Do you have the Exam Week Blues?

by Chris Borque

Mid-term exams are over once again here at NAIT and students breathe a sigh of relief. So what was learned? What has been forgotten? These questions depend a lot on how the exams were prepared for. Good students study at least a week in advance. But, for most students, evenings are spent cramming half a semester of notes into already aching, tired brains.

Often, as students are up late at night (or very early in the morning),

Another common complaint of students is the sheer volume of material that they are given and expected to memorize.

reading for the very first time month-old lecture notes, trying to memorize seemingly arcane and foreign symbols, formulas, and definitions, they wonder about the value of what they are learning and how they are learning. In a paper on subgoal learning the author (Richard Catrombone) expresses this concern by stating, "students often memorize a set of steps...without learning what subgoals those steps achieve. A result of this sort of learning can be that these students fail to solve novel problems that do not permit exactly the same set of steps..."

Not everyone at NAIT was cramming for exams over exam week. These students take a break in the Naitrium with The Days of Our Lives.

Another common complaint of students is the sheer volume of material that they are given and expected to memorize. Yet when they are tested, they are expected to know only a proportion of that material. Studying becomes an exercise in what to memorize and what to shuffle to the side. Why is the focus not on only essential material, for example, the material that is on (or should be on) the mid-term or final exam?

Dr. Robin Leech, student advisor, Biological Sciences, was confronted with these concerns and questions. He responded by saying that "exams (and consequently memorization) are an evil that you have to face. It is our (NAIT's) way of determining that you do or do not know the subject about which you are being examined. Regarding exams, I have had students get the exam questions and I have then selected from them."

Dr. Leech also spoke at another situation in which he gave his students the choice of either taking home an exam that he had prepared weeks in advance of the final and know that half of the questions will be on the final. Or, the students could not take the exam home and come to the exam cold and answer the questions sight-unseen. Dr. Leech explains, "the questions were designed to cover the course. If the student's knew the answers to the questions, then they would know the course."

Most students will agree that when they do have to wade through a mire of notes, good lecture notes from instructors are appreciated. Good lecture notes have the following characteristics:

1. Neatness - If handwriting is illegible, then notes should be typed. Instructors expect no less of students.

2. Flow - Notes that fit in somewhere and are not randomly thrown onto the blackboard or overhead with a lack of discernible order and form.

3. Brevity - Nobody wants to wade through excess.

4. Attitude - Effects the three previous characteristics. The best instructors are those that enjoy their job and do the best they can regardless of politics or a salary they think is inadequate; they shine and the others pale in comparison.

CALL YOUR FEDERAL MP

The NO side won the referendum, but only by 1.2%. It is important for all Canadians to contact their federal Members of Parliament to let them know how you want the current situation with Quebec handled. Following is a list of local federal MP's, along with their addresses, phone numbers and fax numbers. Call... don't let Ottawa sell us out.

NAIT Possible Parliament for Technocrats

by Chris Bourque

Technocracy is defined as "a system of organization in which government and industry are controlled by scientific experts of technicians." Technocracy originated in the winter of 1918-1919 when Howard Scott formed a group of scientists, engineers, and economists that became known, in 1920, as the Technical Alliance—a research organization. In 1933, it was incorporated under the Laws of the State of New York as a non-profit, non-political, non-sectarian membership organization. It has no affiliation with any other organization, group, or association in North America or elsewhere.

Technocracy's official symbol resembles the Chinese Yin-Yang symbol; it is called the Monad, and it signifies balance between productivity and distribution, which is an integral part of a social program designed by Technocracy.

Technocrats acknowledge the destruction of natural resources, pollution, poverty, crime, and cultural clashes as the product of the current political and economic system. They feel that the current system functions in a state of scarcity which keeps Functional Control is determined only by the requirements of the job that must be done.

prices high and is willfully preserved by "cunning" public relations, techniques (mass media, propaganda), destroying and stockpiling food to keep prices up, and sabotaging the productivity of equipment through legal tangles.

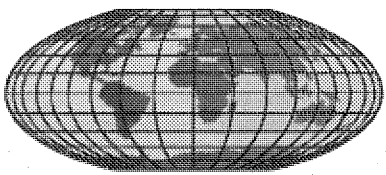

Technocrats feel that today's problems cannot be dealt with effectively by the current system because the solutions and incompatible with profiteering, political power struggles and evaluated governmental concepts.

The type of government Technocracy proposes is one that operates under Functional Control. Functional Control is not control by a small group of elite, it is control by technique, which means that the process which works best is adopted, and the process which is shown through performance to be less efficient is discarded. Functional Control is determined only by the requirements of the job that must be done.

Technocracy would like to see technology developed to help people not purely for profit. Tasks like building dams, power plants, canals, railways, and a highway system should be done with maximum effectiveness in mind.

Technocracy's ultimate purpose is to exist for the purpose of harnessing technology to the task of creating an equitable high-quality life for its citizens.

YOUR WORLD

by Richard Ozero

TAX DOLLAR TV

Your wallet may be getting a break. Rumor has it CBC is planning to sell off its Calgary TV station. President of Friends Of Canadian Broadcasting, Ian Morrison, says the corporation is down-sizing. He says that CBC is planning cuts that will slash almost one-third of its jobs in Alberta. Morrison says that the corporation's directors are planning to dismantle Canada's public broadcasting system. Morrison believes CBC's agenda includes selling TV stations in Calgary and other communities. Turning some smaller CBC community stations into "Storefront" operations and cutting broadcasts to rural areas also seem to be possible. Morrison estimates Alberta's cuts would translate into 50 out of 215 jobs in Calgary and 127 out of 337 positions in Edmonton being lost.

MONEY MATTERS

Canada is tops. That's not necessarily a good thing though. Canada ranks high in a study of gaps between the rich and poor. The United States reigns supreme, followed by Ireland, Italy, Canada and Australia. The study was conducted by the Paris-based organization for economic co-operation and development.

HUGE VEHICLE RECALL

Your car might not be safe. It's going to be a bumpy road ahead for General Motors. GM has announced its biggest recall of the 90's. A test by Transport Canada discovered a problem with rear seat belt anchor bolts. Over two million mid-size passenger cars in Canada and the US need fixing. Dealers will replace the anchor bolts on affected vehicles at no charge. The models being recalled are the 1989 and 1990 Celebrity, the 1989 through 1991 Pontiac 6000, the 1989 through 1995 Oldsmobile Cutlass Sierra and the 1989 through 1995 Buick Celebrity. GM says there have not been any owner reports of seat belt failures, accidents or injuries related to the defect.

HUNTER LANDS HIMSELF IN JAIL

Last week a French hunter set his sights on one big bird. He brought down a four tonne troop-carrying helicopter in a Southern France forest. The man was apparently angry at low-flying army choppers. The hunter started blasting away with his shotgun as the aircraft flew overhead. The helicopter's fuel line was cut by the shotgun blast. The chopper was to make an emergency landing. No one was injured. The hunter was arrested by police who say he had been drinking.

DANGEROUS LIFE-SAVERS

Air Bags may not save children's lives. This has caused regulators to issue a warning about air bags. They say the bags can kill children who aren't wearing seat belts. Officials are looking into whether the deaths of six children killed in car crashes were caused by inflating air bags.

RACISM OR NOT

Remember this? The Mounties say one RCMP officer was present at a "good old boys" picnic last year in Tennessee. The picnic is a gathering of Law enforcement officers. The U.S. Senate Judiciary Committee claims the Tennessee event has been racist since the first annual picnic in 1980. Back in Canada, the RCMP claims its officers found no evidence of racially oriented overtones or activities.

KOMRAD(ERY) IN SPACE

There's big news for world in space. Thirty years ago, Russia was competing to beat the U.S. in the space race. In the 90's the countries are working together. Russian space officials have agreed to train a western astronaut as a mission commander. This is a first. Until now, western astronauts have only flown as researchers on board Russian spacecraft.

BOOZE AT THE WHEEL

Across the country there was something strange brewing. A Fredericton man has been fined for operating his motorized wheelchair while drunk. Forty-year-old Raymond Macdonald has Muscular Dystrophy. Police stopped him in his chair on a city road. Macdonald failed a breathalyzer test. He pleaded guilty and was handed a 300 dollar fine. Usually, when people are convicted of impaired driving they can't operate a motorized vehicle for three months. Macdonald can't use a manual wheelchair because of M.S. So, the judge decided to order Macdonald not to operate his wheelchair in public while drinking.

Technical Barbarians

by Chris Bourque

An instructor here at NAIT thought that he would give his students a break from Organic Chemistry and Biosynthetic Pathways by having them watch a film.

The purpose of this exercise, the instructor explained, was to keep the students from becoming "technical barbarians." A technical barbarian is a student with a too narrow focus on his/her training, a student who can't apply the training to new or global situations. The movie was an eye-opener for the students.

The movie was called, "Limits to Growth." In this movie, scientists, academics, and experts from many disciplines and from around the world contributed their knowledge with the intent of creating a computer model that would predict the fate of mankind. A computer was used to handle the huge amount of data and the complex mathematical inter-relationships that would develop.

The computer model took variables like capital investment, standard of living, food production, population, pollution, time. All of the variables were then individually and hypothetically increased or decreased. The ultimate outcome was usually a crash in population and standard of living.

For example, if capital investment was steadily increased, pollution, due to increased industrial production, reached lethal concentrations followed by massive population decline. It seemed no matter what variable was manipulated, it caused the population to eventually and dramatically crash.

The movie made clear that the earth is a closed system with finite resources. Like any organisms in a closed system with finite resources, humans will reach a point where the resources cannot sustain the numbers and the waste by-products of consuming become lethal. This is inevitable but we can control the rate at which this happens.

The movie offered the following solutions that would produce a steady state where the population did not crash: reduce capital investment, hold standard of living at present, reduce food production, reduce birth rate by 50%, and control pollution.

All of these solutions require political action. Also, as a society, an increased standard of living must be defined. For example, does it mean buying that automatic bread-makers? Is economic growth a pathological process?

Sometimes "Government" shoves things down our throat whether we like it or not. You may remember the metrification that swept the country in the seventies under the watchful eye of the "metre police" who threw people in jail for selling carpet by the square yard rather than m².

A lot of bunk was distributed at the time, and to this day there is not much common sense when it comes to labeling products. This is particularly true in the food and grocery business. For someone like me, who grew up with the metric system, switched to the imperial system early in my professional career and is now back to measuring in ml and grams, it was particularly obvious that bureaucrats mindlessly follow dictum regardless of consequences. And so it came to pass that we are now selling solid products by the litre (detergents and pickles for example) and liquids by weight (honey).

For the technical industries, metrification was a godsend, it made the Canadian industry compatible with the rest of the world (except, of course, Great Britain).

Metrification for the food industry has not worked very well. Not for lack of trying, mind you, but because almost all our food products come from the United (we-do-what-we-want) States. Of course, if you are serving a market of nearly 300 million people, we included, one has to accept a certain amount of autonomy in marketing. It's just that, well read your average label on any can: 298 mls of diced carrots in brine. Really. What does that mean? How much brine, how much carrots? And how much carrots are one cup? Let's face it, unless all your cookbooks at home have been purchased in the last week or so, chances are there isn't a ml or gram to be found in any of the recipes. It's cups and quarts and teaspoons and pounds and ounces.

I've seen recipes converted from Imperial to metric and half teaspoon of pepper became 3 mls or 3 grams. How utterly asinine. There isn't a household scale (or commercial scale for that matter) that could measure such a quantity.

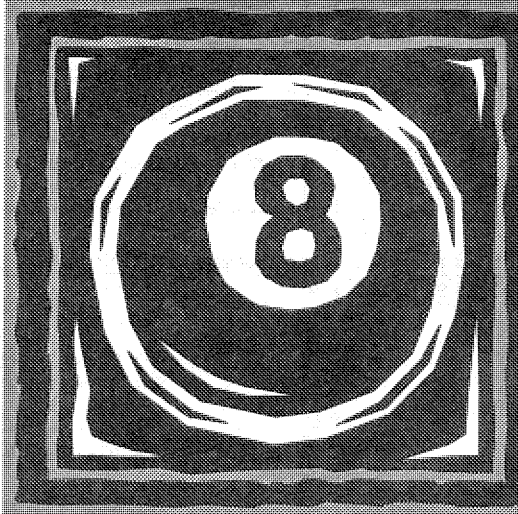

If you're lucky you get 5 gram increments, most domestic scales are 10 gram increments, and they are so poorly made that you couldn't be sure whether you have 10 or 20 grams of anything. For a recipe that calls for 3 grams of pepper this could spell disaster. To my mind it's good to be modern and progressive and with-it, like surfing the Internet etc., but when it comes to accurate recipes, give me teaspoons, cups and ounces anytime (good old England).

But there is a point to this story, and it isn't the bitching. In my last column I gave a recipe for a delicious cheese and vegetable lasagna, and without giving it a second thought I listed all ingredients in the old Imperial way, mainly because that's how I copied it from the Internet. You may have guessed it, the epicurious page and the vegetarian page reside in California in the good ol' US of A.

So, here is the question: How many readers looked at the recipe and tossed it aside because it made no sense (what the heck is 2 cups of broccoli)? After all, metrification has been around long enough for some students here to never have heard of Imperial measurements. And how many felt comfortable with the old style? For that matter, how many people actually made the lasagna, how many parties did this result in, and how many calories were consumed and later worked off. Inquiring minds want to know. I would like some feedback (to the editor) for future considerations. Is there a demand for other recipes not commonly found in standard cook books. How about recipes for 1 person? More vegetarian? Some hearty meat and potato recipes? Also, if you have any questions regarding food or food preparation, feel free to inquire. The editors will let me know and I'll try to have an answer in the next paper.

HEATHER JOHNSON
EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

A United Canada?

The most important vote in Canadian history is over - for the time being at least. Unlike other votes, this referendum has not improved Canada's situation.

Before the referendum, I was in favour of Quebec separating from Canada basically because there is no foreseeable answer to the problems we face. However, while the votes were being counted, I was biting my nails in anticipation hoping Quebec would stay.

Thankfully, the NO side won - by a slight margin. Unfortunately, the one per cent margin is not enough to deter sovereigntists to continue is their struggle for their own country.

So, the saga continues.

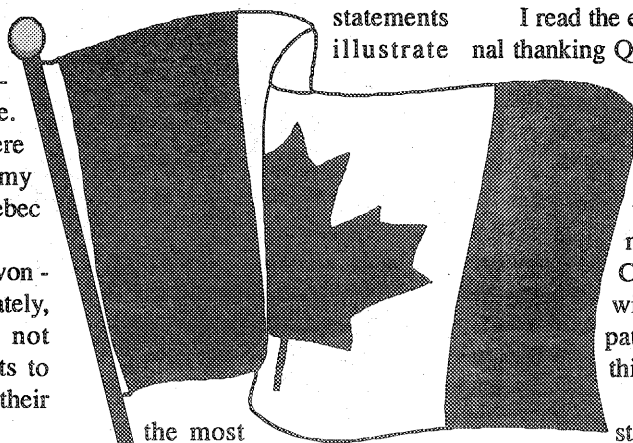

The most enlightening part of referendum evening was watching the Canadian dollar climb on the Tokyo stock exchange peaking at just over 75 cents US.

Jacques Parizeau is the most disappointing part of the sovereignty referendum. Apparently his own party agrees with me - he resigned as Premier of Quebec.

His speech, after it was clear Quebec was to remain a part of Canada, was offensive. He said, "we were beaten it is true, but by what? By money and the ethnic voters. All it means is that we [francophones] were 60 per cent this time; we'll just have to be 63 per cent next time."

Parizeau's statements illustrate the most frightening and disheartening part of the Quebec sovereignty campaign. It shows the arrogance of some Quebecers who believe true Quebecers are francophones only. That arrogance would be willing to split up Quebec (which is about half anglophones and allophones) for their own purposes despite what the rest of Quebec and Canada may think.

Unfortunately, the Parti Quebecois are due to spend several more years in the Quebec Legislative Assembly. During this time I hope they have time to consider the size of Quebec's debt along with many other economic problems in the midst of trying to destroy Canada.

I read the editorial in the Journal thanking Quebec for staying. I momentarily felt bad about still being angry. However, every time I think about how much it is costing Canada to wrangle with Quebec, my empathy fades. After all, this is Alberta.

I don't understand what they want. Canada is the best country in the world to live in. We have an impeccable reputation for our high standard of living and international responsibility.

For people in Quebec, this is not good enough?

On top of everything they already have - including the multi-million dollar a year transfer payment from the federal government - they want the rest of Canada to recognize them as distinct. Distinct from what... the Ukrainian culture on the prairies, the Japanese culture on the west coast, the Native Canadian culture, the Italian culture, the East Indian culture... the list goes on and on. There are so many cultures in Canada which are distinct from each other, why should the francophones in Quebec be classed differently.

However, I would be willing to concede Quebec has a distinct society and give them more power to govern themselves if, they became less of a burden on the Canadian taxpayer. Let them have the power, but make them take the responsibility.

I encourage all Albertans to call their federal Members of Parliament and tell them how they want to be represented in the House of Commons with regard to this issue. There is a list of Edmonton and surrounding area MP's on page two.

CAMPUS CRIME

What do O.J. Simpson and vandals have in common? They are both considered criminals (or at least he should be).

Granted the various campus crimes are not of the same magnitude as the Ronald Goldman and Nicole Simpson double murder, but they still affect people around here.

One of the latest crimes involves the Nest and NAITSA. A ceiling sign with the Nest logo and directional arrows was stolen from the activities centre. If memory serves right, there are 5725 full-time students at NAIT who pay a $97.00 student association (SA) fee, and those SA fees paid for the new Nest signs. What this means is every student had what would amount to a substantial loss of $.01/student.

A loss of that much may seem insignificant, but what if it was your car stereo that was stolen or your locker that was broken into, then it seems a lot worse.

Campus crime rates at NAIT are increasing this year. If something is stolen from you or vandalized, contact Security at 471-7400 and file a report. If there is a crime in progress, phone security. If you know of a crime that has occurred and you can give some information which may assist in an arrest or recovery of stolen property, call Campus Crimestoppers at 429-8336 or 1-800-661-8336.

On a lighter note, the micro-waves from the tower and Naitrium have been repaired and some advice to go with their return:

•don't put metal in the micro-waves (tin foil, forks, spoons, etc...)

•don't slam the door. It isn't your grandfather's 1965 t-bird, they happen to be a little fragile

Until next week, happy eating!

VIVE LE CANADA

Alright, let's leave. Get out a steak knife and carve your independence out of the skeleton of what used to be an envied country. I'm talking about our sorry state of political affairs.

This whole idea of separating chokes me up. Maybe Alberta and B.C. should separate. Western ingenuity + our natural resources = a strong, wealthy, sovereign nation. But, that is not what I want. Nor should it be what any other Canadian wants. Like Trudeau said "You want to break it up, you want to take it away from our children, well I say no!" Well, I say no too. Last year Canada was voted by the UN to be the number one place to live. This year, because of ignorance and an school yard rivalry, Canada is only a ghost of its former glory. After more than a hundred years we have not been able to solve the problem of clash of cultures. Canada should be ashamed of itself for letting the dispute fester like a boil on its maple leaf ass. Was official bilingualism our downfall?

Last Monday, on a radio newscast, a no side supporter spoke of warning the United States about the ill fate of having more than one official language. We wasted our time in school learning French so that we could possibly get a job with the government.

England was not my grandparents home land; but, they gave up part of their heritage in trade for the privilege to live here. Why does that trade off not apply to some elite few who want to destroy our pride and our economy. I've taken for granted where I grew up (which was in Canada). Now, it is time to reclaim its greatness. Never before has this country needed its people to believe in it.

We're Celebrating our Anniversary!

Cam's Capsule CD Review

Mike Scott - Bring 'em All In

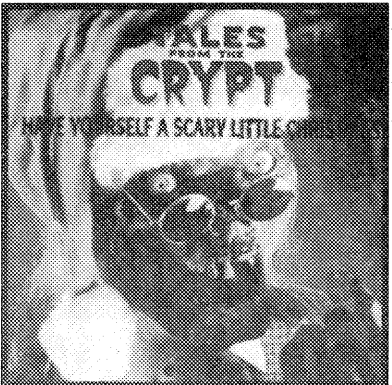

He looks like Rick Springfield but sounds like my ass. This Chachi is a cross between Gowan and Meatloaf and believe you me that's not a pretty thing.

Every song sounds the same except for track 4. On that glorious piece of work this philistine nimrod is trying a major rip off of Bob Dylan. This dude can't sing, but he makes a valiant attempt. The real problem is this Mike Scott guy just ain't got soul, sorry Mike.

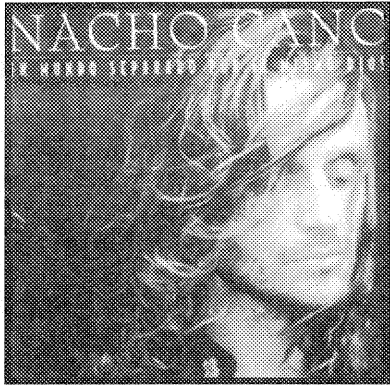

Iron Maiden - The X-Factor

As usual excellent cover art. If you feel like punching your head through a steel beam this is the CD for you. This is one heavy album, I had trouble getting it out of the box. What can be said about this album except that it sounds very Iron Maidenish. Rock on my fellow brothers.

Tales from the Crypt - Have Yourself a Scary Little Christmas

What a piece of crap. Looks like someone had a little too much time on their hands. As hard as they tried, this CD just ain't funny. Stupid stupid stupid. It's unfortunate that crap like this is being passed off as music. Whatever this is, it is neither music nor entertaining. All this disc succeeded in doing was give me a headache. This is a very bad hit.

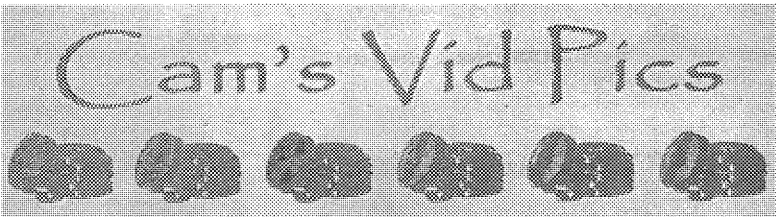

Nacho Cano - Un Mundo Separado Por El Mismo Dios

Nacho Cano = Mucho Crapo. You're barking up a dead dog's ass if you think this will be a good addition to your CD collection. This disk is about as dry as an old bean fart. If you're 60 or under, this CD is better suited to you as a coaster. As I listen to this bad beef taco, it just gets more and more rancid. Nacho Cano is a big El No No.

John Hiatt - Walk On

You've heard it before a thousand times. An eclectic beat with a rugged voice that both rocks and soothes. There's nothing new here, it's pretty standard stuff. It's actually not a bad album. It's possible that Mr. John Hiatt could really go somewhere if he continues to develop his sound. His voice is really quite interesting not very typical in and of itself.

Hold the phones, let out the cat, and unlock the grandparents. Get ready to blow a gasket friends. When you can't decide which of te hundreds of choices available, look no further that Evil Dead 2. This raucous, action-packed, stupidity fest is just what the doctor ordered to wipe away those video store blues.

This flick is made from solid cheese, as you will surely find out in the first five minutes. But in this case, cheese is good. There's no plodding along at a snail's pace in this stinky adventure. The viewer is thrown right into the action from moment one.

The singular talent in this Mozza ball is that of Bruce Campbell. Bruce plays our unwitting hero in this gory ride down memory lane. Remember when you were young and all you wanted to do was rent scary movies. Well, now's the time to relieve your childhood and rent an absolutely hilarious scary flick.

Bruce cuts, scrapes, impales, shoots, and chainsaws his way through countless members of the walking dead. I'm not talking the "eat your brains" kind of walking dead, I mean the dancing around, easily confused, stupid, eyeballs, popping out of sockets kind of dead.

I can almost guarantee that you will laugh your ass off at this film.

Crummy effects combined with an excruciatingly painful story make for a viewing experience second to none.

You should try to break away from the norm. Don't see Forrest Gump again, and don't rent that absolute piece of crap Batman Forever when it finally taints the video store shelves.

Rent Evil Dead 2. Rent it because then you can say that you were on of the unique few who has enjoyed it's campy hilarious flavor.

I give Evil Dead 2

Get Shorty is Right On

by Cam Weichel

Smoke my hide and wring out my shorts. It has been one hell of a long time since a movie this enjoyable has come sailing down the pike. Some flicks are good, but his one is more than that. It's like a tall, cool glass of water on a hot, Sahara day. It refreshes the soul and lightens the spirit.

The first five minutes will have you busting your gut and wetting your pants. The soundtrack will keep you swinging along until the last frame. This film has a fantastic look and feel. The flick's center is Mr. John Travolta. Playing gangster Chilly Palmer is nothing new for Travolta. He displays his cool charm and nimble wit with ease on the screen. At some point during this movie almost every man wants to become Chilly Palmer. He's handsome, he gets the girl, he's funny, he does whatever he wants, and he drives the Cadillac of minivans.

Travolta plays this character with such style and grace that as he swaggered up a flight of stairs, one could almost hear the Bee Gee's rendition of Stayin' Alive playing in the background.

Gene Hackman plays a complete jackass. He is Harry Zimm, fallen film director. He specializes in making B-grade trash. His character is so dramatically opposed to that of Travolta's, that they make a perfect foil to each other.

This is definitely the dopest character Hackman has ever played and it suits him well. He's a turtle neck wearing gold sporting, dime a dozen, filthy mother.

Danny Devito plays the much sought after actor, Martin Weir. He is the typical image of a head in the clouds movie star. He struts around like pompous peacock and one gets the feeling that Weir is truly over rated as are many of the Hollywood superstars. Devito's performance is outstanding and is not the typical short guy role.

Overall, there are some wicked scenes, and tremendous laughs. This flick will truly give you a great feeling inside. I'm not talking some cheap, warm, fuzzy. I'm talking a "I can take on the world" kind of feeling.

I give "Get Shorty" 3.5 Nuggets out of 4 Nuggets.

Halloween is gone but the sugar high isn't, right? I have a couple of places you can go to spend your energy.

Thursday at Peoples there's "Kissing Ophelia", "Dog Rocket" and "Rebel Angels" or see "Captain Nemo" at Mickey Finns. These two places are about a block away from each other on Whyte Ave. If one is sold out or too packed, go to the other.

Also Thursday, "Captain Tractor" and "Plaid Tongued Devils" start a run that finished on Saturday. The other alternative to this busy night is the "Mahores" at the Rev.

If you are not into any of these bands, then the Rev has an 80's disco party on Saturday the 4th. Or on the same night, you can go to "Cosmic Jam" at this 4 room party will be the biggest rave Edmonton has ever had. 22 DJ's will be performing from places like San Francisco, Vancouver, Calgary, Regina, and there's Traci Lords from L.A. If you went to Nexus and you had fun, this will be a blast.

Lastly, if you are looking for something new to do, hit a Jazz club on any open stage nights. Every Wednesday at Riverview Lounge and every Tuesday at the Yardbird Suite for example. Don't limit your choices for entertainment, there's a lot of things to do in Edmonton, you just might have to go looking for it.

Men's Volleyball Begins

by Mark Mahl

The time has come to shut-up and play. We have done our practice thing, we have done our exhibition thing, NOW IT IS REAL!

'Some inexperience, a little bit of GEL and confidence, and this team is pure power.'

The 14 players, who were profiled two weeks ago are ready. Although struggling, quantitatively, at their tourney, they were one of the best teams there. Some inexperience, a little bit of GEL and confidence, and this team is pure power. Finish is what they need and finish is what they are going to do this weekend as they start the regular season in Fort McMurray.

MEN & WOMEN WANTED

Meet the Men's Basket Ball Team Athlete of the Week

by Brandi Brownlee

They're strong. They're smart. They're smooth.

They're kings of the basketball playground.

They are the 1995-96 NAIT men's basketball team.

This year's basketball heroes are promising an outstanding season. With the regular season getting under way in a matter of weeks, the Oaks have a talented and determined squad. Six athletes are returning to lead the nine rookies in life in the ACAC.

'Chopko is NAIT's team leader and the natural, go to guy.'

In the core of this season's Oaks are two returning players Dennis Chopko and Rory Koska. These ACAC All-Stars will be the main forces for NAIT. Koska has proved beyond a doubt that you don't need to play high school ball to become a legend. Chopko is NAIT's team leader and the natural "go to guy".

The Vets:

#3 Jeff Neilson- a 5'8" guard out of Wetaskiwin. Jeff is a strong 3 pt. threat who carries the ball well.

#5 Brad Seward- a 5'11" guard from Ardrossan. He is a very good role player and is the key to the heart of the game.

#6 Brad Mills- a 5'11" guard originating from Vegreville. Mills is an excellent on-ball defender. He easily sparks the offense with his aggressive play.

#8 Jeff Noble- a 6'2" guard who is quiet but consistent. There are no faults in his game. Jeff came out of Bonnyville.

#12 Dennis Chopko- last year's MVP is a 6'3" guard who previously played two seasons of basketball at Rocky Mountain College in Montana.

#14 Rory Koska- Edmonton's own 6'6" forward is this year's driving force behind the Oaks. Rory has an intimidating presence in the paint.

The Rookies:

The '95-'95 basketball freshmen have immense talent. All players boast of NAIT All-City status.

#4 Steven Kennedy- a 6'3"

guard from Devon. Kennedy adds a nice outside touch from the outside. He brings a second year mentality as a first year player.

#7 Shane McLaughlin- plays with his heart and shows a great desire to win. He stands 6'3" and was a forward at J. Percy Page High School.

#9 Brian Purnell- Purnell runs the show well as a 6'0" guard out of Bev Facey High School. He always has great composure on and off the court.

#10 Cory Benedict- a 6'2" forward from Stony Plain. He may be undersized but he has a certain flare under the basket.

#11 Marty Mclean- a 6'0"

guard with strong offensive talent. He is a second year transfer from Kings University.

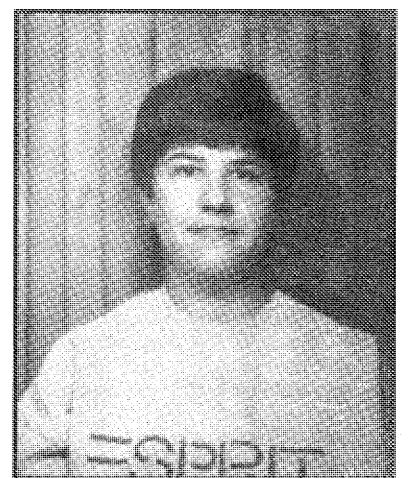

#13 Darren Satkunas- this 6'5" forward is from Ft. McMurray. Satkunas demonstrates tremendous leaping ability.

#15 Robert Lambert- the MVP of his league in Bonnyville. He is 6'4" and has been a surprising talent from the post.

#16 Randy Cardinal- a second year forward who stands 6'2" tall. Cardinal brings life experience to the court for the Oaks.

#17 Jason Harke- this 6'2" forward from Holy Trinity School is a very determined player. Harke is respected for his good work ethic.

Carleen Benyon
Position: Midfield
Technology: Accounting
High School: St. Joes

Carleen is a very dedicated soccer player whose hard work as captain on and off the field helped inspired the Oaks to a second place finish in the ACAC North and a birth in the playoffs. Her cool, calm leadership style was well-received by the players. She plays and has coached her senior women's club in St. Albert.

She is an avid soccer fan, religiously supporting Liverpool in the English Premier League and Glasgow Rangers of the Scottish Premier League.

Congratulations Carleen!

The Men's Last Soccer Game of the Year

by Brandi Brownlee

The disappointment lasted only a few minutes. It's not like it hasn't happened before.

The déjà-vu was painstakingly real. The same field. The same bench. They kicked off from the same side. The bus was parked in the same spot. Even the same score.

Fate was not on their side that day. The Oaks lost 1-0 in the ACAC playoff rematch against SAIT last weekend. The season has come to an end.

While NAIT wasn't able to make it all the way, they accomplished a lot. They clinched the ACAC North Division Championship with a 6-1-3 record. NAIT finished with the lowest goals against average in the league, of nine.

A grand total of six Oaks made the list for ACAC scoring leaders. They are Ted Bretzer (7), Rob Boyle (6), John Westergaard (5), Robin Lemus (3), Mario Dolanjski (3), and A.J. Rehman (3). NAIT had double the amount of players chosen for the list than any other team.

NAIT's own Trevor Hartel and Rod Acevedo were the top keepers in the league. They had the best stats and deserve to be the #1 and #2 keepers. Their performances weren't anything less than spectacular all season.

Despite the visible talent on the soccer team, only one player was chosen for the all-conference team. Oaks Captain, Brian Austen, is the lone representative for NAIT.

As for the playoff game on Saturday, "it was very sad," explains a NAIT spectator. "They (NAIT) obviously outplayed the other team."

"We were all over them the whole game," says Oaks player Shannon Troke. "It's disappointing."

The Oaks and the Trojans fought hard for the entire game and into the double overtime.

SAIT put an end to the battle and claimed victory with 7 minutes left in the 2nd overtime period.

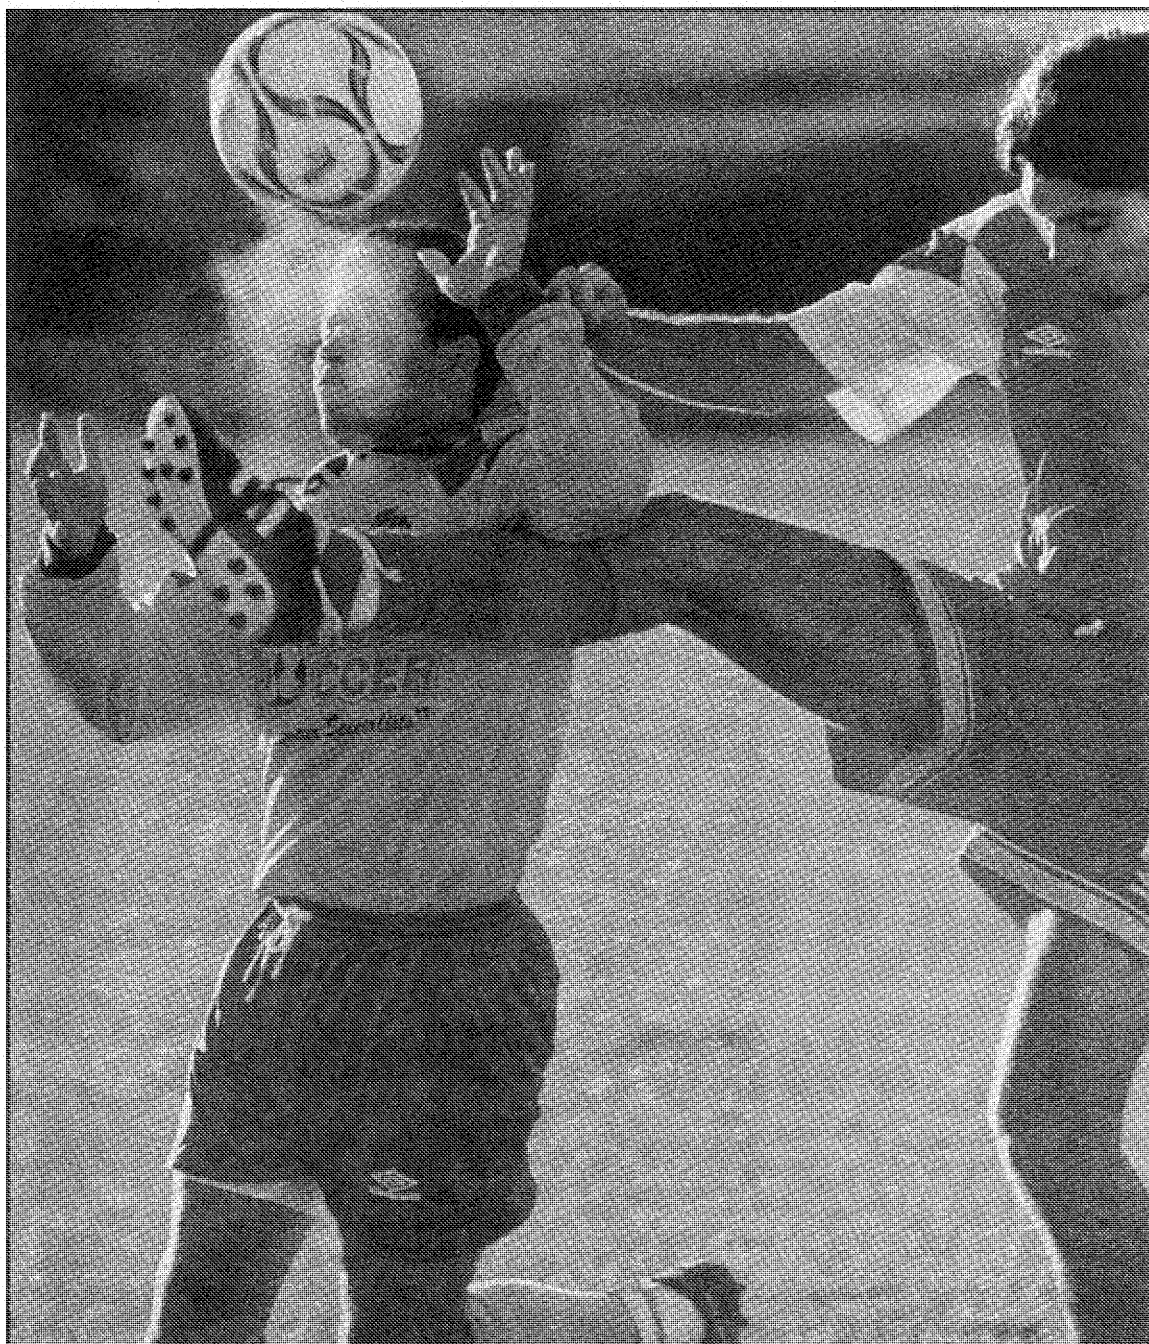

Coming into the playoffs, NAIT was pretty well prepared. "I never had a doubt in my mind that we were going to win," says Oaks Manager Kevin Jones. "No one seemed to have a goal in them." On NAIT's attempts to score a goal, the ball hit the posts twice, and one time a breakaway was missed, the ball appeared to bounce on the goal line.

One theory by an Oaks athlete is that they just had a mental breakdown. "It came down to one mistake," he says, "it was us."

"I'm not disappointed in any players," says Jones. "They were first-class all around."

"Who wanted to go to Medicine Hat in November, anyway?"

'NAIT's own Trevor Hartel and Rod Acevedo were the top keepers in the league.'

Robin Lemus, playing tough in the Soccer Oaks' final game against SAIT.

NAIT Cross-Country Runner Places 3rd in ACAC Championships

Jon McFee placed 3rd in the 8 km men's Cross-Country Running Championships held in Lethbridge on October 21. The NAIT men finished fifth as a team. Mount Royal won the men's championships followed by Augustana, Red Deer and Grande Prairie.

NAIT's top woman was Berthe Pelchat who finished 28th in the 4 km women's championship: Jon McFee (3rd), Shaun Hogg (15th), Leon Matthee (31st), Richard Cameron (36th), and Dean Zardenec (37th).

The women's race was won by Tamara Salomon of SAIT in 14:36. NAIT's women placed: Berthe Pelchat (28th), Barb Wegernowski (45th) and Jill Hofer (46th).

Twelve colleges competed in this year's championships and was attended by 59 men and 51 women.

The Grand Prix awards were also presented at the ACAC Championships. These awards were presented to the top ten athletes placed in at least four of the pre-season and ACAC events. The top female was Amy Ford of Augustana. NAIT's top woman was Berthe Pelchat who placed 15th. The top male was Adam Symonds of Mount Royal, NAIT's men placed: Jon McFee (5th), Shaun Hogg (14th), and Leon Matthee (24th).

The next event for the cross-country runners is the Interprovincial Championships between Alberta and B.C.

This event occurs on November 5 in Kelowna. The best 15 male and female runners in the ACAC Championships will represent Alberta in the event.

The focus now changes to Cross-Country Skiing. Practices begin November 1 and run every Monday and Wednesday. We meet in front of the gym. We are doing dry-land training on roller-blade and roller-skis until the snow hits. Come out and join us — see John Reeves (S-105) phone 8575 or Frank McNamara (J-105) phone 7042 for details.

Ooks Hockey

Starting a Home and Home Series with the Vikings

by Brian Stein

The NAIT Ooks (2-2) face the Augustana University College Vikings (1-3) in a home and home series this weekend. The Ooks host the Vikings in the NAIT Arena on Friday at 7:00 p.m. and travel to Camrose to the Camrose Recreation Centre on Saturday for an 8:00 p.m. match up.

Camrose's Augustana University College Vikings have 13 returnees on the team and would like to improve on their sixth place (3-21-0) finish of a season ago. After a competitive training camp, the Vikings will start the season with three goaltenders including Chris Croteau who played with Nelson (RMJHL) in 1993-94. Derek Christiens from the North Battleford North Stars (SJHL) and veteran Pat MacKintosh round out the netminding trio. On defense, the Vikings have a number of veterans back including Kent Todd, Jason L'Heureux, Bruce Martin, and Russ Seifred. Jordi Shaw from the Kinistino Tigers (SJHL) adds dimension to the blueline corps. Returnees Bob Charchun, Jason Collins, Reg Speers and Pat Misura are the players expected to pick up the pace offensively.

While the Vikings split a weekend set with the SAIT Trojans last weekend, the Ooks swept a home and home series with the Concordia College Thunder.

On Friday, October 21st, the Ooks netted five second period goals en route to a 9-3 win over the Thunder at the Agricom.

In the first, NAIT's Jay Lines netted the period's only goal on the power play at 1:32.

In the second, the Thunder tied the game on Mike Tavaroli's marker at the 30 second mark. Peter Kasowski then potted a pair of goals for the Ooks at 7:48 and 9:20. Stacey Rayan went upstairs with the Ooks shorthanded at 13:48 to give the Ooks a 4-1 advantage. Chris Wakal notched Concordia's second goal at 16:45. Stacey Rayan and Darby Walker found the mark at 17:24 and 18:17 respectively to give the Ooks a 6-2 advantage at the end of the two.

In the third, the teams exchanged markers with Keith Randall's point blast finding the range for NAIT at 2:02 and Mike Tavaroli countering for Concordia with a top corner tally at 15:00. The Ooks closed out the game's scoring on goals from Darby Walker at 14:53 and Josh Ray at 17:03.

Mike Walker of NAIT turned away 22 of 25 shots while Brent Bradford of CC redirected 32 of 41 drives.

On Saturday, October 28th, the NAIT power play capitalized on five occasions as the Ooks triumphed 8-2 at the NAIT Arena.

In the first, the Ooks jumped out to a quick 2-0 lead as Darby Walker and Stacey Rayan tallied at 22 and 2:03 respectively. Jeff Suggitt pulled the Thunder to within one at 2:15 before Jay Lines reinstated NAIT's two goal advantage at 18:36.

In the second, the Ooks widened their lead to 6-1 on goals by Wade Fennig at 7:41, Stacey Rayan at 10:30, and Sandro Pisani at 16:12.

In the third, Mike Tavaroli netted the second Thunder goal with the two man advantage at 10:12. The Ooks countered with a pair of late tallies from Trevor Ball at 14:21 and Keith Randall at 17:27.

NAIT's Rick Nichol blocked 25 of 27 shots while Concordia's Brent Bradford stopped 46 of 54 drives.

Update on Womens Soccer Playoffs

Since our last report, NAIT women defeated Concordia in its last game of the season 2-1. Goal scorers for NAIT were Lidja Horvat and Renee Lemoine. Lizainne Wheeler had a strong performance in net. She made several brilliant saves to hold off Concordia.

The following weekend, the Ooks traveled to the playoffs. They met league-leading Mount Royal College in the semi-final and lost 3-0. This was a far better performance than the last time they met this team in league play. The Ooks are to be congratulated for making the playoffs and never quitting in a tough semi-final game which all the NAIT players played as hard as they could. We wish Mount Royal the best luck in their bid to win the Nationals.

Intramural Participants of the Month

by Brandi Brownlee

Intramural Referees:

Mike Bitz
Marc de la Salle
Balvinder Virdee
David Gourley

These four referees have done an outstanding job for the intramural program this year. They are extremely professional and work hard to uphold the standards of the games.

'Officiating is probably the most thankless job...'

Each of these referees have reached the objective of officiating and even taken it to a higher level. A special thanks goes out to Mike Bitz. His experience as last year's Athletics VP has been a valuable asset. He knows what intramurals are all about so he's a strong, confident referee. Balvinder Virdee is seen as a likeable guy who gets his point across and in this way, he has earned a lot of respect from his peers. David Gaurley has also been remarkable. He's versatile and has the ability to walk onto any field or court and do a great job.

Mar de la Salle has 5 years of hockey refereeing under his belt and has been keeping things under control for NAIT Intramurals. He's done all the men's hockey games and as Athletics VP Doug Popowich says, "I haven't had to worry about a thing in the arena."

"The biggest thing we need from Intramural Officials is reliability," explains Popowich. "These referees are excellent."

Officiating is probably the most thankless job at NAIT. They get the brunt of everyone's complaints and it's gone as far as even being threatened. A good official is confident, but not arrogant, 100% objective, enthusiastic, and more importantly, knows how to keep their cool. These full-time NAIT students maintain these standards and more. Thanks guys!

In addition to the appreciation NAIT has given to these students, the community also wishes to contribute. Each person will receive:

- A West Edmonton Mall Choice Pass
- HMV gift certificates for a free CD of their choice

• Maxwell Taylor's gift certificates

• 100 minute tanning package at Fabutan

If you know of someone who you think should be nominated for Intramural Participant of the Month, fill out the form and drop it in any Nugget or NAITSA submission box.

THE BAHAI FAITH FROM A-Z

Consultation

Consultation is the means by which decisions are made by individual Baha'is and the community. Better answers to life's problems can be found when several individuals share their views and arrive at a perspective greater than any one individual can.

NAIT's Badminton Team reading for Tourney

by Brandi Brownlee

The NAIT Badminton Team is getting ready for a tournament this weekend. It will be the first ACAC playoff in the North Division.

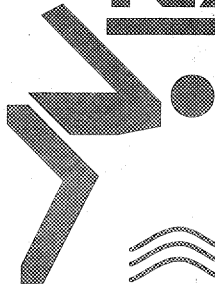

The team is looking very good this season. Three returning players — Shannon Troke, Janet Consul, and Kien Kong — are back to make up the heart of the talented squad.

NAIT is fortunate to have our very own National Badminton Champion (1993), Karen Marner, as the Oaks Coach.

Marner is working the team very hard. "We have a good chance of coming out on top." Good luck this weekend!

GRAPEVINES

To the Girls of Design, Maybe if you weren't so far away in the Engineering annex you could see that all the WOMEN in business are beautiful. It's too bad you had to choose a technology where you thought you could find a man. Don't even think about taking the long walk to the Tower to look at our very satisfying and beautiful business men.

From the women of Business

Scott, Well I'm flattered at the last grapevine. If the female groupies do decide to drop you from their list, you'll always be at the top of mine. From, Waiting Dateless

To Dale in Accounting, It's my turn to buy the coffee. You decide where and when. Respond through the grapevine.
Chip

To the CST Studs, We just wanted to know, aren't you guys tired of playing with your floppy. Come on the Business Ski Trip with us and we'll make sure you guys come home with hard ones.
Signed, hope your willin' to inter-face — The Business Bunnies

To my little pink belly dancer friend, We gotta do lunch, babe — McDonald's drive thru for fries maybe?

From, your sweet and innocent (tee hee) partner in crime

To Mr. Baby Blues, Just a little Hi to make your eyes sparkle for me...
From your #1 flirt

To the pre-occupied Betty jogging down the hall Tuesday at 6:10 Thanx for stopping. Hope you introduce your-self next week. Signed, Waiting to run into.
P.S. Leave the Hysterical groupies behind, 15's a crowd. But 3's interesting.

A cloud of blue smoke appears on the drag strip's surface as the Purple Chevelle rockets down the pavement...

What's the matter Monkey boy? Cat got your tongue? He does!!! Well what the hell are you doing sticking your tongue out so close to the cat? Get it right Blue bell, pet the pussy, stick your tongue out at the beaver. The dude with the really cool purple '70 Chevelle with the platinum hood ornament.

To my Jilly-bean in the tower, I love the sparkle in your eyes, and the readiness between your thighs. I love the way you smell in class, and I like to stare at your a*s! I know this sounds a little queer, but how would you like to go for a beer? Your friend, Snow White
P.S. I'll be the jam in your jelly roll

BombChelle, Like you didn't love my spectacular performance of "Ariel!" You must be pretty envious of your bed... it's getting more action than you are. Hmmm... okay! I heard that the gathering of 8 was a big hit on Friday night. Too bad we weren't there to get the inside scoop. Maybe next week. Migraine on Monday? Hmmm... okay.
Love, Lateena and Ed

To Meggie, Keep an open mind... My name is Deloris and I'm a lesbian single mom. Would you raise my kids with me? We could breast feed left-breasted in the park together. What a beautiful picture, eh!!
P.S. You don't have to change your last name if you don't want to.
Tee-hee, Love IDTEASE

VOLUNTEER

To the IDT Streaker, Wowie! What an eyeful we got on Oct. 20 in the engineering annex! You were coming out of the bathroom with your skirt up, and we were in seventh heaven! Can we count on that every Friday, and if so, two requests: higher babie, higher! And no underwear!
IDTEASE strikes again

To Mike the guy with the short (really short) hair in the Nest, ALLWET4U can't give you what I can give you. I can teach you a new way to scream. Mike, your fire I will light in my bed during the night. The thought of you, oh what a sight. Come to me and take a bite!
From, your brown-eyed girl

Have you seen the beefy pork chops in the retail meat cutting store? Check out the ladies in architecture! At least at the retail meat cutting store, you're getting your money's worth!
Signed, the ravishing dental assistants
P.S. The war is on!!

There is a Pretard I know. Some say he looks like Bernardo. I don't agree with that. A gimp's where he's at. And cut that hair it looks like a fro.

To Tammy (who wears the blue hospital outfit): I would really like to meet you. You've probably seen me looking at you. I'm always with a bunch of guys at our 10 o'clock break. Write back through the Grapevine. If you don't I will give up and not bother you again.

P.S. I'm the guy with the hat backwards. - JS

Your Buds from BusinessHinton, Where did you go? I miss you. I miss your smile. Just thought I'd say hi. Hope your on top. Hope to see you soon. SaskHinton

10¢ DRAFT NIGHTS

Meet
THE CALIFORNIA DREAM TEAM

• Heated Beer Tent
• "The Dean Mitchell Band"

GRAPEVINES

To Breathtaking,
Do you believe in love at first sight?
I didn't til now. You came into room
L224 between 8-10 am on Monday, Oct. 16 to get something from your desk. You stole my heart the moment our eyes met. I was wearing a black hat and a blue and white striped shirt.
Signed, your's forever

Business 99's forever!!

To all the winner cowboys with "stick-fit" Wranglers. Cut it with the wanna-be Texan attitude and four-ton belt buckles, you guy's should be hot-tied and backed-over by a steam roller. Yee hah!
Signed Lips Manlis and the 4-skins

To all the girls who walk down the Instrumentation halls,
The girls of Instrumentation would like to say that all the guys in the technology are not pigs! We have to put up with them so we ought to know. The few who made rude remarks in the last Nugget are the exception. Ignore them like we do!!
The Instrumentation Girls — The few, the proud, the tolerant

To All Wet 4 U
You are garbage. You must be pretty soaked from being wet all week.
Maybe you should use that wetness and put your fire out, cause I make Mike all wet 4 me.
P.S. Back off he's taken
From, Mike's brown-eyed girl

Hey,
We've had just about enough cryin'
and bitchin' from the "Hippo",
"Judge Ito", "Bjork" and the "Rail-tech twins", in pre-tech. So just cut the hairy butt-kissin' and keep quiet.
Signed, Private Parts and Sgt.
Woody

To Phil in CST,
So Mr. Ricco Suave. Are you hitched? Would you like to be? I think you have a lot to offer my body? (hint hint) Korkie knows who I am, hopefully you do too or else
I'm wasting my time.
From the founder of the rub & touch association (RTA)

To Paul in Telecom,
I heard you lost something way back when. I think I've got what you're looking for. I've tried rubbing it, but it doesn't work for me. I think you're the only one who knows how to operate it. Here's a hint: baby likes to ROCK it!
From the President of the Rub &
Touch Association (RTA)

To Burp Burlap, Shut up. You are coming to Kelowna, even if we have to drag you behind the horse trailer. And we are getting piranhas, and a monkey, and a dog, but no cats.
You're in charge of feeding and bathing and walking. Glad you're coming!
From the Founder and President of the Rub and Touch Association

Dear Toll Booth Budhans, Back to bash!! If you don't know how to party let alone get laid, we challenge you boneheads (pardon the pun) to a party duel. Name the NAIT Cabaret and we'll be there and show you the meaning of the word. We won't say who we are but you'll know! If you can party harder we owe you one.
The two babes of OA, Rudi and Bubbles

To Black Leather Man,
Don't be shy, get that girl with red flowing hair 10 dozen roses. From your big brother.
Replay Guy

To all the NAIT Women,
You are all so fine, each woman deserves one red rose.
Love, Replay Guy

To Kylie-Jo from Business, I'll marry you if you break up with your boyfriend.

To the toll booth budhans, Boo-hoo-hoo. If you dweebs didn't have any fun on the pub crawl it was because the women had good taste and left you alone. If you would do some thinking with your other head you might get somewhere in life.
Grow up.
Bodymen

To Heidi in Court Reporting, Thanks for being on the pub crawl, it was a blast. If you or any of the other fine women from Westwood would like to do some bar hopping in the future, the Bodymen from Patricia will show you a good time.
Write us.
Bodymen

Attention to the 3 pretech douche bags, Get your f#*?ing heads out of the clouds! This isn't junior high anymore you S*ts! Who cares what you wear or how much make-up is pasted on your face! Grow up, get that stick out of your a, and maybe you'll learn something useful.

To all the women in meatcutting, that means all you meatcutters,
You think you're so tuff; why don't you come by the Business wing and ask for your mothers back (after we get them back from ELT).
Signed, Tyberius

To the sheep roller of Warburg with your droopy tit knapsack, Why don't you get some support before someone steps on it. If you can't find anything, we can lend one of ours.
Signed, Dental
P.S. We'd like to peel kiwi for you anytime, scurvy boy!!

To Pickleboy,
Don't forget to tie a red ribbon around your pickle.
P.S. The Nest has a special - BIG NATCHOS

To Big Red in Chemical Engineering,
I bet ya 20 bucks you can't go one week without sleeping in class.
Maybe you should cut-out a few of the late night parties with D.W.
P.S. No Coke either.
Signed, Leads

To Ronnie G.,
The intimate and interactive dancing at Club Malibu on Friday night was a little hard to show you what I'm capable of. If you get bored with the other 3, locate the whip and dial 1-800-Dominatrix. Reply through the Grapevines.
From, Wild Orchid (brought to you by Tracy)

To Landscaping,
What is the prerequisite for your course? Shoveling horse manure?
Have you learned how to use the flat end of the shovel or is that in fourth year? Keep up the good work. We will be back later to check on your work.
P.S. Make a career move, transfer to Business.
From, Foremen of Civel 2A

To the toll booth aspirates, Why don't you losers just admit that you're outclassed by the MEN of CST. So just keep your useless
Telecom asses out of our building.
Otherwise you'll feel our wrath.
The campus Ninja's

Yes, we are the RT group, but who are you? If you are the MOST rockin' prove it. We're ALL ready for you.

To Rob in Marketing, Saw you at Cowboys last weekend lookin' mighty fine. I know once I meet you, you'll wanna be mine. If you're interested respond through the Grapevine.
Love Cuddles

To the cowboy in the cafeteria with the white bum t-shirt on. We saw you with your friends on Monday,

Bad Boys with no Toys

To Jared,
The Easyrider in ELT, I remember you as wet as my snuff in my lip.
My trough beckons for you.
Signed, Supertrough

To the ladies of Animal Health,
We heard you know how to take care of animals. Our monkey needs some love, can you touch it, pet it, kiss it, love it, give it a hopshminky. In return we will clean your pipes, resulting in increased flow rates and heat transfer.
Signed, the men of 2nd year mechanical engineering

To the Babes of Architecture, Gals, let's get together and make a movie at my place, what do you say?
Scooby Doobie

For Sale:
1994 BMW. Divine ride.
Hugh Grant — Career Boost, Cali-

From, Getsome!

"H" girl,
U R very vague, but I think U R referring to me. I went to McD's on Saturday, but didn't see U. Maybe U and eye should do lunch? I haven't bit anyone for more than three days (excluding the mailman) do don't B a stranger.
Signed, the droll boy

To the cowboy with the beige baseball cap,
I see you in the cafeteria a lot — do you think I could drink you a buy?
