decision at first, but has now joined the tremendous support of her family, friends, and classmates. Helene's mom loves it, and her girlfriends from back home in Alberta Beach are very proud.

With her appearance in the Sun, Helene has since been asked by Northern Surf here in Edmonton to pose in their new swimsuit catalogue. Currently, there is no plan for future appearances in the Sun, but Helene would definitely appear again if the SUN was interested. She mentioned that if a modeling career became an option, she would not turn it down, but it is nothing that she is actively pursuing. In five to ten years, Helene sees herself working in her field, making lots of money, and hopefully getting married. This twenty year-old sunshine girl definitely has goals aside from wearing a bikini day in

Helene has no regrets, and recommends other women who are interested to try it. The experience is not at all uncomfortable, but admits the very first time she was nervous. Overall, Helene believes that it has been a fun experience, with a taste of what models go through. Helene's boyfriend of two years was not sure of her

NAIT upholds the education initiative

As the world changes, so shall NAIT. That's the bottom line as verified by the Institute's mandate to continue offering the highest quality of education available that focuses on the student, a strange and seemingly impractical idea in the eyes of many post-secondary institutions.

In answer to changing demands of potential employer's, NAIT has formed a Technology Integration Plan to help staff in the adjustment to new technologies. Among these new resources are Lotus Notes and Learning Space (a curriculum development and delivery tool); also improved communications will occur via computer networks.

It is hoped that Lotus will serve as a standard within NAIT's internal communication networks, but will also allow other software programs to continue to serve students.

This new distributed style of learning system benefits the traditional students and less tra-

Striving for Academic Success

Study Skills - Part 1

This article is the first in a series of articles on study skills written by Counselors from NAIT Student Counseling Centre.

Many students go through their entire academic careers thinking they don't have the "smarts" that many of their classmates possess. While there are several reasons for students with similar mental abilities having dramatically different marks in school, a major difference lies in their knowledge and use of study skills. A student who develops and practices effective study skills can reap dramatic improvements in their marks.

Study skills and techniques are the "tools of the trade" for students; however, they are only effective if they are practiced consistently. Give the techniques (that will be outlines over the next few weeks) a try and if they work for you-keep them. Otherwise, discard them and experiment with a different "tool."

A good place to start before you focus on learning study skills is to first examine your motivation for being in school and be clear on your career path. Students who are the most successful at NAIT are here because they want to be and are confident that the program they are currently taking, will aid them in their career journey. Also give consideration to whether this is a good time for you to be in school in relation to what is presently going on in your life. Are you academically and attitudinal prepared to meet the challenges, commitments and sacrifices that are required to be a successful NAIT student?

Over the next few weeks we will examine many study skills techniques. Here are some of the basics you may want to put in place immediately.

Where to study

Establish a regular study place and time. Choose a study area that is conducive to study. Optimally this should include:

- Good lighting
- a comfortable chair (not too comfortable!)
- a space away from interruption and external distractions. eg: TV, stereo, phone.
- a desk or table space that is used solely for study
- a study space where you can remain alert (ie. not on your bed)

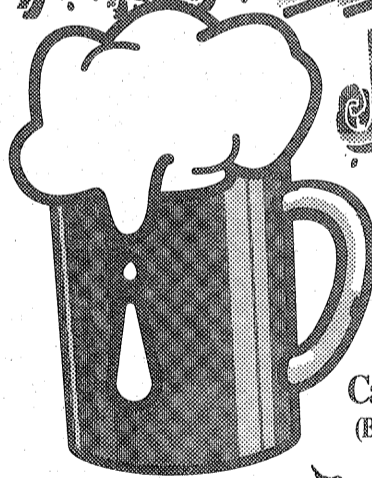

When to study

- study at a time of day when you are best able to concentrate
- study for as long as you can effectively study between study breaks (not more than one hour)
- take 10 to 15 minute study breaks between study sessions which typically range from approximately 30 to 60 minutes
- avoid "marathon" studying - the longer you study without a break, the less effective your study time will be

What to study

- use your course outline as a guide
- ask your instructor what areas will be covered on the exam
- use the table of contents, headlines and summaries in your textbook as guides

Student Stops Thief

Kelly Sloan
Plastics Engineering

As a result of the numerous locker thefts from student lockers in the Cooking Program, staff requested that students be aware of any suspicious persons in the change areas.

On December 16, 1997, at about 9:30 a.m., a first year Culinary Arts student observed a male dressed in a white smock shaking a lock in the men's change room (O002A). When confronted, the culprit stated that he had lost something and ran from the area. After reporting this incident to his instructor, the student identified the culprit as a second year apprentice. Recommendations have been made to expel the offending student.

The Crimestoppers Student Board extends their thanks to this student for taking the initiative in reporting this crime to staff. Had this thief not been interrupted another NAIT student would have become a victim of crime.

It is our responsibility as students to ensure NAIT continues to be safe and secure environment. It is everyone's responsibility to be aware of what is going on around them, and to report suspicious immediately.

If you observe a possible crime on campus, call NAIT Security by dialing 471-7477. If you have information that may lead to the arrest of a perpetrator call Crimestoppers at 429-8336 or 1-800-661-8336. Your identity will be kept confidential and your information may lead to a reward.

Be responsible and careful Sexual Awareness

Miranda & Fresh

Sometimes the education process of careless sexual behavior is difficult, but with Sexual Awareness Week (January 12-16th) in place, valuable information available may help save a life. Myths have often been passed down, and it is important to educate and inform people of these misconceptions.

Some misconceptions about birth control, sexually transmitted diseases and sex in general, arise due to lack of education, and misunderstandings concerning mechanical aspects or side effects.

The greatest number of misconceptions reported concerned the three most effective methods of birth control—sterilization, oral contraception, and the IUD. Condoms offer effective protection against not only pregnancy, but from sexually transmitted diseases (STD's), including HIV/AIDS. Health care educators are faced with sorting accurate information from misinformation. The effectiveness of condoms is questioned by some who believe that abstinence or one faithful partner is the only acceptable form of protection. CONDOM BARRIER EFFECTIVENESS (FLUID TRANSFER PREVENTION) IS AT LEAST 10,000 TIMES BETTER THAN NOT USING A CONDOM AT ALL. There is now a female condom available, which is a polyurethane sheath which lines the vaginal wall. In limited testing, the female condom has been 88% effective in preventing pregnancy and is not permeated by

HIV or Hepatitis B virus.

Sexually transmitted diseases are a group of infections that affect the sex organs and genital areas, that are caused by germs or organisms such as bacteria and viruses. Anyone who has intimate sexual contact with an infected person may develop an STD. Most STD's can be cured, but the best way of preventing it is to be informed about the diseases and to take responsibility for sexual activity. This means knowing the facts about STD's, and seeking medical care as soon as an STD is suspected.

Choosing to be sexually active means accepting responsibilities. Practicing safer sex will help to maintain your sexual health. If you suspect you have been exposed to a sexually transmitted disease:

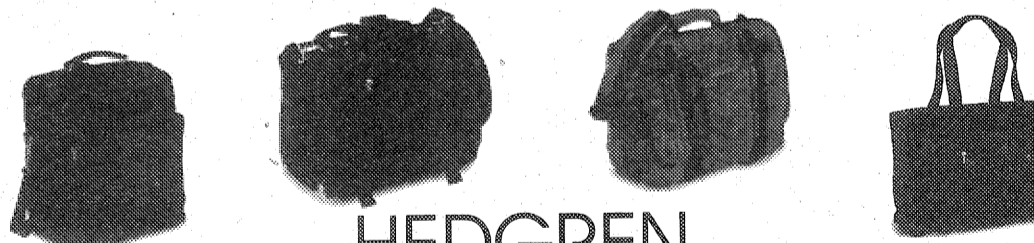

- seek medical treatment at an STD clinic or family doctor
- do not have any sexual contact until treatment is completed (follow-up exam completed)

THE MOST IMPORTANT ASPECTS OF STD PREVENTION ARE BEING AWARE OF STD AND TAKING POSITIVE STEPS TO AVOID INFECTION.***

The Mega Monopoly of Microsoft

The House That Gates Built

James Olson

Internet Sites:
www.microsoft.com
www.research.microsoft.com

Microsoft is the first economic organization of its kind in human history. Combining the basic aspects of the human existence into their innovative business strategies, Microsoft has hurled itself to the forefront of the technological revolution taking place on planet Earth.

How are they doing it?

A Shift of Power

In the Information Decade of the 90's, the balance of power lies within access to information. Governments made themselves a very good living by controlling this commodity in the last hundred years. But as business and awareness grew, it was only a matter of time before individuals came to this realization as well. Knowledge is power. As much as it hurts to admit it, the fate of nations no longer hangs on money and guns. The basis of our entire world economy has shifted from currency to data and now we are being forced to deal with the earth-shaking implications of this move.

Microsoft Shoots and Scores

Bill Gates foresaw the potential profits locked away in information over a decade ago and has turned it into a global empire. Because managing the world's knowledge in its entirety would be logistically impossible, Microsoft does not control information directly; they control the means by which information is accessed. By developing, producing and selling computer operating systems, Microsoft has established itself as the gatekeeper supreme of the world's information. Knowledge is power, power is Microsoft.

Tactics: Microsoft's Culture Frame

Direct, open influence has never been effective as a means of manipulation. No matter how pure or honorable an organization's goals may be, there are always those who will oppose them - even if it is just for the sake of being the opposition. So, as history has proven that sanctity is no excuse for progress, the need for an alternate means of persuasion arose and Microsoft found it.

"Culture Frame" is a crude, but fitting, term for the digital coup Microsoft is imposing over its software users. With the religious fervor of a music video, Gates continues to mold the computerized world into his own version of an MTV utopia-complete with song and slogan: "We can be hero's", "Where do you want to go today?"

The framework takes the shape of easily recognizable symbols and icons, uniform and universal procedures like cut, copy, and paste and features such as the now immortal "Start" button. All these quirks are seemingly insignificant by themselves, but together represent the beginning of Microsoft's inevitable compu-cult status. We are all well on our way to becoming faithful citizens of the Windows Universe.

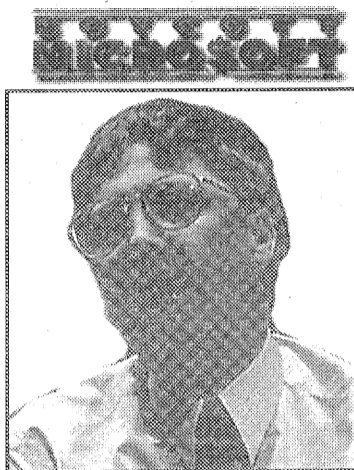

Bill Gates estimated personal wealth to date
$36 400 000 000

The Dark Side of Microsoft Humor

By converting Bill Gates III to it's corresponding ASCII values, you will find that when totally, you get the number of the Beast.

B I L L G A T E S I I I

=666

Other names that produce this number are Adolf Hitler, Joseph Stalin, and the Pope.

Even in the tangled web unfolding, one thing is certain - Bill Gates is indeed the most hated man on the internet.

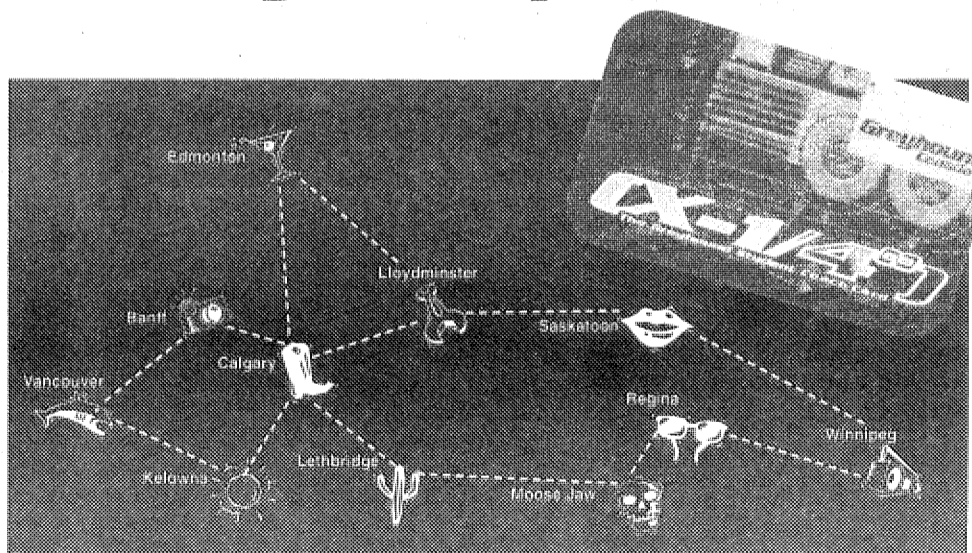

Two of the newest releases of Microsoft: the AutoPC and the PalmPC. Both promise to revolutionize the computer industry.

FAST FACTS:

- Microsoft was founded by Paul Allen and Bill Gates in 1975.
- Although Windows is the most widely recognized product of Microsoft, the MS-DOS operating system was Microsoft's first major success in PC software.
- Recent releases from Microsoft include the Auto PC and Palm PC, Office 97, as well as Internet Explorer 4.0 - the first fully integrated web browser and desktop.
- Microsoft has been requiring it's Windows95 licenses to also install their web browser, Internet Explorer, as a term of their licensing agreement. The U.S. Department of Justice is currently prosecuting the corporation for violations of U.S. Anti-Trust laws.
- On January 10, 1998, Tele-Communications Inc. and Microsoft released plans in which TCI will license a version of Windows CE for use in their new digital set-top boxes. Through Windows CE, TCI will offer a wide range of interactive services and improve video and sound quality.

Hello corporate America. What's that? You want to create a gift-wrapped, plastic chain of merchandise outlets completely devoid of personality in an attempt to stimulate huge profits while at the same time providing high-priced brand named products and services to the general public? Could life get any better?

A billboard advertisement instructs us to politely wave goodbye to the final, burning remnants of our once "immortal" neighborhood hangouts as an army of white-collared businessmen, armed to the teeth with franchising contracts move in and set up camp on the battlefield of suburbia. Now it's their party and we're all invited O.A.C. Cover charge in effect.

A flyer on my windshield tells the story of a war without bullets or guns.

There's a cluster of high-priced, high-quality home renovation warehouses, fast food restaurants and bargain basements taking shape on horizon. They all accept every major credit card in existence and if you're lucky, they'll put you on their mailing list. Two weeks later, you'll receive a twenty page, full color brochure on that particular companies efforts to battle pollution. Without even reading the front page, the desire toss it in the garbage consumes us. Recycling is cool, but not cool enough to lower marginal costs.

Good-bye grass roots, hello international syndication.

Not Aware of Sexual Awareness

Fresh & Miranda Jordan

Sexual Awareness week is "designed to make students and staff aware of the consequences of careless sexual behaviour, from the health hazards to emotional and physical pain. Throughout the week, watch for displays and other activities." This is a quote from NAIT's Student Handbook.

As a student here at NAIT, I do not feel that my awareness was raised on sexual issues as indicated by the Student Handbook put out by NAITSA. Last week's activities included a table outside of Room E-131 with educational material and a box of Lifestyles condoms; and a video display.

Sexual Awareness Week was organized by Susan Dickson, Activities Vice President. I asked Susan how she felt Sexual Awareness Week went over last week, and she stated that it didn't go over very well, but over 1000 condoms were given out. She feels the week was bad planning on her part, but she feels that trying to educate students does not come across through activities. This may be true, but I share the belief with others that having students participate in activities will get their attention.

I also asked Susan if she felt the video and display outside the NAITSA office was successful in informing students as opposed to activities, and she stated that she was not sure, but alot of students dropped by so it was informative for them.

The budget for Sexual Awareness Week is shared with AIDS Awareness Week, which took place last fall (September 29-October 4), and is $500. The condoms that were purchased to be distributed to students cost $250, which pretty much takes up the budget for the week. Susan says, "If we spend all of the budget on safe sex, I think that's great."

*Next week is Environmental Awareness Week

SEX, and everything that goes with it. This little editorial is going to cover the aspects of athletes and sex, of course some of these topics will jump into other areas of interpersonal relationships, so here we go.

Names - The most obvious and most heard name that is spouted off in Canada's sporting world is "The Hockey Puck". All of these names

Hat, the common name thrown around by the hockey crowd was "Tiger Tails", in respect to the WHL team that graced the city of Medicine Hat. Hockey is not the only sport that disrespects women by labelling them. Baseball has "Mitts" and volleyball has "Diggers" to only mention a couple other sports.

Phrases - By phrases I mean any group of words that can be related as sex without saying sex. "Getting a piece" is the most common and widely understood. The list can go on forever, but the best and most original list of phrases I have ever heard is in a movie that some of you may have seen. The movie "Grumpy Old Men" is a decent movie for your entertainment dollar, but if you left the theatre before the credits were finished you missed the best part of the movie. After the credits, a set of clips from the movie are shown that surpass everything else in terms of being dirty without using dirty words.

Other side of the coin - Do not think for a second that men are the only ones placing labels on the opposite sex for being interested in a specific group of people. Women have just as many secondary names for men. University softball teams in the States have a list of names used for guys that follow them around, "Batboys" would be one of them. Although this next one can be used for either sex I tend to hear more females use it in terms of males, "Flavour of the Week". I can not list as many on this side of the coin because I am not a woman and, of course, men are naturally pigs, and their minds spend so much more time in the gutter.

After reading the first couple of paragraphs some of you may think I am a sick, disgusting pig (that's a first)— but wait a minute! The part of all this that I do not understand or agree with is the two different standards set for men vs. women. If a man sleeps with a ton of women he is a "Stud", if a woman sleeps with a ton of men she is a "Slut". What's with that? Some people really enjoy sex and others really could find better things to do with their time. If you are someone who really enjoys the physical side of a relationship, know and understand all the consequences, as well as, how to protect yourself. Get out there and enjoy the fruits of your own labour. The one thing that most people realize once they get past this stage is that multiple partners is not all that it is cut out to be.

To finish off, I would like everyone to think about one thing the next time you use a name or a phrase that can be considered distasteful. Would you use the same vocabulary if you were talking about yourself, or even worst, one of your parents. NUFF SAID.

Oilers 1998

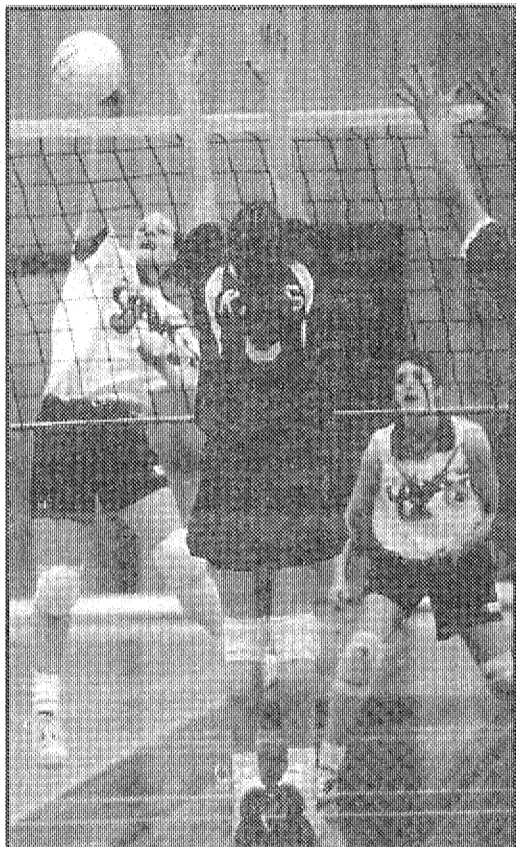

Da Worm

Somewhere between 1997 and 1998 the Edmonton Oilers decided to make a few small changes. Okay they were some pretty big trades as far as the Oilers go. Bryan Marchment was sent packing for Roman Hamrlik. Everybody had a soft spot for the playoff accident Oiler and we all loved to see him hit the opposition but I think Dan McGillis can fill Marchment's shoes quite nicely. Hamrlik is a defenseman that the Oilers needed, and I am happy to see him standing in front of Cujo rather than shooting at him.

Arnott's gone!!!! Is was wished upon a star and look who's New Year's wish came true. Unloading Arnott was a chore for the Oilers, no one wanted to give too much up in order to get a $1.5 million 5-goal scorer who goes half speed. The best way to describe this trade is this—the Edmonton Oilers got ride of a guy that Canada's National Team did not even think about for a player that the U.S.A. National Team would not play without. In case some of you did not know this Guerin was not originally selected to play in the Olympics for the U.S. However, after the World Cup of Hockey the players on the team were ready to walk off the team if Guerin was not selected to be a member of Team U.S.A.

Both trades make the Oilers a stronger team and the fans are happy to see the missing link gone and have a missing piece of the puzzle found.

Men's Volleyball Still On Top

But For How Long?

Mark Mahl

This weekend, the mens volleyball team continued in their winning ways, sweeping The King's University college Eagles twice, but it wasn't easy.

Friday's performance was one of the team's worst this year, playing a considerably less talented team, the Oaks seem to do what they could to get by. Saturday deemed a new look; Oaks stepped onto the court with fire blasting the Eagles: 15-10, 15-1. The next two games were as if someone was writing a new Star Trek episode, because the Oaks were stuck in the Talbot time warp. Talbot Walton is the coach of the Eagles, and he did his job outstandingly. He played the officials like a cheap violin on talent night, wasting so much time I think the Oaks just fell asleep.

Game five came along (that's right, the Kings won the next two), and the Oaks woke up in fine fashion dropping the Eagles from their nest 15-4. Personally, I think my team just wanted to give the fans their full value for their ticket. Overall, the team played well. Luc Billo stepped up and had one of his finest all around performance of the year. Shane Kuhn and Adam Ungarian stepped in and played well in their roles, while the team recorded 40 stuff blocks and 20 Aces over 9 games.

This weekend is the real test, when they travel up to Grande Prairie for what is considered the bragging rights to first place. The Wolves are very tough in their den, and are going to be hard to beat, but if anyone can do it, it is this team. When the Oaks finish first in North, they will have the opportunity to host this year's Men's Volleyball Provincial Championships.

A Piece of Our Lady Peace

Doting Over Duncan

Sony Music

Miranda Jordan

As part of the promotion for OLP's concert tomorrow night at the Coliseum, Duncan had a few things to tell me. Here are some Duncan facts for Duncan fans:

- 28 years of age
- resides in Toronto
- loves classical music, 80's rock
- hates bad food and bad drivers
- watches The Simpsons and King of The Hill
- is not married, but has a long time girlfriend
- he feels it is rewarding to play in front of so many people
- used to be in film school, but fell back to music

- considers himself to be really lucky
- personal strengths: drive and compassion
- he is not one dimensional, and artists must have conviction in their music
- when recording with the boys, they check their egos at the door
- he does not consider himself a sex symbol regardless of Bryan Adams comparisons
- Duncan takes punches as they come
- he suffers from road burn
- likes to read alot, play video games, and is a sucker for guitar stores

From left: Duncan, Jeremy, Mike, and Raine.

Usher Returns Without Puffy

Miranda Jordan

Usher, one of the newest, hottest performers added to the LaFace record label was originally the opening act for Puff Daddy and the Family for their December 22nd date. Since that date at the Coliseum was cancelled, another date has still not been rescheduled. Usher, gaining vast popularity, especially among the female public, for bearing a trade mark "beanie" type of hat, and bearing his chest while his pants are falling down, is also gaining success for his music. "You Make Me Wanna" was Usher's first single, and it made the Canadian music charts at number one. After the date with Puffy was ixnayed, Usher has decided to return on his own to Edmonton. Headlining the Convention Centre on January 24, 1998, Usher will perform with opening guests, Lost Boyz. Doors open at 7:00 p.m., and tickets are available at Ticketmaster for $26.75.

As Clear As Ever

Everclear's Art Alexakis

Capitol Records

Miranda Jordan

So Much For The Afterglow, Everclear's highly anticipated release to 1995's Sparkle and Fade has proven that even the most cynical of come-from-nowhere bands can sustain a position in the alternative/rock scene. Since its October 7th release, their recent album has successfully fed Everclear's fans with their first hit single, Everything to Everyone.

Alexakis's lyrics possess substance, simplicity, truth, and address personal issues such as having an awful father/son relationship; and being a white boy in a black neighborhood. Reviews peg Everclear as dark because of Alexakis's lyrics, which stem from his life experiences: drugs, depression, being in hospitals, and jail. Alexakis says, "...I just try to connect. I just write about things I've been through. I think human nature is that people like dirty laundry." He believes in John Doe's philosophy that "people like the sad song they don't have to sing."

So Much For The Afterglow is a tribute to what comes after gaining success and surpassing any goals the band set for themselves. A friend of Alexakis's describes their recent album as "the most melodic, fuck-you record he's heard since This Year's Model."

Alexakis cites old country, Elvis Costello, and the Beach Boys as major personal influences.

Now that Everclear is comfortable within the creative process and the myriad challenges of stardom, they have hit the road. Garage bands are notorious for getting their asses out on the road for long periods of time; and on this route, they've hooked up with Canada's own phenomenal success story, Our Lady Peace. Tomorrow night Everclear will open for OLP at the Edmonton Coliseum, and I can't predict anything but a glow.

SUCCESS = STUPIDITY

Marc Nobert

Stupidity you ask? Yup. A lot of TV shows come to an end only by brutal force. For instance "Full House", "Family Matters", "America's (unfunniest host) Funniest Home Videos". Yeaccchhh! The stars milk the show for all it's worth until the network brass decide that they're no longer profitable. I hat to say it about stars (at least that's what Hollywood calls 'em) that make me throw-up but they're smart. They know that their pathetic careers aren't gonna get any better than that. So, they milk their shows for everything they can.

Unfortunately, not every show has smart stars. In fact, these are REAL stars that DON'T make me throw up. What I'm obviously getting to, is the one and only JERRY SEINFELD. Unless you've been in the hospital you know what he's decided to shut down his show. Alright. Well, let's look at the track record of guys who have prematurely shut down their shows, shall we? We have Ted Danson, who called off his show (well not technically his show, but we all know it was) when he decided after eleven years that it was time to "move on". The show was running dry of ideas but still had a loyal following at number ten on the Nielsen ratings. Well, since then, two of his co-stars went on to have their own successful shows (Kelsey Grammar, Kirstie Alley). Another went on to a good movie career (Woody Harrelson), and the man, Ted Danson, went to leech off his former co-star's shows in a desperate attempt to revive his now dead character of Sam Malone. Hmmm.

Hmmm. Let's look at another one. Bill Cosby decided to call off his show after nine years again because he thought it was time to "move on". The show was also running dry but still had a fair sized audience and another few years in it. Well, a few sad sack series' later ("I, Spy", "Cosby Mysteries") he's back on with a show that's obviously him scrambling back to his old series. He didn't even try to hide it as he recruited his old on-TV wife (Phylicia Rashad) and laid the show out with saxaphones, a house with the same front, and pretty much the exact same set. There's even the same swinging door between the kitchen and living room so that his character can have more fun eavesdropping. Hmmm.

Now let's look at our good friend Jerry Seinfeld. He's decided he wants to goo out, quote "with a chance of getting a standing ovation" endquote. Again, the show is starting to run a little dry on ideas, but it's NUMBER ONE in the Nielson ratings! It's brimming with talent and fantastic characters. George, Kramer, Jerry, Newman, and Elaine. The show is at the point where I don't even have to explain the characters. But, he's decided he wants to shut it down and go back to stand up. Gee, there's a smart one. Leave a show that's making you hundreds of millions, bearing your name, and still running strong after nine years. Hmmm

Purity Test

James Olson & Fresh

Since last week was Sexual Awareness Week, we thought we would pose some questions for you to test your level of sexual purity.

- 1) How many sexual partners have you had? Add 1 point for every partner
- 2) What drugs have you been on during sex? Aspirin, pot, mushrooms, acid, crack, cocaine, heroin, exstacy, hash, crystal-meth, PCP, elemer's glue, speed nicotine? Add 1 point for every drug
- 3) Have you ever fantasized about the Spice Girls? Add 1 point for each member (5)
- 4) Have you ever fantasized about Leonardo Dicaprio, River Phoenix, Matt Damon, or Scott Wolf? Add 1 point for every guy
- 5) Cake as a sexual device. Add 5 point if you formed a dirty mental picture
- 6) Have you thought about your parents having sexual intercourse and had trouble settling down afterwards? Add 1 point
- 7) Do you feel the urge to smoke after watching a couple of apes go at it on "Wild Kingdom"? Add 1 point
- 8) Have you ever removed an undergarment at a friends request? Add 1 point
- 9) Have you ever thought of being part of a foursome with Sharon, Lois and Bram? Add 20 points
- 10) Do you ever think about sexual acts in church? Add 10 points
- 11) Have you ever made a pass at one of your friends parents? Add 10 points
- 12) Do you feel compelled to have sex when you are drunk?

Add 5 point

13) Do you feel that foot massages are erotic? Add 2 point

14) Does Sesame Street make you horny? Add 5 points

15) Have you ever had sex with your boy/girlfriends best friend? Add 1000 points

16) Can you count all of sexual partners on one hand? Add 5 points

17) Do you do the nasty in front of others? Add 5 points

18) Saran wrap and balloons are great substitutes for condoms. Add 5 points

19) Leather whips and chains sit beside your bed for quick accessibility. Add 10 points

20) You don't know who is sleeping beside you the next morning. Add 5 points

21) If sex was a professional sport, you'd be an Olympic contender. Add 20 points

22) It's your dream to be a PORN STAR. Add 10 points

23) You would consider having an affair with a married man/woman. Add 5 points

24) You have said "I love you" to a potential sexual partner in order to get sex. Add 10 points

25) You had sex with 2 or more people at the same time. (Orgy) Add 10 points

The Nugget is not promoting any of these acts, and is merely running this piece for entertainment value. The more points you score, the less pure you are. Thanks for playing THE PURITY TEST.

Yup, Madonna-but the dress did make up for the stringy hair.

Worst Hair (male)

Mathew Modine (Gross Anatomy, As The Band Played On)
Big Orange Hair

COMMENTS

- What was Brooke Shields and her lipstick about?
- Brendan Fraser (George of the Jungle, School Ties) WOW!
- Will Smith's fiancé (Scream 2)- does she look pregnant to you?
- Kevin Kline - what was with him and hugging everyone who won and walked past him?
- I think Kim Basinger (Bay-singer) had it planned to have Anne Heche give an award with Alec (no competition!)
- How can you go a night without Mel Gibson-my did he look good
- Even as kauky as Jim Carrey might be he's still funny and a good loser.

TASTE A CANADIAN TRADITION

For all those who are jealous of business students
Jealousy will get you no where! Once we are in corporate positions earning $100,000/yr, we will be spoiled brats and you will still be nothing. Sorry about your luck!

To Business and all Others (you know who you are!)

Is this high school? This pointless bickering back and forth is starting to get redundant. The jokes about business grads working at McDonald's, lack originality. It makes me wonder if you people talk to retarded grade two people to get your jokes. GROW UP AND GET A LIFE
Annoyed in EET

Hey Caper (wanna-be Chem-Tech. Trasher):
I'd think that with all the spare time you have on your hands, you could at least have the courtesy to have a better put-down than "Chomos". Here's some advice on thinking of a new one; 1. Stop masturbating to gay porn, and 2. Stop make-believing that you're popular. By following these very simple steps, you feeble mind should realize that your whining and Business Education will get you nowhere.
Sincerely, Mike Hunt

Tigger
Let's go for the gold! The more people we have on "the list" the more victims we'll have. For those of you who don't know what we're talking about....you will. All in good time. Ha ha ha. All in good time.
YODA

Happy Birthday LES!

To My Prince Charming
Thanks for all the fun in L.A., Seven Years In Tibet was wonderful, and the lobby was even better!
From your Sleeping Beauty

To 2nd yr. PWT
It seems you blamed a certain incident with Dental on us 1st year. We had nothing to do with it. They aren't going to give you head pressure anyway. Can you even get 9.81KPM off your little things? We would bring them to their critical pressure and pop their safety valves. But we still respect them!
Pissed of 1st PWT's

To: So-called Considerate 2nd yr PWT
It's strange how the 2nd yr students know way more about this Dental Assistant incident than we do. We are also wondering if the ladies in question were verbally assaulted by 3 people, since there are 3 apologies from the 2nd years supposedly for us. (Is guilt getting on your conscience?) Since you are so gentlemen-like, we figured you could fess up to your own doings. Don't hide behind pins on your own accord. Geez, when it comes to impressing ladies the 2nd years are all in pre-tech courtship.

Scapegoats (1st year PWT)

L. ("The Big Guy")

To Mike Crotch, Business and all others involved in these childish antics:
Why can't you people just give it up already. The only way you'll solve this problem is to get together and have it out. Tell each to their face what they're doing to piss you off so much. There's lots of people in this school which get on my nerves but I don't let it get to me. So just shake hands, kiss, and make up, before I throw up!
Silver Phantom

To a girl in business, I think her name is Loy.
We met at the 2B, Odds concert. You were sitting with Brian, Leila. I borrowed a cig off you. Then we went backstage. We want to get to know you. Respond via Grapevine

Dear Mrs. Hunt
I've seen your '75 Mustang with the fake GT sticker on the side. It's always parked in front of the DOWN UNDER BATH HOUSE. Yeah, I always see it when I'm kicking your mom out of the caddy on the nearest street corner. Obviously, you're preparing for post-graduation when you're homeless and broke as a joke. As for the size of my 'erection' well it's like a baseball bat, girls scream out JOHNNY BENCH when they see me. Don't worry about your mom, I'll drop her off on the nearest corner when she's finished riding the 8th wonder of the world!

Sincerely, BIG DADDY

Luv Sponge

To the Sunshine on Cloud (Bus) #9
On the morning of January 15th (Thurs.) You got on the number 9 Northgate, from Whyte Ave. You had short sandy-blond hair and a blue hooded jacket with 2 white racing stripes down the middle. You stood between 5'3" and 5'6", but I couldn't really tell because I could not stop noticing how cute you are. Do you want to have a cup of coffee with me some time? Don't pass up an opportunity to get to know a great guy! Take a chance!
Sincerely, Ted E. Bear
(Guy with the blue Nike cap and brown coat - that day!)

Levi in Electronics,
Are you ready to be blind-folded and bound? You know how to find me if you can handle it.

To OHhhh Billy,
What's happening to me, I just don't know? My mind's spinning-my heart's burning. The only way to describe it is true, total, and full happiness. I love you so much, my heart melts when I hold you tightly in my arms. Making love to you is the greatest feeling when combined with your love. I will love you forever. Our marriage will last for all time.
P.S. Your dress is beautiful, the cheesecake is perfect, and a golden band will join us FOREVER.
LOVE,
Your Silver Phantom

To All My Business Friends,
Is anybody else totally f$#@ing sick of Mr. Crotch and his lame ass business cutdowns? I am. My other problem is that the Grapevine (no offense, I love the Grape) consistently prints his bullshit and won't print my lovely responses. Why don't you give him his own f@%ing column? Actually, don't do that. The guy's a tatly unoriginal whore. One more thing, why the hell don't you use your real name you chicken shit, donut bumpin', "I like to be the guy in front", ass munchin' dumb-ass Faggot.
