It's a smoke-filled topic

Since it's founding May of 1995 by father and son duo Kevin and Troy Stewart, the True North Hemp Company has earned a place among the most reputable businesses on Whyte Avenue.

True North was only the third store of its kind in Canada and has grown to be a symbol of re-legalization issue here in Canada.

"I think of it as a kind of beacon for cannabis users," says General Manager and former NAIT student, Amanda Stewart. "It's a place where people have an open forum to discuss the issues surrounding cannabis."

Stewart has worked at True North for around a year and a half. She took Business here at NAIT and was also an advocate of student rights.

They specialize, of course, in a virtual kaleidoscope of cannabis derivatives, including everything from hemp clothing to the proverbial bong. Anything and everything to do with cannabis can be found at True North including "Bones and Stones", the all Canadian Dealers Game complete with board and playing pieces.

Amanda Stewart former NAITSA Executive

If you would like to arrange a class field trip to True North, they are located at 10760 C, Whyte Avenue and are open from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. weekdays, 12p.m. to 5p.m. Saturdays. If your instructor is a little reluctant to take the class, you can still visit them via the Internet at www.tnhemp.ab.ca and e-mail at astewart@accessweb.ab.ca. Happy smoking.

If you have a HOT topic that you want covered or a concern you feel needs to be addressed, please contact James Olson or Lori Skarsen, News Editors, at 471-7617 or 471-7615. We would like to print your story. Or you can drop off articles to the submission box at the Nugget Office, outside Room E-128.

Thank you for your letters.

CRIME OF THE MONTH

BY ANGELA DICKSON

SEPTEMBER

On September 8th, 1997, at 4:24p.m. it was discovered that Room L126 of the Engineering Annex was insecure. Further investigation showed that missing from the room was a Hewlett Packard Desk Jet 520 Printer.

Due to the fact that this equipment is very difficult to conceal, it is believed that someone may have witnessed the perpetrator with the stolen printer.

Anyone with information regarding this offense or any other offense, can call Campus Crime Stoppers at 429-8336 or 1-800-661-8336. Your information will be taken in strict confidence and your anonymity guaranteed. You never give your name and you receive a Tip Number so you can remain anonymous. If your tip leads to the apprehension of the person(s) responsible, you will qualify for a reward.

Information Overload at General Council: Read This!

By Fresh

At General Council this past Tuesday, October 7, meeting attendants were visited by our new NAIT President, Dr. Sam Shaw. His first official day as NAIT's president was October 1. Dr. Shaw informed tech reps that he looks forward to meeting everyone at NAIT and answering any questions. (Watch next weeks paper for an interview with Dr. Shaw).

There is a Big Brothers/Big Sisters program entitled, "You're Going To Help Me Get There!", which was organized by four NAIT business students last year. There are pamphlets available at NAITSA for anyone who is interested in joining.

On this date, Shinerama results were not available. NAITSA disclosed that they raised approximately $9600 this year for Cystic Fibrosis. NAITSA did not hand in their fundraising results yet; they were to be tabulated as of October 1. The results and winner (slave for a day) will be revealed within the next few days.

Angela Dickson, Financial Academic VP, presented four candidates who wish to serve on Academic Council. These applicants were voted on after relaying why they wish to be a part of the council. All four were voted in, but two other applicants will be voted on at the next General Council meeting.

The hot microwave issue has been discussed with Food Service and Nutrition. A letter is to be written to Tara Tanguay, President, to install another microwave in the North lobby.

During round table, questions were posed in regards to the Head of S.U.D.S security being fired. The former head of security was asked to resign because he consumed alcohol while on the Shinerama Pub Crawl, which went against his contract with NAITSA. Susan Dickson, Activities VP, was reprimanded by the NAITSA executive for having knowledge of this incident. Susan stated that she knew by doing this she was wrong and assured the student body that she will not allow mishaps like this to occur again. NAITSA is in the process of finding a new head of security within S.U.D.S.

Every Wednesday there is live entertainment in the Nest at 5:00 p.m. There are drink specials and 25 cent wings.

On October 28, there is an Annual General Meeting, which is going to be held in the Shaw Theater at 4:30 p.m. All tech reps are to bring two other members from their technology because in order to make a motion, a minimum of 100 people are required. Following the next meeting, the Nest is hosting an official Meet and Greet with local bar managers.

Ode To The Butterdome

by Miranda

Butter is a yummy spread
I eat it all the time on bread

Butter makes me lick my lips
my hands, my palms, my fingertips

Butter's hard and comes in squares
I like it so much—I hate to share!

I know that others like it too—those margarine-eaters don't have a clue

One fine day a wise man said,
"Let's build a great big butter!"
and on that day a plan was launched not like any other

"What will we call it?" asked a man,
"How can we match this huge demand?"
"It looks like butter", said some guy—and innocent, crazy passerby.

So the name stemmed from butter alone
except they attached the suffix DOME

And so it came with butterbrains, a building big and tall with yellow tiles and important guys to make me feel so small.

Now I like butter lots, you know
but on a night this died
On a night, I approached this dome for RUSTY and was denied.

So now I hate to look at butter because of assholes that are real big-gunners
I left the precious butterdome
the nerve of them to send me home

All in all, I don't care
if it's their style to be unfair
Not only I will pay a price so please take note and realize this icon that they hold so great is sure as hell not as great as NAIT.

NAIT, Low on Mopar Respect

By Cort Zawalek

After reading the article in last week's paper about NAIT's parking being a lottery, I was rather confused. After driving here and parking in the parkade for several weeks, I discovered that the power door locks weren't working. In fact, my car had been left in an "unguarded" parkade with unlocked doors for weeks, and still managed to not get ripped off. After much pondering, I finally realized why. I'm sure you've seen people go out and spend hundreds of dollars on security systems to prevent their car from getting stolen. And I'm sure you've seen countless numbers of clubs and steering wheel locks in cars around campus. But, I have the best theft proofing system ever...I drive a Dodge to school.

It's a compromise for the total lack of respect from other motorists. Before I even get to worry about parking the Dodge, I'm stressed out by the countless people who seem to ignore my presence in the mornings. Like, whenever I'm running late, both lanes in front of me are blocked off by two cars...side by side...doing what must be half the speed limit!! I just refer to these boneheads as "parallel slow driver boys". Damn you slow driver boys...Damn you all!

And if my seemingly invisible Dodge isn't delayed by the parallel slow driver boys, I'm waiting for "illiterate pedestrian boy" who thinks the only purpose of the red don't walk sign is to give him something to read as he walks.

Maybe it's just me, but I'm thinking these people should stay home and watch cartoons until I'm already at school, sleeping soundly in my desk.

Letters to the Editor

Desperately Seeking Donors
by M. Gittersos

Life is funny. You take it for granted time and time again without a thought. One day without warning it changes and you start to see it through different eyes. I know my sister does. She's been diagnosed with Chronic Myelogenous Leukemia, a type that hits people in their 60's and 70's. My sister is only 30 years old. It is difficult to see someone so full of life, with so many ideas and plans for the future so terrified and defeated. As her sister, I struggle daily with how I can help and how I can fix it. Ultimately, I know I can't. Neither can my two other siblings. Last week, we were told our bone marrow does not match hers, something our whole family was counting on. So now our strategy has changed, like so many other families. Our only hope now is to find her a match through the International Bone Marrow Bank or through family and friends who are coming forward to help. The greater number of people, the greater are the chances of finding of match. There has to be a match, right? And yet, there are thousands of people still waiting for find their match. I find myself walking the halls at school wanting to ask every single person that walks by, if they would be willing to donate. I asked one of my closest friends if he would, and after telling me how scared he is of even donating blood, agreed to do it only for her. The clincher is, once you're in the Bank, anybody on that waiting list can approach you. I know my sister waits every day for a match, and every single minute of the day means so much to her. I can't fathom the thought of someone matching, someone who donated for their family, denying her the right to live because they are afraid of a little pain. Knowing what I know now and seeing life through different eyes. I would donate a million times if I could just give someone other than my sister a chance for life. You see it in the news everyday, of someone making a heroic attempt, risking their life to help someone in danger. But people fail to see the little ways of saving someone's life. By taking a little bit of time, and without risking your own precious life, you can help someone waiting to be given a second chance. Thanks to those who took the time to read this; it may make a difference for my sister or somebody else. For any people willing to help they can call the Red Cross for more information.

Microwave Sharing
by Al. E. Wraught

I stood and watched this chained destruction. Waiting for my chance to wield its forces against my chosen prey. Almost laughing aloud as I contemplated the thermo-nuclear annihilation that lay before me, I watched as others who sought similar power stood behind me. "Back of the line!" I almost shouted gleefully, anticipating the power that lay before me.

But she stopped me in my tracks. Who was this girl who dared challenge my absolute reign of thermal destruction! Why is she smiling with that undefinable female smile. Does she know something that I do not? What could it be? I just looked at her for a few moments and then looked away.

She began to speak as soon as my turn came about. Something about sharing. "What is it?" I asked. She spoke with the authority of one long used to speaking to children. That semi-commanding voice that I could not seem to ignore. This idea, sharing, it gnawed on the edges of my soul. I hesitated. Swiftly, she took advantage of my split second of distraction and slammed her prey into the cage beside mine. She then launched the destruction sequence.

It was too late when I finally came to my senses. Bedazzled by her smile and confused by her ideas, I came away with only two thoughts. Strange, one was that sharing seemed to be okay. The other, much more cryptic, is that I shall never mock anyone for honest opinions.

Al. E. Wraught

PISS OFF!!!

In reference to last weeks column by Cort Zawalek entitled "Looking For Some Potty Police", frankly I am appalled. Who the hell do you think you are Mr. Zawalek? Has your ego gotten so huge that it now fills the space where your brain should be? You give new odor and texture to the word vomit.

First off, call yourself a homophobic and then twisting things around to make everyone else look like the bad guy is absurd! If you are really that scared of one of the innocent guys beside you, just there to urinate, raping you, then why don't you go to the women's washroom? (I'm sure, there, you'd feel much more at home anyways-oops, I didn't mean to offend the ladies)

Secondly, your "no happiness" rule, go to hell you bastard! There, was that better? If I want to say "HI" I will, it's my prerogative. It's not my fault you are so insecure about your own sexuality that you can't even let other people be happy to. I'm proud to be the way I am and when people like you give people like me a bad-rap (deja vu, anyone?) all it does is give you a bad name.

In closing, I would just like to say that nobody wants to look at your penis, Cort, they are in there for the same reason you are. If you are worried that someone is going to come up behind you and start licking your pole (dream on), it is because you have the problem of being a homophobic not because I'm waiting to piss, get help man, we don't need people like you making it even harder for us.

Questions & Answers

Why doesn't the Nugget have cartoons? I read lines of text all day, I need pictures, man! U of A sucks in many, many ways, but at least the Gateway has cartoons. Don't make me seek out pointless, juvenile humor at the evil, bad UofA! Draw some funnies for me, okay? (The Adventures of Stairs Man or Stair Wars, that would be funny, wouldn't it UGLY STEVE!)*note: I don't even know who Steve is, but he seems fun to pick on!

RESPONSE

The Nugget is currently looking for cartoon submissions! Please drop them off at the Nugget Office's submissions box-Room E-128.

Any positions available on the Nugget, or do you just take submission? Here's a stupid question, do you pay any money for submission? Prizes?

RESPONSE

Sorry, There are no permanent paid positions available at the Nugget at this time. However, we encourage submissions from every student and can offer some PRIZES! Please come by The Nugget Office (Room E-128) before 4:00 pm, the first school day of the week, if you are interested.

And now, here's Hyde with... "A Mindless Commentary on Universities in General"

All hail those who are in pursuit of a higher education. I believe in education, I believe in freedom of speech and I also believe in rock and roll. Universities believe in education, they believe in freedom of speech (unless my bid to turn all universities into military dictatorships goes through), but they don't believe in rock and roll. This is clear almost the moment you step onto University grounds.

The term University comes from the Latin word Universitas, meaning any type of community usually associated with scholars or learning. Well, things change. In modern times, University is used to describe a broader, more comprehensive view of learning institutions. Groups like fraternities, feminist activists and the ever-present right-wing conservatives that are a part of all universities.

The university is an organization unlike any other in human history. While the factions that make up any university are at any given point in time, involved in an all out assault against each other, simultaneously they are also at war with the very society in which they exist. It's remarkable and I think it should be recognized. We should give them a plaque or something.

Universities have the reputation of being these prestigious, omnipotent type places completely foreign to normal people. They prove it by kicking well-meaning, orthodox people out of their special events and bestowing honorary degrees on deserving people. I heard a rumor that some university on the west coast is thinking of giving an honorary degree for "Serious Rockin' Out" to the Backstreet Boys. This proves that they're a lot smarter than we think.

by Hyde Cooper

In the grand scheme of things, I suppose boredom really isn't all that important. However, in my own embarrassingly limited perception of the universe, boredom is definitely a problem. I think a lot of you can sympathize with me when I speak of boredom and its curious correlation with classtime.

We all have that one class that no one ever goes to unless you're punishing yourself for murdering a family member. That class where after around fifteen minutes, the only thing your concentrating on is not swallowing your own tongue. I refuse to apply myself to these types of classes on basic principle.

Though they would never admit it, the powers-that-be know that no one ever pays attention in these classes and they use it to their advantage. They don't hire an actual credible teacher for Boredom 101, they find most of these instructors in graveyards and sometimes even hire retired mall security guards. That way, they get away with paying these instructors about a third of what normal instructors get. Everyone's a winner!

I do have some sympathy for these instructors though. Can you imagine what it must be like to be hated by every student in your class, not for who you are, but for what you teach? To know that you're going to Hell just for doing your job? Actually, I can just barely imagine what it must be like...boring.

"Butter Them Up" I Don't Think So!!

Top Ten Reasons Why NAIT is Better Than the U of A

by Lori Skarsen

(This is the condensed version. Books are being sold at a bookstore near you for the top 1597 reasons)

1. NAIT caters to the needs of the industry and turns out employees that are trained in a specific field. A NAIT diploma will get every graduate a job, whereas, unless you specialize after a BA or BS; it's pretty much asswipe. Nice piece of paper, but it doesn't show that you have any skill.

2. There are many programs at NAIT offered in various fields that can be obtained without university training. (Examples: Radio and Television, Engineering, Animal Health Technology, Photographic Technology, and Dental Lab). There is a program suitable for every student or potential student. I know many people who attend the U of A simply because they associate prestige with it instead of pursuing a career or an education that fits them.

3. Our student's association, NAITSA, is friendly to any Tom, Dick, Harry, Miranda, James, Lori, or Ted that walks through the door. If NAIT organizes any function, anyone who attends is treated with respect.

4. NAITSA's employees such as the Nugget staff, the Nest Manager, and the Advertising Manager are always respectful to guests, students, and staff.

5. NAIT's tuition costs are almost half of the University's. Also, because most programs are two years in action-packed length, less money is spent on this valuable training altogether.

6. NAIT recruits U of A students that come to their senses. Example: Out of a class of 20, there is likely to be 5 people (some graduated/some drop-outs) enrolled at NAIT because they could not get a job with their degree.

7. NAIT does not have dormitories for babies that do not want to grow up. Lister Hall is an excuse for people to sleep around and accumulate fake friends by living out a drama with 12 people on one floor. I know one guy who is now living in Lister Hall his fifth year. He's on his second degree. Way to go!!!!

8. NAIT features smaller classes which enables more attention given to students. NAIT training is also more hands-on.

If you're in "Foods and Nutrition Management" at NAIT, you put on the cool kitchen clothes and get in the goddamn kitchen. You don't read a friggin book.

RETRACTION

I, Miranda Jordan, Editor-in-Chief, of the official student newspaper of NAIT, The Nugget, am sorry for telling the absolute, total, whole, complete truth in last week's article, "Why Never To Cross The River: Denied The Rusty I Love." It was a big mistake for me to be honest and to deliver every fact as accurately as I did. I don't know why I was so truthful. I'm really sorry about that. My deepest apologies.

One Step Closer to the Play-offs

By: Susie Melnyk

The NAIT Womens' Soccer team was off to Calgary to play SAIT and Mount Royal College this weekend. NAIT played SAIT on Saturday. It was difficult, tight game; however, NAIT scored two early goals by Cindy Pajo and Geneva Guerin to win 2-0. On Sunday, NAIT was at MRC. It was a hard, physical game. NAIT played extremely well against a very powerful MRC. However, MRC score 3 quick goals in the first 30 min. and NAIT scored 1 by Geneva Guerin to end the half 3-1. NAIT dominated the second half but could not capitalize. MRC won 4-1. NAIT will most likely meet MRC in the semi-finals. It was a weekend of good soccer and team fun.

The NAIT Womens' team would like to wish Leah Stasiuk and Kim Rempel good luck at the National Championships this coming long-weekend. Leah plays with the Lethbridge Chargers in the Alberta Major League and is off to Calgary. Kim is with the U-19 St. Albert Panthers and is going to Montreal. Good luck and happy soccer!

OOKS RETURN FROM CLAU. ACTION

By DaWorm®

Another tournament and another three games under the belt. With the same results at thier own NAIT Blue Gold Tournament a week ago. Friday night, down at the U of A Clare Drake Arena, the Ooks stepped up to the plate against the U of Calgary Dinos and ended up on the wrong side of a 6-2 game. NAIT's Game All-Star was Dale Donaldson with both of the Ooks goals. Saturday against the U.B.C. Thunderbirds the Ooks played a strong game and with goaltender David Pirnak Standing on his head to earn the Game All-Star the NAIT squad was still on the losing end of the 4-2 lose.

The final game of the weekend was once again the only victory the Ooks could walk away with. Downing the U of Lethbridge in a 5-4 game the score does not really tell the whole story. In the first period alone the Ooks outshot the Pronghorns 20 - 5. Game All-Star Jason Woitas pitched in on the NAIT rush against Lethbridge with 2 assists.

Two tournaments and Coach Ballard is very close to deciding who should be in the line up and he sees close to 20 players in the dressing room that are going to see action every night. The rest are going to have the choice of sticking with the team or releasing themselves if they do not want to contribute in a specific role.

This Thanksgiving weekend the team is playing in the R.D.C. Classic in which thier first game is being played here on Friday Night against Concordia.

CROSS COUNTRY RUNNING

MEN PLACE SECOND IN GRANDE PRAIRIE

Coach John Reeves

The NAIT Cross-Country team did well on the weekend with the men taking second place in the overall men's category behind the host Grande Prairie club. The NAIT women also ran individual bests, but did not have enough runners to qualify for the team event, which was also won by Grande Prairie.

We had some great individual running efforts on the weekend from Karen Sjulhan who finished second in the women's 4km event and Andy Providence who finished 3rd in the men's 8km event. These are both individual best placings for an ACAC event for these runners.

The top women's runner was Jackie Gowan of Red Deer who finished only one second ahead of NAIT's Karen Shulhan. The top men's runner was Andre Frenette of Grande Prairie. NAIT's other runners were Karen Hennig finishing 7th in the women's race, while in the men's race Neale Hargreaves was 5th (after a slight miscue on one of the corners), Phill Vermette was 14th, Leon Matth 18th and Gagriel Corrin finished 22nd. The coaches also got to run at this meet, John Reeves finished in 16th spot and was second in the masters category; while Frank McNamara finished 29th and picked up the third place in the masters.

This race was an opportunity for the team to look at the ACAC Championship course before the event, which will be held in two weeks on Oct. 18 in Grande Prairie. Things are looking up as we get faster and faster each week. Maybe there is a medal possibility for us at the ACAC Championships. Next weekend we travel to Lac La Biche for the last of the exhibition races.

RACQUETBALL CLINIC

Don't say "I'm not good enough to attend a clinic". Whether you want to learn the basics of the forehand or backhand, or you need STRATEGY improvement, this clinic is for you. The Edmonton Racquetball Association is currently looking for Students, Staff & their children who would be interested in attending a Racquetball clinic. Get those skills now as you enter the sport or improve your existing skills. The clinic will be held at NAIT probably sometime in October, and will be run by one of the premier coach/player in Alberta. Call Jon at 471-8587 to get more information.

BOXING

Some people say that boxing is a barbaric sport that should be outlawed. I kinda get a kick out of it. Standing in there toe to toe, face to face, knuckle to face, ribs to fist it is all exciting even though it does date back to the Neanderthal Man. My one and only complaint which I will only briefly touch upon is that some of these guys are getting paid alot of money to be fat and stand in the ring with no shirt on.

Tough Road Trip For Oaks

Results: Sat. Oct. 4
SAIT 1 NAIT 0
Sun. Oct. 5
MRC 4 NAIT 0

NAIT vs SAIT

NAIT's lack of scoring prowess continues to be a dark spot on an otherwise encouraging weekend foray into the oppositions turf.

The Oaks, for the most part, cannot be faulted for their commitment and determination. Scoring continues to put a damper in their efforts. Against SAIT they controlled much of the play. Keeper, Lars Hirschfeld, having to be called on, infrequently, to make a save.

In keeping with the Oaks luck SAIT scored in the second half of play from a dipping shot from the center line that had 'spunk' written all merit. The Oaks controlled the game from that point on and were 'stymies' close to the end of the game when the SAIT Goalkeeper stopped a penalty shot, bringing off the outstanding save of the game and, more than likely, the season.

NAIT vs MRC

NAIT knew they were in tough against a powerful Mount Royal College Team. Mount Royal goals for total is steadily reaching dizzying heights. Their was a Big boxing card in the city which featured Edmontons own Scotty "The Bulldog" Olson. There are a number of fighters in the sport that I fear and would not ever even think about stepping in the ring with: Roy Jones Jr. Evander Holyfield, George Foreman, a young Muhammad Ali and even though Scotty is only 5 ft. and weights about 105 pounds anyone who can break the same hand repeatedly over another persons head more that once. I would have second thoughts.

So onto the fights, Scotty beat up some poor Australian kid who put on a decent show but there was never any doubt The Bulldog was going the hang onto his belt. The undercard was your usual up and comers, the occasional bum, but a nice warm-up for the feature.

- Except - Riddick Bowe at one time was a world class heavy weight, now he is just as heavy as the world. I will admit that he still steps into the ring and takes as much punishment as any boxer, but I think the whole idea is to not be hit and if you are, say 50 pounds over weight, I do not feel that no matter how many times you are willing to get hit in the face you should be getting paid as an athlete. NUFF SAID.

first half's great work was gone for nought.

However, the team battled on through the second half of play before succumbing to a very strong Mount Royal team.

When all is said and done, no wins on this weekend's trip. But a determined effort against two tough opponents, a game that could have been won and a game that proved to be a learning experience for a relatively young Oaks team who might yet have their best still to come.

Hally's ready, Luc's flyin', Kelsey's set.

Last years team finished off in fine fashion (1) Making the play-offs (2) Finishing 5th in the province of Alberta (3) Being ranked 14th in the country. This years team looks to be better. With seven returning vets and a good recruiting year, this team looks to improve on last years standing. Let me introduce you to them!

#1 Jason Panas, a second year player in Instrumentation from Barrhead, who has been looking very good in the power position, his most notable point last year was his middle play against GMCC. He brings a great attitude and sarcastic wit that relaxes the team.

#2 Adam Ungarian, a first year player in Pre-tech from St. Albert who will stand as the third middle. He is eager to learn and already has good technical skills.

#3 Luc Billo, a third year player in Finance from St. Paul. He dominated from the rightside in Kills and Stuff blocks. A real asset to this team, both with is play and peculiar sense of humour. Look for him to dominate again.

#4 Kelsey Kalinski, Third year setter in Chemical Engineering from Bonnyville. His knowledge of the game, and quiet sense of leadership will help us along in the first half of the season.

#5 Kelly "OX" Soprovich, Graduated from Chemical Engineering, and is in Instrumentation. A third year player from Two Hills who leads by desire and action. A defensive Giant with a strong presence at the net.

#6 David Sawchuk, a first year player in R.T.A., a versatile player who basically just wants to be on the team. A real guy with a lot of potential.

#7 Neal Lapaschuk, a second year player in Geomatics from Two Hills. He has a lot of potential who can lead us to the promised land.

#8 Shannon Hiemstra, first year player in Mechanical Engineering from Barrhead, a quiet guy who will turn out to be quite loud on the court.

#9 Shane Kuhn, a second year player in Architecture from Leduc. This guy is the model of team, and team player. He has done a lot of improving, and is

NAIT MEN'S VOLLEYBALL '97

attitude, hopefully will carry to the rest of the team and help us win.

#10 Frank Dienes, a first year player in Pre-tech, and the only guy from Edmonton. This guy is a hard-worker with a lot of personality. Will be a real asset to the team in the Future.

#11 David Szlanda, a 6'7" middle from Poland, this guy will become a force real quick, great attitude and just recently became a Canadian Citizen.

#12 Mark Holowaychuk, a

4th year player in Accounting from Barrhead. There is not enough I can say about this guy. He leads the league in every department, a dedicated volleyball player, real team leader and a really great guy. This guy deserves a shot at the Nationals.

#13 Robin Landry, first year player in Geomatics from St. Paul. A transplant player from Grant MacEwan with overall great skills and a real work ethic and competitive nature. He also was recently married this summer.

#14 Ryan Marsden, a setter

from Sherwood Park who has been on leave from volleyball for awhile but comes back ready to go. Ryan will be taking over for Kelsey once he learns the ropes, and is our second married man.

#15 Mike Bell, first year player in Civil Engineering from Bonnyville. Mike brings along a lot of Elite team play, and had a lot of skills and attitude to make him a premier player in the ACAC

Kevin Evancio and Ashley Young will be assisting in the coaching and therapy department, both individuals with a wealth of knowledge in their field and will be a great asset to the team.

Finally me, Mark Mahl head coach. All the rumours are true, I can be a dink, though, stubborn, etc, but I work hard for my team and NAIT to build and produce a very respected volleyball program in Alberta. I am in my 5th year, with one of the most successful records in Men's Volleyball history.

Well, that is it. Come out and watch, this year will be very exciting, the team will also be traveling to California. You are all invited to our Home-opener. Friday, November 7, against Grande Prairie.

U-Turnaround

Email: crowat@icrossroads.com

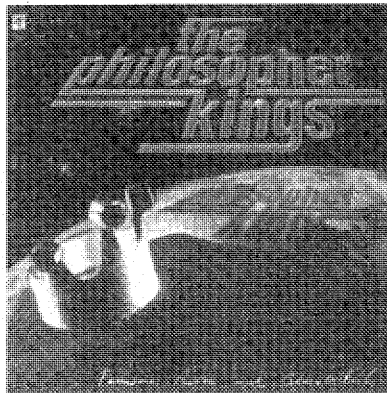

Going to a movie directed by Oliver Stone, is not like going to a regular movie. Stone's approach to directing is a unique blend of bizarre, and originality. For those of you who have seen Natural Born Killers, be prepared for the same style in U-Turn. Overall I found the movie to be quite interesting, shocking, and at times unrealistic. Don't get me wrong though, I still liked the movie but how Stone can make this all happen still baffles me.

The story starts off with Penn's character on his way to California to pay some debts to a mafia. In mid way his radiator hose breaks, forcing him to stop in a little hick town known as Superior. Within moments of arriving, Stone does an excellent job of portraying the town. It's the kinda town you pass through and definitely not the town you stay in. We are then introduced to Lopez's character, an attractive yet manipulative women (basically your typical women out there...I'm only kidding.). Its not soon till Penn's character is making the moves on her, when who should walk in; her husband, played by Nick Nolte. Its not long before all three characters are all intertwined in a plot that includes greed, sex, murder, and more other nasty things.

Including a few cameo appearances by Claire Danes, Liv Tyler, and some other pretty boy who I can't remember, this movie will leave you as though you have seen a work of art. I recommend it to the person seeking to see a not so average movie.

The Philosopher Kings: Beautiful Breakdown

Columbia/Sony records
In stores October 7

Possibly one of the most enigmatic, new-age bands to leech out of the Canadian woodwork has to be The Philosopher Kings. After their 1994 self-titled debut, the Kings have now released their sophomore album: Famous, Rich, and Beautiful. Gerald describes their recent release, "It's overt. It's not subtle. Compared to the first album, I think it's a lot more colorful. The first one was dark, and understated. This is more in-your-face, over-the-top." This album will definitely put the Kings over the top, much to Gerald's acclaim. The Philosopher Kings want to take their career as far as it can go, until they are at U2 status.

Famous, Rich, and Beautiful carries hip, energetic melodies. Versatility is evident; the kings have mastered the art of restructuring style. The Kings have a permanent "Prince" influence, and at times, I think (especially in the song "Oleo") Gerald sounds similar to Puff Daddy. The strongest songs on the album are: Hurts to Love You, Head First, The New Messiah, and You're Allowed. Each song is thick, and the album flows with jazzy harmonies and modern tempo beats. Another positive attribute the Kings have is that they incorporate unique sounds into their tunes with the instruments they utilize. Drums, cymbals, treated guitars, guitar synth, space echoing, piano, toy keyboard, and an upright bass are just a few. So, this 14 track follow-up album by The Philosopher Kings is definitely promoted by me. The Kings are smart, swift, slick, and smooth!! Famous, Rich, and Beautiful bleeds of freshness and emotional honesty. Aside from that, Gerald has cool vintage orange and black shoes.

Kings arrive in style

Famous, Rich, and Beautiful

By: Ted Zanetic

Email: crowat@icrossroads.com

Release date: October 7th

My interview with the Philosopher Kings went quite well. The Editor-in-chief, Miranda and I made our way down to the Crown Plaza to meet up with them. With winning a Juno award, playing EdgeFest, opening for the A-Channel, and playing various other concerts across Canada, Gerald Eaton, vocals for the band, took time in his busy schedule to speak with little ole me. My first impression of Gerald was that of an extremely relaxed person. He is definitely a down to earth kinda guy. Miranda and I sat down introduced ourselves and began the interview.

The new album, Famous, Rich, and Beautiful is scheduled to be released on October 7th. It has been three years since their self titled debut album. Within that time Gerald informed me that the band has been working on new material for the new album as well as fitting in a few games of golf here and there. I asked Gerald to explain the quote "We're coming from different directions, but we had a collective vision of finding something new." He explained to me that all the members in the band have their own unique style. If each member released their own solo album, each album would be completely different from one another. I believe it's a combination of all these styles, which make the Philosopher Kings unique.

The Philosopher kings did a lot of on the spot live recording on the previous album, and on this new album as well. I believe that this live energy that the Philosopher Kings carry with them transcends onto the stage, making them one of Canada's best live shows. Gerald and I got into some of the influences for the band. Prince ranked up there among all the band members, while Gerald himself found Tom Waits and Otis Redding as his personal inspirations.

This new album had a little different of a sound as compared to the first. Gerald reassures me that the new album will have the same intensity as their previous album

O.D. on Puff

by "Island Girl"

Ever since the untimely death of notorious B.I.G., his bad boy right-hand man, Sean "Puffy" Combs (aka. Puff Daddy) has finally stepped out of his creative shadow. It's hard to be the successor to biggies genius, but Puff's doing just fine and he's on top of the world. He's also on top of the charts and on every single soundtrack and video (or so it seems!).

Here's some projects that had/have a little bit of Puff added to the recipe:

- Mariah Carey's "Honey" remix/video
- SWV's "Someone"
- Notorious B.I.G.'s "Mo' Money, Mo' Problems"/"Hypnotize"
- Puff & Faith Evans (BIG's ex.) "Missing You"
- Puff Daddy's solo CD - "No Way Out"
- Puff & Lil' Kim - "Keep doing what you're doing" on the "Soulfood" soundtrack.

Also, Puff Daddy was on the cover of "Rolling Stone" a couple of months back-declaring him "the New Bad Boy of Rap".

I, personally, can't get enough of Puff Daddy! He's come a long way from producing Mary J. Blige, dancing in videos for Heavy D. and the Boyz! I can see why some could get sick of him, but rap needs Puff Daddy! After the associated press declared that rap was dying along with the geniuses that made it infamous & glamorous (BIG, Tupac), Puff is the best hope for mending the misfortunes that have haunted the hip-hop generation.

So, next time you hear Puff's signature "eh, eh-eh, eh" (as heard on 112's BadBoy remix of "Only You"), just remember you were warned! Puff this, Puff that-I guess he meant it when he said "I thought I told you that we won't stop!"

STARS! WHAT KIND OF SUMMER DID THEY HAVE?

by Marc Nobert

-Nicholas Cage has silenced any doubters in his ability to do action movies with "Con Air" and "Face Off". His first action flick was opposite veteran Sean Connery in "The Rock" last year. (Hey Nicholas, ever meet Johnny Boy, "Mortal Combat" was a loooooong time ago)

-After playing the scientist role in "Independence Day", Jeff Goldblum goes back to his roots in "The Lost World: Jurassic Park 2". Is this scientist thing a little re-occurring?

-Will Smith is rolling along in both careers, "Men In Black" is the year's second best grosser while his musical release of the same name also did well.

-On the other hand, after being hot stuff for a few years, Sandra Bullock needs a good rebound movie after "Speed 2: Cruise Control" had a poor showing. The movie is one of those sad sequels that taints the predecessor. Gotta watch out for those, shoulda gotten out when Keanu Reeves did.

-Special recognition: "Batman is Roberry" uh...I mean "Batman & Robin". This movie hurt a bunch of careers. Chris O'Donnell needs a good I-can-play-more-than-just-Robin movie after this one. He needs to make everyone forget that character. Same with George Clooney. But even if his movie career is ruined, he always has ER (of course). On the other hand it'll take three bad movies before anyone's going to doubt Arnold Schwarzenegger. Especially after they doubted when "Terminator 2: Judgment Day" came out, and got that one back in their faces pretty good. And Uma Thurman got unlucky with this one, but she'll be back.

-The one who had the worst summer, though, has got to be Alicia Silverstone. "Batman & Robin" was, of course, a big disappointment. And then she boldly produced and starred in "Excess Baggage". A big risk, and a big flop at a whole $13 million gross (even "Batman & Robin" made $120 million). She'll need a career makeover if she's going to keep her star power. It's the ultimate test for a new cbrity. If she comes back with fresh new character that she plays, well then, she'll last. If she doesn't, she'll be long gone. Oh well, next!!

Love, Darren

To The Zit Remedy & Mr. Con (Snake, Wheels & Joey)
We saw you by the bike racks and thought you were all really hot! We would like you all to respond via the grapevine next week. Perhaps we can get together for a fooseball match sometime!

P.S. Everybody wants somethin'!
Katlyn, Spike, & Lucy

Mr. Hockey
We know that there is more than one all-star so what makes you so special? If you hope to fulfill our dreams, we need more information.
Love, The ladies from Med.Rad.

Hey BUDCHUK
Where have you been? I thought someone kidnapped you and made you eat a pillow...or an anc-bom-hovie! Let's get together for some frothy rich hot chocolate and a parmesan tomato when the drum beat go like this...From your Budchuk
P.S. Move over to your side of the... GLUB!

To the Man "That's ASS?"
We know you got a piece of ASS, but there's a BIG ASS that wants a piece of your ASS. So, you better watch your ASS.
Just a tip, from Fruit and Sponge Flan

Kris,
Why haven't you wrote back? I've been waiting anxiously for your reply. If you don't know who I am yet, which I don't think you do, I have brownish-blond hair and green eyes, I also work with you. I'm always near you!
Hot for Soccer Babe!
