HP Centre Thefts a Concern

Mark Cappis

One of the growing problems at NAIT is theft of school equipment. This is a serious problem for many of the computer-based technologies. When computers go missing, students can't use the computers for their assignments, and security is tightened up making things rather inconvenient for students. At the end of September, there was $5,000 worth of equipment stolen, including mice, keyboards, monitors and a tower. Data projectors have always been a popular target for thieves over the past two years.

For the time being, security has been stepped up in the HP Center. Classrooms are kept locked at all times, and students can't stay after school and get their labs done unless there is an instructor or lab monitor in the room with them. "Some teachers don't stay after 4 p.m., which is very tough for us when we have labs due, and they are very time-consuming and take a lot of work," says NCIT spokesperson David Fester.

NCIT is lobbying for increased security measures that are more convenient for students. "There are cameras in the main hallways, but not cameras in the halls leading to the classrooms. We'd also like to see some more security guards, and even security tagging on the actual computers," said Fester.

NAITSA is doing what they can to both deter theft and accommodate student requests. NAITSA President Dwayne Williams has spoken to the administration about putting security tags on the computers, and while it would be an effective solution, it's also a costly solution. NAITSA and the administration are working together to find alternative solutions. "Right now, [the administration] will send a program head from class-to-class, find out what kind of extended hours the students would like, and then have a lab monitor put into that time period to help support it," said Williams. But, right now, it is only a band-aid solution.

St. Albert Joins NAIT Family

MARK Cappis

The St. Albert campus is finally being treated as a true equal in the eyes of NAITSA. St. Albert was previously a satellite campus of Fairview college. But, with last year's merger of Fairview and NAIT, St. Albert is now a satellite campus under the NAIT umbrella. Now, you see, student fees at our remote campuses, such as Fairview and Grande Prairie, is just $6. And that makes sense, because they live so far away and they can't get at all the sweet stuff here on main campus. And that's why the students at St. Albert only paid $6 in student fees this year. Back in the old days, when they were a satellite campus of Fairview, it made sense.

'Tis the Season of Stress!

KAREN L. Kay

It's mid-term time. The time when you realize you have to be focused. That means you have to study, but you're feeling bogged down and starting to get stressed. You scream and start freaking out. There's no time for drama! Quick, read over your notes—cram as much information into cranium as you can, for tomorrow we write!

If this sounds familiar, you're not alone. According to Statistics Canada, 66 percent of men and women between the ages of 18-24, say there is some stress in their life, 22 percent say there is quite a lot of life stress. Things can seem hectic around exam time, and your first way to relax may be a beer, or a night out.

Student comments...

Caitlin Hogan, in Hospitality Management says she goes out Saturdays, "just to break up the week." Caitlin admits that exams totally stress her out, "because they're harder than you think they'll be and you study everything that's not on the test."

Well, one way to relieve all that pressure is with a massage. Sherry Ying Diao of TDY Massage Therapy in Club Fit says, "if you work the right pressure points, you can relieve stress." Sherry says, "When you're stressed, everything is stiff, a massage will get the circulation going and help to relax you." Sherry recommends working the shoulders and neck, and if you don't have time for a massage, "take a hot bath."

Corilee Schell in Business says exams do a real number on her, "I have a newfound anxiety, I'm scared of tests now, I never used to be in high school." Corilee believes she may have found a way to cope, "I phone my mom, she tells me its okay and not to worry about it."

NAITSA Notes

Democracy in Action!

The last NAITSA General Council meeting took place on October 12. As always, it was a rollicking good time of school politics. Here's the play by play:

❖ Addressing issues raised from the last meeting, NAITSA said that they'd raised the issue with administration about the security issues in the HP Centre, and in the whole school. NAITSA learned from the administration that security has been rather laid back over the years, but now they're working hard to improve it. Since current security measures include lab monitors on duty, NAITSA and the administration are working to extend the lab monitor time.

❖ The guest speaker of the night was Mike Stefan from NAIT Athletics. He revealed that one of the goals of NAIT Athletics this year is to try to get the students more involved in NAIT Athletics. He also announced that, this year, NAIT is hosting the CCAA Championship in Basketball. That's the national championship for college basketball in Canada. Last time NAIT hosted it was 1989, and NAIT took the title that year. That happens in March. The Oaks opening night bash is happening on the 22nd. Your $5 admission gets you a free drink at the Nest, seats to the Oaks game, and into the after party at Cowboy's. The general consensus was that the best way to get students more involved with the Oaks is through a greater amount of promotions for the games.

❖ And don't forget, admission to all Oaks games is free, free, free.

❖ The major issue of the night was student fees at the St. Albert campus. NAITSA proposed raising student fees at the St. Albert campus from $6/year to $187/year. The reasoning was to bring St. Albert up to par with all the metro-area campuses (the Main Campus, Patricia Campus, Souch Campus). After some heated debate, the motion was passed, and the increase will go into effect in the 2005/2006 school year.

❖ Several technologies on campus would like to see lab time extended, so students can stay after school longer to work on projects. All technologies were encouraged to come forward with what hours they'd like to see the labs remain open, and NAITSA will see what they can work out with administration.

❖ The Meet and Greet is happening on November 2. This is an annual event in which representatives of various bars, pubs, and event venues comes to NAIT and networks with the various technologies. Essentially, that's when the bars try to make the best possible deal they can for your technology's events this year.

❖ Orientation for the technologies is happening on October 18, 19, and 20. This is when NAITSA helps out the technologies by showing them how to set up events, plan events, and all that stuff. Right now, no technology can book an event until they've had at least one representative go to at least one of the three seminars. Your rep doesn't have to go to all three; just one of them. So, urge your reps to go! (Of course, it'll have happened by the time this is published, so I hope one of your reps went.)

❖ Coming near the end of the meeting, NAITSA announced some of their upcoming events. October 21 is the Coors Light Maxim Party in the Nest. October 23 is Family Day, where students can bring their little siblings or kids down to the campus, and there'll be activities, games, and a showing of Shrek 2. $2 to get in. The NAITSA Halloween party is October 30, in the gym. $5 to get in. And, the biggest news, the 2nd Annual NAITSA Street Hockey Classic is on November 5 and 6. Grand prize this year is 4 luxury Molson Skybox suites to the upcoming Tragically Hip concert. Second prize is a ski weekend for you and your three team-mates in Banff. Entry fee is $40/team, sign up in the NAITSA office.

❖ And finally, it was acknowledged that there was an error with the September 30 edition of the Nugget, and the issue was pulled. After a convening of the Publication Board, the Editor-in-chief and features editor were let go. Applications were being tendered for new people for these positions, and they'll probably have been hired by the time this makes print.

And that, folks, is democracy in action, with donuts on the side. The next one is November 2 in room F006. It was originally scheduled for October 26, but that's the middle of midterms for most of us.

But St. Albert is now a satellite campus of NAIT. Students from St. Albert can access all the facilities at the main campus as easily as students from Patricia Campus and Souch Campus. That being the case, it was felt on the part of NAITSA that St. Albert should be paying as much for student fees that students at all metro-area campuses pay.

So, for the 2005/2006 school year, the student fees at the St. Albert campus will be increased from $6 to $187.

"The fees have to be increased because usage of our facilities has been increased," says NAITSA President Dwayne Williams. "That means more Nuggets have to be produced, those Nuggets have to be sent to [the St. Albert] campus, handbooks had to be created for that campus...next year, the cost of doing all that will break our budget, and the money will have to come from somewhere. The only options were to either raise [St. Albert's] student fees, or to distribute it throughout the main campus."

This means that St. Albert now has many of the same opportunities that the main campus has. The increased student fees go into the Endowment Fund. This NAITSA fund that a portion of the student fees go into, and every year, the interest is scraped off and given away as scholarships and bursaries. "The people at St. Albert campus have the exact same ability to access all these scholarships that we on main campus do," said Williams.

The jump from $6 to $187 may seem dramatic, but Williams says it's the best way. "We have to keep in mind that all the metro campuses are paying that fee. So it's not like we could increase it by $25 per year or something. The cost will still remain. So, either [St. Albert's] fees would have to be brought up to the same as other students, or the other students would have to make up for [St. Albert's] slight increases over time."

So, it may seem like a big jump right now, but this will ensure equality among St. Albert students and the rest of us city students in the long run.

A Comparison of Three Things

Jenny Annett

"Forty dollars for a twenty four pack of beer? That's RIDICULOUS!" (From the Mountain CREST commercial). If this is a quote that you live your life by, then you have stumbled upon the perfect article. As students on a tight budget, we must seek ways to save our hard earned bling. Because drinking is an important part of college life, it only made sense for me to hold a Cheap Beer Taste Testing Extravaganza!

Through this session, I was able to find the perfect beer for those of you who want to drink, but don't want to pay an arm and a leg to do so.

To begin, I selected three of the cheapest beers found in the liquor store. They were as follows: TNT, Carling and Mountain Crest. I then chose three panelists to rate the beers on looks, smell, and taste.

Beer Statistics:
TNT Beer	Carling Beer	Mountain CREST
Slogan: Caution TNT Handle With Care	Slogan: No Preservatives	Slogan: Damn Good Beer
Price: $5.99/6 pack	Price: $6.49/6 pack	Price: $7.99/6 pack
Alcohol Percentage: 6%	Alcohol Percentage: 5%	Alcohol Percentage: 5.5%
Brewed by: Pacific Western Brewing Co.	Brewed by: Molson Canada	Brewed by: Mountain Crest Lagers Inc

These important facts were taken into consideration as the panelists came up with the following results:

Caution TNT (Handle with Care)
Panelists	Looks	Smell	Taste
Chris	Like kidney failure pee.	Doesn't smell too bad.	Tastes like licking a battery post.
Adge	Carbonated apple juice, or Jack Daniels.	Really, really weak smell. (Has stuffed nose).	Not a good taste. So weird. It tastes like badness. If I get stuck drinking TNT, there's gonna be some puckage.
Kev	Totally not like Jack Daniels. Uh, yeah, looks like pee.	Smells cheap. Like hobo brew.	It tastes watery at first, and then the aftertaste is like a mouthful of raw, unrefined grains. (How does Chris know what licking a battery post tastes like?)
Carling Beer
Panelists	Looks	Smell	Taste
Chris	Looks really crisp, cool, clear and clean.	Smells like Corona, only domestic.	Ewww. Wait, no, it's not that bad. I like it. (As more than friends).
Adge	Like watered down apple juice. (Not a lot of carbonation).	Smells like gingerale. (Has stuffed nose).	Whoa. That's crazy. It totally shocked the back of my throat. It tastes really good, with no aftertaste. I'm gonna buy this sh*t.
Kev	It looks like foamy, foamy apple juice.	When I smell it, it's like happy faces pour into my lungs. It smells that good.	It tastes smooth and crisp.
Mountain CREST Classic Lager
Panelists	Looks	Smell	Taste
Chris	Reminds me of the time I watered down some Crown Royal so my parents wouldn't know I drank half the bottle. Crest is the same colour.	Smells like beer spilled in a smoky sleazy motel room beside a ski hill.	It tastes like scotch.
Adge	It is glowing.	Screw you, nose! Why do you have to be so plugged? It smells like when a drunk guy breaths on you.	It's delicious. So very good.
Kev	It is uber yellow.	Yeah, it's like beer breath. I can smell the alcohol. The makers of Crest are not going to enjoy my review.	It's like I took a shot of grossness. I might as well lick the cap of a bottle of rubbing alcohol.

After each panelist had finished the taste test, they were each given one kind of beer to drink for the rest of the night. Chris was given Carling, Kev was given TNT, and Adge was given CREST. Half way through the night, I asked them to rate their evening in terms of aggressiveness, happiness, and energy levels. (Scale of 0-10).

Chris (Carling): Aggressiveness: 0-1; Happiness: 8; Energy: 8

Adge (CREST): Aggressiveness: 9; Happiness: 7; Energy: 6

Kev (TNT): Aggressiveness: My hands are A-bombs; Happiness: 2000; Energy: 6-7

More drinking ensued, and the

Dear Bonny and Guest

The hilarious column where you can seek advice from a normal, unaccredited NAIT student and her zany weekly guest! To submit your questions, email us at BonnyandGuest@hotmail.com

This week's guest: The Count

Dear Bonny and Guest,

I have been trying to find a girl I can commit to for the past three years. The only problem is, every time I get into a serious relationship, all I can do is find flaws in my mate. How can I get over these little annoyances?

-Picky Petrov

Dear Picky,

Bonny: Have you evaluated the reasons why you always seem to find problems with your girlfriends? Perhaps you aren't ready for a serious relationship.

The Count: I count ONE! ONE Bonny in this room! AH! AH! AH!

Bonny: Count, I am not in the room. We are emailing each other in separate houses... Picky, try to think of the times you find flaws in these girls. Is it when you are having a serious discussion or when you are with your friends? Maybe you find these flaws when you start to feel trapped.

The Count: TWO! There are TWO reasons why you search for flaws! ONE; ONE is to get out of a relationship you don't want, and TWO; TWO is that your girls really are flawed! AH! AH! AH!

drink test was finally completed with the panel's closing statements:

Chris: Carling+Carling= Disco dancing on a slippery floor. Carling is delicious.

Adge: Mountain CREST is amazing! (Beer in stomach+running= BAD) I am so glad I am not drinking TNT tonight!

Kev: My teeth are numb and my tongue is numb, but I can still taste the horrible, horrible concoction that the producers of TNT have assaulted my body with. However, because TNT has 1% more alcohol in it (than Carling) I am therefore 1% more of a man than Chris is.

In closing, the top beer was CREST. Even though it was a little more expensive, the panel agreed it was worth the extra dollar to avoid mouth numbness and stomach upset.

Bonny: Picky, if you aren't trying to get out of the relationships, it could also be that you are trying to compare these girls to a fantasy in your head that simply isn't possible.

The Count: That makes THREE! THREE reasons you could be counting flaws! <Thunder and lightening>

Bonny: Count, does it have to be shouted? Can you not count in your head? Anyway, my advice to you, Picky, is to keep track of all the things that bother you about these girls. Maybe you could find a common denominator between all of them.

The Count: Like they are all simply hideous! Ah HA! That makes ONE! ONE good joke the Count told today! AH! AH! AH!

Bonny: My last piece of advice to you, Picky, is look at yourself. I'm sure you're a nice guy, but you probably have a few lumps and bumps as well. Just think, they are accepting you, maybe you could try to accept them...

The Count: Take her advice, Picky. You can 'count' on it... Again! That makes TWO! TWO good jokes the Count told today! AH! AH! AH! <More thunder and lightening>

Bonny: Is this a joke? No, seriously. Is this Count guy for real? I mean, he wrote his answers as numbers. If it's a joke, I want the last ten minutes of my life back...

As my panel has demonstrated, a cheap beer can be a fun alternative to the high priced snooty beverages of the upper class. We, as students, have enough things to worry about. Fitting drinking into our budgets shouldn't be one of them. The next time you have eight dollars in your pocket, don't be embarrassed. Just go to the nearest liquor store and buy a six pack of your favorite cheap lager. It may not taste exactly right, but what's more important, drinking, or taste? You decide.

Disclaimer: It is important for this writer to note that Kev woke up with a nose bleed that may or may not have been caused by excessive consumption of TNT. Please, HANDLE WITH CARE.

If you have three things you would like our panel to compare, please email us at jannett8@hotmail.com

It's not always easy being small, especially when you are playing basketball in the fiercely competitive ACAC; however, Mark Dorado is a very unique athlete whose skill in the game far exceeds any handicap his 5'7" frame may pose. When watching Mark for the first time, one definitely can appreciate his skill in the pre-game warm-ups; however, it is not until the tip-off that one can truly appreciate the skill and intensity of this young athlete. Just the presence of this athlete improves the team's attitude and motivation ten-fold.

Mark is a fourth year veteran with the Oaks and is expected to be a mentor and role-model to the several rookies who are on the men's squad this season. And if his role is successful, come March when NAIT hosts the Canadian Colleges Basketball Championships, the team's skill, teamwork, and intensity should be developed well and the Oaks should be a contender for the championship.

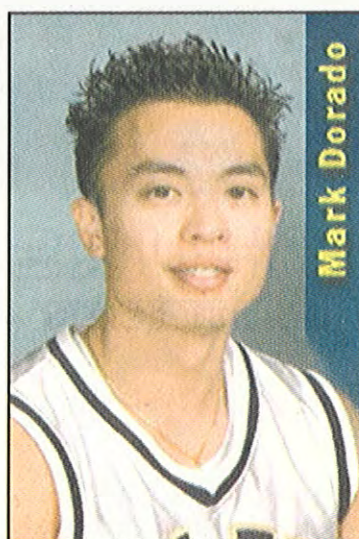

Dorado is quite impressed with Coach Chuma Nwobosi who is in the difficult position of trying to lead his squad to a repeat championship in only his first year as coach of the Oaks. Mark Dorado loves the style, attitude, and direction that Nwobosi is leading the team in and is confident that his coach will lead them to a repeat.

Before playing for the Oaks, Mark played high school basketball for the Archbishop MacDonald Marauders and was selected as an Edmonton Journal All-Star D the greatest honor an Edmonton high-school athlete can achieve. Mark won a city championship with the Marauders and finished 4th in the Provincial championships.

Mark finished his Biological Sciences diploma at NAIT and is currently taking Business to round out his education. Mark sees himself possibly in the biological sciences sector in the near future as a sales representative.

Dorado continues to enjoy his time spent here at NAIT as student. Mark is especially impressed with NAITSA and all of the special functions, parties, and cabarets that it has coordinated during his time here. "It's a party school!" say Mark. "Just a really fun place to be!"

The Final Cut

Laura Johnston

That's a wrap – another year, another notch on the belt for the wonderful folks at the Edmonton International Film Festival. Tuesday saw the close of a great week of independent film fun for the considerable turnout of Edmontonians taking part in Reel Ride 2004. For those of you fortunate enough to squeeze in a few flicks into your busy schedules, I'm sure I don't need to waste any words convincing you of its illustrious triumph. As for the rest of you, I'm going to take advantage of your valuable attention and literacy to highlight some of the festival's most thrilling pinnacles.

Of course, both the opening and closing galas (Childstar and Dear Frankie) received tremendous support. The Garneau's greatest viewer turnout was on Friday night, as throngs of film-hungry bohemians lined-up for entrance to Shane Carruth's stunning time-travel flick, Primer. Satyajit Ray's Distant Thunder proved to be a most amusing glitch in the Princess Theatre's extensive line-up, as there are very few people who are able to enjoy a Hindi film with french subtitles. Oops.

My personal favorite festival selection would have to be the 1968 Cheng Chang-ho production of Qian Mian Mo Nu (Temptress of a Thousand Faces). Sure, it's no Kill Bill – but it's still pretty damn funny. You can't argue with 1968. I'm usually a sucker for those "It's so bad, it's good" classics. Think original Batman.

You've got to have respect for any film with a kung-fu fighting, female-lead cast set in psychedelic Hong Kong.

You've got to have respect for any film with a kung-fu fighting, female-lead cast set in psychedelic Hong Kong. Not to mention, the obvious level of screen-writing mastery that could create an atmosphere for the characters to fight in their underwear for pretty much every scene. Even their ideas for torture are James Bond-esque, as the film's hero is subjected to possibly the worst experience imaginable – spinning around really fast.

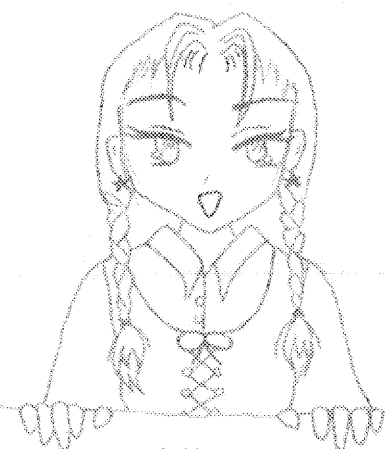

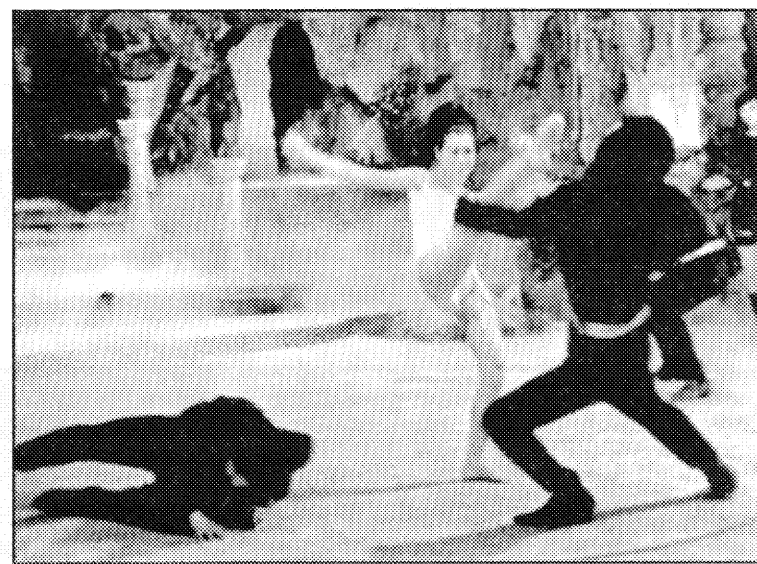

Each night also hosted a different, but equally enticing soiree filled with actors, filmmakers, and free martinis. For the lucky Sunday night filmgoers, both Ginger Snaps and its sequel, Ginger Snaps 2, were exhibited. Not only did eager cult film lovers get the opportunity of once again seeing these two sophisticated werewolf classics brought home to the silver screen, the actors were available for a highly popular meet and greet.

If you have been reduced to a state of tearful regret after missing such an outstanding spectacle, never fear. Both theatres plan to bring back a few of the most popular films for regular showings in 2005. Not to mention, plans have already begun for making next year even better. I think everyone supports my immense sense of appreciation for the theatre staff and festival crew who poured their hearts and souls into making this festival what it was. You're our heroes, and we will always be in your debt.

New music in the fall of 2004

MICHAEL Cristello

This Fall, many great bands of the past and present are releasing their new music for their fans, here in Canada, before the Christmas season arrives. New tunes from music greats like: Duran Duran, Celine Dion, George Strait, R.E.M., Twisted Sister, Bryan Adams and U2, will have their CD's hit the shelves between October and November of 2004. Rod Stewart also continues his music series with "Stardust: the Great American Songbook Vol. III," where he features superstar guests, including Eric Clapton, Stevie Wonder, and Dolly Parton. If those classic music greats don't get you off your seat and have you running to HMV, maybe these artists who also have their new CD's out this fall will: Vanessa Carlton, Clay Aiken, Dave Matthews Band, Backstreet Boys, Ricky Martin, Fatboy Slim, Cake, Good Charlotte, Jimmy Eat World, Not

By Choice and Simple Plan. Plus, if you are a fan of those "Greatest Hits" albums - Robbie Williams, Creed and Everclear are bringing out their new CD's to make sure you don't forget their music still rocks. With new music always on the horizon, these known bands and artists, continue to please their fans with their music. It's a great way to send 2004 off with a bang!

if a tree falls in the forest and no one is around to hear it... does a bear still whipe its ass with a white rabbit?? email your answers to: ifyouactuallysendmailhereyourean@idiot.com
ya buncha wankers

Are there any ladies out there who would give me their honest opinion? This man has his genitals pierced and is giving some very lucky, sexy women the chance to try it out.....let me know what you all think!

i am a single mom here at n.a.i.t and the people here really really piss me off! And why is that every morning when i try to get on the bus it is so full so i have to wait for the next bus and the next bus is so full too! the bus i do get on the handicap seat is being sat on by people. and they wont move! well i guess i might be nice enough to let them sit there because i guess ignorance and stupidity should be a disability. This is a school of technology, so where are the smart people picking up after themselves, not playing with the crosswalk button and driving safely???? from someone who takes school seriously

I dedicate this to all my fellow vertically challenged individuals you know who you are Two hobbits walk into a bar where one of them picks up a barfly. They take her to a local motel; the first hobbit goes into the motel room while the other waits outside. Once the door closes, the hobbit on the outside hears strange noises through the door, "I can't do it, I can't do it, I CAN'T DO IT!" In the morning, the second hobbit asks the first, "How did it go?" The first one answers. "It was embarrassing. I simply couldn't do it." The second hobbit shook his head. "Manhood problems, eh?" "No. I couldn't get on the bed!"

yoyoyo SOUCH side fo life Mofo, welding bla bla bla. anyway we need some more sexy ladies over here not that the 2 out of the 4 women that are there now aren't hot but..... we just need more sweet thangs, like the girl who like the hot guys in cov-erall's, we'er all at souch baby. from the young PuNk Friendship! mysterious cement of the soul! Sweetener of life! and solder of society!

There are many East Indians in NAIT. So I have created the following group to provide a platform for East Indians to talk, express their views and make new friends. Come and join the group and let the fun begin !!!
http://groups.yahoo.com/group/Eternal_Love

Ok. Thats the last straw. This is to all you people out there. You know who you are. NAIT is not an airport. Do you miss your couch and TV that much? Is it so hard to carry the damn thing? I'm talking about your backpacks with wheels. C'mon people!! Even 5 year old's can carry their own bags to school! If I have to make room on the bus/hallway/cafeteria line one more time because of your pathetic laziness/weakness I'm gonna kick your goddamn bag across the hall.

To the moron naming himself, Mr.Show on HBO. Why don't you use your brain to answer why Chinese delivery doesn't have all you can eat rice. How about I order pizza and ask for all you can eat bread sticks, and ask for one stick every ten minutes? It's people like you that make me question our education system.

How come all the guys in the business tower wear trucker hats? Do they feel that optimistic about their 'business' careers? Maybe they should add trucker hats to one of their cute little posters we saw in T109 about what to wear and what not to wear?

There is just something about a woman in scrubs that does it for me! If you are a woman in scrubs and need a patient, I can BE that patient. I'll cut off my leg and glue on a wooden one if you want to play pirates.
P.S. No dental experiments.

P.P.S. Oh, alright any experiments you like.

Hey there Hot Dental Assisting Girls
I would like to meet a hot Dental Assisting Girl
I walk by you all on my way to class and check you all out you all look sooooo fine hockeylover_853@hotmail.com

I'm resopnding to firstly the dental assistants. I'm a single business student. So there is a good guy looking for ladies with steady job prospects. Just in case I need a sugar momma. So if you like big guys find me. Secondly T0A 0M0 is not a bad postal code just a small town, and my mom says i'm a winner. BIG-GUY@TOWER

i want to ride the elbino cowboy, keep out of the sun buddy. we're all pullin for ya.
~smoochie

Seriously people are we all in junior high?? If you really need to let everyone know that you smoke pot or shop at the gap, write it in at the grapevines, not all over our bloody elevators! Besides, you'll reach more people this way!

hey hot lovin, it would help to know which gender you prefer in a date...

Bi-curious single white female looking for a single white female who is also bi-curious. I am 5'7", average build, blue-ish eyes, tattoos and piercings. Write back thru the grapevines.

A to the b to the word to the cute girl in Physics.
That green tack suit is SO HOT RIGHT NOW.

We should meet and discuss our future, yeah future SPOONING.
Can I get a thumbs up?
Thumbs up like nobodys business.
Anyways, I purpose we MEET, soon!
Common market, Thursday, over French Toast.
Possibly with a syrup reserve.
See you there my beauty.
Smell you later.
-Soon-to-be-..... you're funtwin.

Word to Ash and Alex hanging out in business/tower.
Lifers for life! See you around, but not you Ash, quit AVOIDING ME. Jeesh, remember our good times?
Does sitting on the ground mean NOTHING TO YOU.
See you at the mart. baha

To the East Indian guy in business with dark and curly hair and brown eyes. I love how you always have a beard. Your style is impeccable. I love the way you dress. And the look on your face as you daydream in class is cute. I am watching you.

Darth Maul is the coolest guy in school.
Sincerely,
Some hot girl.
