regardless of his blood alcohol level he could be charged with impaired driving.

After the forty minutes Powis and Porowski were again put through the tests. On the balance beam Powis looked stable yet Porowski was a little shaky. However, during the public announcement, Powis faltered a few times but, Porowski actually seemed to improve. The pole drop showed that Powis' reactions slowed thirteen percent while Porowski slowed only a Johnny Fever-ish three percent!

Constable Meads warned that after forty minutes, alcohol is just beginning to have its effects as it moves into the bloodstream. Someone may be under the .08 percent legal limit, yet ten minutes later, without taking another drink, he could be legally impaired.

At the test's conclusion everyone had a greater appreciation of just how difficult it is to judge one's impairment level. The agreement seemed to be that to "know when to put a lid of it" when driving means being very cautious indeed.

I noticed Carl seems to categorize people in one of two groups; 1) stuck-up self-centered stiff and 2) carefree (who gives a shit) social misfits, which is the category he seems to fit in, considering the things he writes.

There is a middle of the road, Carl. P.S. Stop using that stupid "capitalist" word. I hate politics.

OOKS Take Two From Cougs

By Brian Stein
Staff Writer

In Calgary, the NAIT Ooks (10-1-0) swept a weekend series from the Mount Royal College Cougars (3-5-0) to maintain a four point lead over the Red Deer College Kings (8-3-0) who also won both games of a set with Augustana (1-7-0) this past week.

On Saturday, November 23rd, the Ooks and the Cougars hooked up in a shootout at Centennial Arena with NAIT scoring a 10-7 win.

In the first, the Ooks acquired an early advantage on goals by Brent Harden at 2:58 and Greg Geldart at 6:19. Dean Dorchak of MRC then found the mark at 10:50 before the Ooks responded with markers from Wayne MacDonald at 13:33 and Darren Perkins at 18:27.

In the second, the goals were not an endangered species. Dean Dorchak brought Mount Royal to within two at 1:22 only to have NAIT's Darren Perkins reinstate the two goal lead two minutes later. In the next twenty seconds, the teams exchanged markers with Al Wonitowy scoring for MRC and Darren Perkins replying for NAIT. At the 8:08 mark, Wayne

MacDonald gave NAIT a 7-3 advantage only to have Jason Dunham cut the lead to 7-4 at the 9:34 mark. The Ooks then acquired a 9-4 lead before period's end on Mark Souch's tally at 10:20 and Darren Perkins' marker at 16:21.

In the third, the Cougars rallied back on goals by Trevor Pohl at 1:01 and Bob Rutz at 11:23. Mark Souch then lifted the Ooks into double digits at 13:13 before MRC's Jason Dunham rounded out the scoring at 14:51.

Don Davidge turned away 25 of 32 shots in the NAIT net while Ken Weiss and Curtis Hoople blocked 45 of 55 shots in the Mount Royal crease.

On Sunday, November 24th, the Ooks shelled the Cougars 10-2.

In the first, Darren Perkins started things off for NAIT with his fifth goal of the series at 4:18. MRC's Brian Benson tied the contest at 1-1 with 8:46 gone in the period. The Ooks then went ahead to stay on goals by Mike Park at 12:47 and Darren Perkins at 19:15.

In the second, Wayne Manley gave the Ooks a 4-1 advantage before Trevor Pohl scored for the Cougars 11:09. Jason Krueckl of NAIT scored the Ooks fifth marker at 17:09.

In the third, the Ooks tallied five unanswered goals. Dale Dach, Wayne MacDonald, Mike Park, Mark Souch, and Greg Geldart all found the mark to seal the Ooks 10th win of the season.

Alec Sheflo stopped 23 of 25 shots in the NAIT crease while Ken Weiss and Curtis Hoople redirected 43 of 53 while guarding the MRC net.

The special teams played well with the Ooks racking up seven powerplay goals and two shorthanded markers on the weekend.

Offensively, Darren Perkins led NAIT with six goals and three assists. Perkins had the potential to rack up more points in game two but left near the midway point with an injury.

ON THE BENCH

In exhibition college hockey action at the NAIT Arena, the Ooks will entertain the Briercrest Clippers of Caronport, Saskatchewan on Friday, November 29th at 7:30 p.m. and on Saturday, November 30th at 2:30 p.m. The Ooks will resume regular season action on Sunday, December 1st when they host the Grande Prairie Regional College Wolves (0-10-0) in a 1:30 p.m. match-up. Admission is free to NAIT students and staff.

Swim Team Gears Up For Championship

By Jeff Riddle
Contributor

NAIT will play host to the ACAC Fall Swimming Championships this Saturday at the NAIT Pool.

The meet is the first of two ACAC competitions this year which will be used to determine the '91/92 Season Champs. Things look very good for the Ooks as the team prepares to defend their ACAC title.

The men's team is very solid and will be very difficult to beat. The squad is led by veterans Barry Saretsky, Paul Sinclair, Trent Plester and Daryl Wong.

The women's team will have their work cut out for them as both Keyano College (Fort McMurray) and Red Deer College will be fielding competitive women's teams.

This weekend's meet will get underway at 12 noon with warm-ups for the athletes. The first event will run at 1:00 p.m.

Come on down and support the Ooks!

By Kathy Spenrath and Dianna Paton

The NAIT men's volleyball team traveled down to Olds this past Friday night, and managed to chalk up their second win of the season, winning three games to one.

NAIT easily won the first game, but they got a little sluggish in the second game and lost to Olds 13 - 15. The Oaks came back to win the next two games by scores of 15 - 4 and 15 - 8.

On Saturday night, the Ooks took on Red Deer College. Red Deer proved to be too strong for the Oaks, and defeated them three games to zero.

League play is over for NAIT but, the regular season will resume in January.

The club will play in the U of A North Am Tournament on December 6th and 7th which will provide the team with the opportunity to gain some valuable playing experience to help them in the second half of league play.

Womens Volleyball Improves Record

By Kathy Spenrath and Dianna Paton

The NAIT women's volleyball team won their third match of the season after defeating Olds College last Friday in three games.

The Oaks dominated the match winning their games, 15 - 8, 17 - 16 and 15 - 8.

had a successful weekend, while veteran Corry Bespoyasny played strongly for the Oaks.

On Saturday, the Oaks lost to the Red Deer College Queens three games to none.

Basketball Update

By Kevin Patrick
Basketball Publicist

The second week of the regular season is over, and both basketball teams came out of weekend action with a win. Friday night, the Mount Royal College Cougars were in town. The women's game went down to the wire, with the Cougars taking the contest by one point, 56-55.

The men's game against the Cougars was all offence, with the Oaks outscoring the Cougars 100-95.

Saturday, SAIT visited the NAIT gym, and Jodie Deford led the women's team to an entertaining 54-46 win, their first of the regular season.

The men's team was up by 28 points at the half, and had little trouble on the court with the Trojans, cruising to an easy 91-66 win.

The unusual side of this game was that the Oaks were assessed three technical fouls during the game. Although members of the team said the refereeing did not affect the Oaks play, it did leave them puzzled at times.

Some definite leaders emerged from the weekend play. For the women, Jodie Deford led the scoring for both games, and she is averaging about 20 points per game. Coreen Chizewski's shooting came on during Saturday's game, and earned her 18 points on the night.

For the men, Chuck Royer did everything but sweep the floor Friday night as the game's scoring leader and Saturday, Rob Hansuk, still battling an ankle injury, managed to lead the scoring.

On the Bench

The Oaks are on the road for their first regular season away games of the year. They're in Medicine Hat on Friday, and Lethbridge on Saturday.

This is perhaps the longest, and most gruelling road trip facing the teams this season.

Injury Report

Kevin Lockhart was not on the bench for Friday's or Saturday's game. His status is unknown.

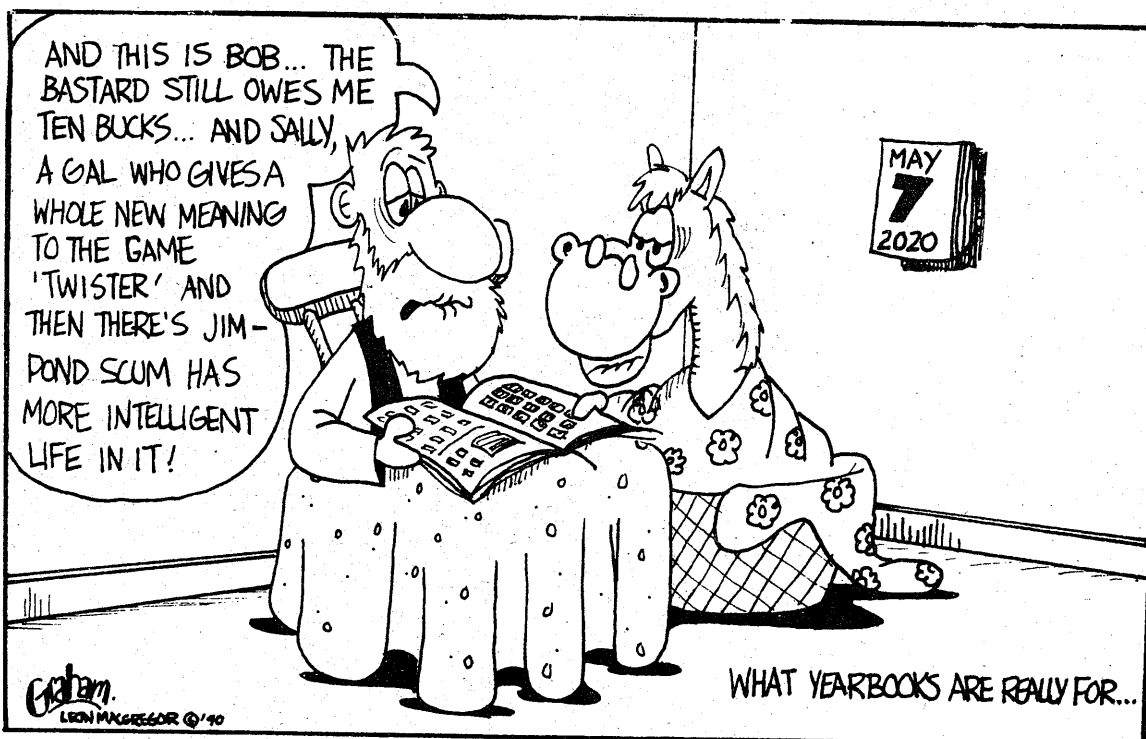

Trevor Dupras was on the bench again for the Oaks, and is a possible for the games this weekend.

Michelle Dorval suffered a broken nose during the women's game on Friday, and was on the bench along with Robbie Ross on Saturday. There's no word whether she'll be back for the upcoming weekend.

We Want A Ref! Or Do We?

By Kathy Spenrath
Sports Editorial

You can't play without them but, for the most part nobody likes to play with them.

They hold one of the most controversial positions in the sporting world. Whether it's at a professional level or at an amateur level, both fans and players alike have mixed feelings when it comes to referees.

But we need them, or the game wouldn't go on. Sure, it must be difficult for referees to show up game after game, night after night to do their jobs to the best of their abilities. But, what does "to the best of their abilities" really mean?

Look back to the '88 Stanley Cup Playoffs in New Jersey. The scheduled referees for this game walked out at the last minute, refusing to do their jobs. A few amateur refs, who happened to be at the game that evening, came down from the stands, suited up, and took the place of the professional "no-shows" - just so the game could go on.

But, it doesn't always have to be a huge episode - such as the New Jersey game to spark malicious comments from fans and players alike. Referees, officials and umpires are constantly being bombarded by criticism.

Is this because they're merely scapegoats for some frustrated people, or are they truly deserving of this constant criticism? It would be ideal to deal away with the inconsistencies, alleged favoritism, and the missed call that referees subject the fans and players to.

With competitive sports becoming better and faster in the last few years, it's certainly due time that leagues such as the NHL are finally making use of instant replays.

Grey Cups Should Move Around

BOB PRINCE SPEAKS OUT

By Bob Prince
The Dean of Sports Columnists

The Toronto Argonauts defeated the Calgary Stampeders 37-21 to win the 79th Grey Cup on Sunday afternoon. In retrospect, the renewed spirit in the activities surrounding the game and the game itself will be remembered as time passes.

Many heads were turned when Winnipeg was awarded the Grey Cup not so long ago.

Initially, there was an outcry from certain individuals who felt the game should only play the game within a dome stadium. Sunday's game proved that theory wrong.

Calgary made the Grey Cup more than just a game when they invaded Toronto and brought horses into the hotels in 1948. As time passed, the festival grew and grew until the CFL thought nothing could be done to improve the contest. Regression set in and the future of the league was in doubt. Luckily, the league realized that cities other than Toronto and Vancouver must host the game.

Most of the memorable Grey Cups have occurred outside of Toronto. Alberta has hosted two Grey Cups -- 1975 in Calgary and 1984 in Edmonton -- and both are still talked about for the game on the field and the spirit off it. Regina is the only CFL city not to host a Grey Cup, but a movement is afoot to bring the CFL spectacle to Taylor Field despite possible accommodation difficulties. Kissing Regina's dream of hosting a Grey Cup is premature. Staging the event in Saskatchewan is the next logical step for the CFL in continuing its newfound success in marketing.

But, the referees of today - even with the help of instant replay - are far below the calibre of professionalism that the players have now reached.

The refs seem to lack the quickness and objectiveness that are crucial to any sport. Perhaps some day soon, the instant replay idea can be expanded and we can do away with the referees and thus, the inconsistencies in the games we play.

Some people would say getting completely rid of referees in the game is definitely a step in the right direction. It would surely make the game cleaner and easier to watch. But, it would also eliminate the need to shout obscenities at your tv, or blame your team's mistakes on the referees.

Without the referees, officials and umpires, watching your favorite game just wouldn't be the same. But, then again, maybe the referees and officials would finally get a chance to sit up in the stands with the rest of us and actually enjoy the game.

With Grey Cup in the books, let's talk about other cups. I'll give you the name of the Cup, you tell me the sport.

3. Pearson Cup
4. Federation Cup

ATHLETES OF THE WEEK

CORRY BESPOYNASNY
WOMEN'S VOLLEYBALL

As one of only two veterans playing for this year's Oaks, Corry, a second year business student, has risen to the challenge of providing leadership on the court. Her intensity and hard work have made her a leader by example. Corry's defensive skills are a major asset to the team and her offensive skills improve with each match.

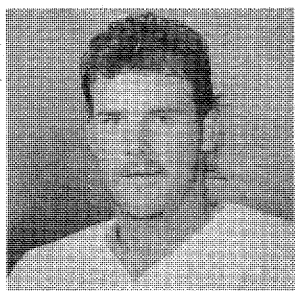

TERRY MAIK
MEN'S VOLLEYBALL

Terry's hard work and dedication to the team have been a great asset to this year's Oaks. As a setter he is instrumental to the team's development. In this year of rebuilding, the Oaks continue to improve daily thought the leadership provided by Terry on and off the court.

WAYNE MCDONALD
HOCKEY

The rookie left-winger has nine goals on the season including four in the past two weeks and adds consistency to the Oaks attack with his strong work ethic. Prior to joining the Oaks, the Pre-Technology student toiled with the Fort Saskatchewan Traders (AJHL) and the Lloydminster Blazers (AJHL).

Gone With the Wind Part II?

By Miller Malone
Opinion

I was watching Siskel and Ebert the other night and among other things the mutant brothers were bickering over who should star in the sequel to Gone With the Wind.

The first gone with the wind starring Vivian Leigh and Clark Gable was an epic. It was, and is considered by many, to be the greatest movie of all time. It's ending was pretty final and the only reason anyone would make a sequel out of the badly received second book is to make money.

The author of Gone With the Wind, Margaret Mitchel, didn't want to write a sequel. Yet after her death, her estate gave permission for another writer to write a sequel.

Now everyone's getting into this groove where they're arguing about who should star in part II.

I vote for PeeWee Herman and Sinead O'Connor to play Rhett and Scarlett.

Why not? It makes as much sense as making a sequel for no other reason than money.

To me, Gone With the Wind II is like building an addition onto St. Pauls' cathedral - it kinda detracts from the original.

A Mutant's View of Comedy Night

By Miller-Malone
B.S. Artist

I've been to this place before. As if in a dream, I make my way through clouds of smoke that obscure my vision and hide my path. I remember my way in the dark, like a sleep walker, I move towards the sound, hypnotic, breaking like waves on the beach of my mind.

The event is comedy night, and I don't know if I am here because of pre-destination, lattice of coincidence, or an urge to play the role of the social animal; caught graceless beneath the sound and fury of the moment.

This is the place where modern day philosophers come to sell their beliefs and trade their experience for something as elusive and intangible as a laugh.

Gord takes the stage. He warms the crowd with his urban wit, and like an orator of ancient Rome, he tells of events yet to come. Tuesday night, he says, will be more comedy and music. Arrive early, he warns.

The moment ripe, he introduces the first of the modern day philosophers.

Greg Parsons is first. His humor is sharp, like a razors edge, cerebral, but not so much that he is made self important by his depth of thought. His truth was... "I like PMS, it gets me out of the house."

Vacaro, the second and last in the carnival of humor, takes his place on the stage. He struts his brief moment, stating truths that we have never considered before now. He takes the issue of golf and the black man and makes us laugh with truth we haven't heard since the time of Socrates.

These are the philosophers we have, they make us laugh and sometimes they make us think. It is done with an easy grace, born of nights spent in places without number to faces that melt into one after an eternity under the light of the stage.
