The Why Behind The What

The film, Chariots of Fire, tells the true story of two track and field Olympians. They competed in the 1924 Summer Olympics in Paris, France; they both won gold medals. Eric Liddle from Scotland won the 400m and Harold Abrahams from England won the 100m. They were both asked the exact same question, “Why do you run?”

Harold Abrahams responded, “I run because when that gun goes off, I know I have 10 seconds to justify my existence.”

His answer revealed the crushing pressure and enslavement that comes from using temporary things and external efforts to try and bring meaning and purpose to our lives. Even good things—especially good things—can be wrongly used to try and prove our worth.

Eric Liddle was a deeply committed Christian. When he was asked the same question he responded, “God made me fast, and when I run, I feel His pleasure.”

Eric Liddle had learned the truth that finding pleasure in God and believing that God finds pleasure in us is the only way to live free. And in doing so he surrendered his own ambitions, his own dreams, his own hopes, his life for the cause of Christ. Liddle went on to be a missionary to China where he died at the age of 43 from an inoperable brain tumor. His last words are recorded to have been: “It’s complete surrender.”

Why are you involved with Royal Rangers? Why do you work so hard to get badges and to advance through the program? Even something as wonderful as church programs can be just one more attempt to “justify my existence.” When we perform to be accepted and loved by God, we are forgetting about and not fully trusting in Jesus’ perfect performance on our behalf!

If you can say something similar to what Liddle said: “God gave me an interest in his creation so when I am camping I feel his pleasure” or “God gave me the ability to learn how to tie knots, start a fire, or train others and so I do it as worship to Him” – then you have tapped into the truth that real surrender is realizing that everything is from God and for God.

Earl L. Haima
Chartering Coordinator

“Chartering is a unique and beneficial program that allows churches to receive discounts and exclusive resources when they register (charter) their Royal Rangers program with the national office. Chartering provides important information to the national Royal Rangers ministry that enables them to monitor and shape the success and well-being of Royal Rangers and supports the ongoing development and improvement of the ministry.” Quote from the National Royal Rangers website.

The next charter period (2015-2016) begins August 15, 2015 and continues through October 31, 2015. Each outpost is encouraged to renew their charter for this period so as to be able to take advantage of the benefits of a chartered outpost. To review all of these benefits, please go to the National Royal Rangers website, www.royalrangers.com and click on the Charter Link.

A total of 53 outposts chartered in the New York District for the 2014-2015 charter period with 1,437 leaders and boys chartered. If your group did not charter for the last period, I would encourage you to get prepared now, so you can charter beginning August 15, 2015.

A special welcome to our newest outpost, Outpost 291, Living Word Assembly of God, Toronto, Ontario, Canada.

It's not just about the activities but it's about the adventure!
By Tom Sember

As a young boy, I liked nothing more than to hang around my father’s workbench; looking at all the tools that hung on the pegboard he had hanging on the wall. I always made sure that I was with him as he began a new project, always willing to lend a hand; the only problem was that I was quite unsure what each tool did or what we were trying to accomplish. Sure I could watch him work with them but sometimes I needed direction in using them. You see it wasn’t so much about the activity of using the tools as it was about the adventure of learning the why.

In 1 Samuel chapter 3, we find a young man named Samuel, who was ministering to the Lord before Eli (v.1), the only problem was that in verse 7 it states “Now Samuel did not yet know the Lord, nor had the word of the Lord yet been revealed to him.” It reminded me of the times when I was helping my dad in his workshop but really had no idea what I was doing with each tool I grabbed. It wasn’t until he took the time to explain what each tool did; how to use it properly, it was only then that the adventure began.

Now even though Eli was an older man, whose eyesight had begun to grow dim, God still used him to share with Samuel. Eli gave the advice Samuel needed to hear to answer the voice that called Samuel as he slept, to go beyond just an activity but to an adventure with God.

Today, boys maybe ministering to the Lord in their homes and churches like Samuel but may not know the Lord personally. They maybe hearing God calling but there is no one there to give them direction in how to answer – enter the Royal Ranger Leader, the person who will help direct the young man to learn the ways of the Lord through the many opportunities. The mentor who will share about Christ like character, servant leadership, and not just about the activities but the greatest adventure a young man can start – a personal relationship with Jesus Christ – He is the why behind the what!

1 Samuel 3:1-10 (NASB) Now the boy Samuel was ministering to the Lord before Eli. And word from the Lord was rare in those days, visions were infrequent. It happened at that time as Eli was lying down in his place (now his eyesight had begun to grow dim and he could not see well), and the lamp of God had not yet gone out, and Samuel was lying down in the temple of the Lord where the ark of God was, that the Lord called Samuel; and he said, “Here I am.” Then he ran to Eli and said, “Here I am, for you called me.” But he said, “I did not call, lie down again.” So he went and lay down. The Lord called yet again, “Samuel!” So Samuel arose and went to Eli and said, “Here I am, for you called me.” But he answered, “I did not call, my son, lie down again.” Now Samuel did not yet know the Lord, nor had the word of the Lord yet been revealed to him. So the Lord called Samuel again for the third time. And he arose and went to Eli and said, “Here I am, for you called me.” Then Eli discerned that the Lord was calling the boy. And Eli said to Samuel, “Go lie down, and it shall be if He calls you, that you shall say, “Speak, Lord, for Your servant is listening.” So Samuel went and lay down in his place. Then the Lord came and stood and called as at other times, “Samuel! Samuel!” And Samuel said, “Speak, for Your servant is listening.”

461 Response of NY Training Camp
by Don Snyder

Eight young men (pictured above, that’s me in the middle... ok so I’m not so young.) completed their Emergency Preparedness Merit at the 2015 NY Royal Rangers Junior Leadership Training Academy’s Mission Action Camp!

We clarified the goal of the preparedness merit: to assist the family, the church and our communities during emergencies and disasters. Emergency management communication and interaction was covered with 911 and the Incident Command/Unified Command System.

During our training we studied and discussed how to properly handle situations such as fire, utility outages, hazardous materials, food poisoning, auto emergencies, water/boats, severe weather/nature and how to work alongside of first responders and to help plan mobilization. Also discussed were situations such as a large scale utility collapse, economic crash, civil disturbances and terrorism. And we developed personal emergency “Go Kits” as suggested by www.prepare.ny.gov.

Using materials provided by FEMA and Convoy of Hope, we covered crowd and traffic control in disasters, as well as the operation of a Point of Distribution site.

Thanks to the Greene AG and Pastor Doug Harding for allowing us to use the church as a training site. The Rangers attended a church Emergency Operations Program presentation on Wednesday evening of our camp. Greene AG responded very positively to emergency preparedness and the extension of their witness in their community.

In summary, the Rangers in the Mission Action Camp are better prepared to be a blessing in their churches and communities when an emergency or disaster presents itself. The Rangers in the Missions Camp developed a unique and amusing identity in times of an incident!

Stay Alive 3 “The Circle”

For the sake of this discussion let us say that; “A Survival Situation is any situation that puts us out of our comfort zone, leaves us very dependent on ourselves for determining how to proceed and brings us face to face with dire consequences,” then we’re all talking about the same thing. And many of these difficult episodes of our lives will happen far, far from the woods.

We already attempted to confront our anxiety and establish communication in Part 1. We supplied ourselves with safe drinking water in Part 2. If the problem is bigger than those two issues we need to size it up and respond effectively.

Survival literature seems to indicate that about 15 to 20% of people dumped into a survival situation are able to do that, respond effectively. Many others freeze up, can only function minimally or make choices and decisions that make matters worse. As Royal Rangers we are supposed to be Ready. I want to be the kind of Ready that is effective. Continued on Page 8
The Importance of Ranger Specific Training

By Steve Schultz
National Training Coordinator

Confident, knowledgeable, efficient, competent, productive, excellent reputation, experienced, and servant leader—we would all like to have these words used to describe us. Royal Rangers who embrace training may very well develop that type of legacy.

Since Royal Rangers was founded in 1962, it has stressed the importance of excellence in training. The current Royal Rangers training plan includes six tracks, a training chart can be found at the following link: http://royalrangers.com/training/adult/.

For this article, let’s focus on the outpost leader track. Starting the training process for outpost leaders as soon as possible after they become involved in Rangers is a key to their success. The Outpost Leader Advancement Levels (OLAL) is designed to equip our adult leaders at four levels.

The Ready level offers two 1-day training events, called Ranger Basics and Ranger Essentials. Both of these training events offer information to help new leaders understand the vision, mission, values, and methods specific to Royal Rangers. They are also introduced to the advancement system, meeting components, uniforms and group identity, how to create mentoring opportunities, the patrol system, planning, how to present the salvation message, develop and present devotions, and much more.

The Safety level training can be taken in a classroom setting or online. This training addresses the need for providing a safe environment both in the weekly meeting and events outside the local church building. It also covers protecting children from sexual abuse, bullying, drugs, and alcohol. Leaders also complete a nationally recognized First Aid/CPR certification course.

The Trained level offers two national training event opportunities. National Elementary Education Conference (NEEC) is a 2-day and 1-night training event for both men and women leaders working with Ranger Kids. The NEEC is offered in a retreat setting, utilizing hands on learning. The National Rangers Ministry Camp (NRMC) focuses on male leaders working with the Discovery, Adventure, and Expedition levels. This is a 3-day and 2-night camp. Both of these events offer specific training on ways to connect with boys so leaders can build friendships and mentoring opportunities. They also have powerful spiritual challenge sessions.

The Advanced level offers the World Class Outpost Seminar (WCO) as a 1½-day seminar. This seminar works best when teams of leaders attend together. The team will learn to evaluate their local outpost’s strengths and weaknesses. They will learn to develop a vision and purpose statement and build an action plan to grow and develop into a “world class outpost.”

All four levels also have practical applications that help put into practice things the leaders have learned. These are listed on our website as the Ready ticket, the Safety ticket, the Trained ticket, and the Advanced ticket. Leaders can take the training events available in their area at any time since there is no set order that training events must be taken. This opens up training immediately to new leaders.

The local districts offer Ranger Basics, Ranger Essentials, and the Safety course (classroom option) in a classroom setting. Contact your local district training coordinator to see what events are in your area. The Safety online course can be taken at any time by going to http://nationalroyalrangers.eleapcourses.com/. NEEC, NRMC, and WCO are offered by the national office at the national events registration page: http://royalrangers.com/training/schedule/.

As leaders gain training, they grow and develop in many ways—all leading closer to a legacy of excellence. Start or continue your training journey today.

Greetings New York District Royal Rangers
by Dwight Walters

The signs of Christ’s return seem to be more frequent than ever. Whether it’s natural signs or man’s attempt to change the truth made clear to us in God’s Word. As leaders, this only should motivate us to “Blow the Trumpet in Zion….and Sound the Alarm...” that day of the Lord is coming (Joel 2:1). Our time to mentor young men and show them the way to Christ is limited – let’s make the most of it!

As you well know, being a Ranger leader is not always easy. It doesn’t always fit neatly into our schedule, or even our budget. But I’ve always been encouraged by the dedication and commitment of leaders throughout the New York district who are willing to make those sacrifices to help a young man or another leader and make a difference in their life. I encourage you to not be weary in your efforts (Gal. 6:9), it will be worth it. Sometimes you’ll see the impact right away in a boy’s life, sometimes it may be years later. I recently had a young man text me and want to discuss starting Rangers in his church. I had not seen or talked to him for over 15 years. He was inquiring about how he could start Rangers in his church and start making a difference in boys’ lives, like Rangers had made a difference in his life.

Take advantage of the national & regional events coming up soon. There’s NRMC in Maryland in September; WCO in Connecticut in October; Territorial FCF Rendezvous in Greene, NY in October, EMPOWER 16 Regional Leaders Conference in Harrisburg, PA in January and National Camporama next July. Take the next step in leadership training so you be a more effective leader. And make sure you give your boys and leaders the opportunity to experience these incredible, life-changing events. So as we finish out 2015 – keep strong. Whether you are serving in the local outpost, involved in adult or junior leadership training or planning the next big event – remember to blow the trumpet and sound the alarm – and share the good news that Christ is coming back soon! Let’s be READY as we walk daily with Him.
The Adirondack chapter TRACE will be held on October 2 - 4. Members (only) attend and enjoy all of the colonial activities, competitions and crafts. This is an annual event that encourages Old-Timers and Young Bucks to develop more skills and to experience God’s creation in a rugged, outdoor environment. We are looking forward to seeing you in Greene. Please bring an item that you can donate for the Missions Auction.

What FCF Means To Boys

By - Paulie "Spike" Martin
National Scout

FCF, has taught me so many great things. Leadership, humility, servant hood, respect, and what it means to be a follower of Jesus Christ. I have been in FCF since 2008, and have looked up to many men since, and I have never been disappointed by the actions of these men. These men have taught me everything I have learned about what it means to be in FCF, not by what they have said, but by their actions. John 13:35 says this, "By this everyone will know that you are my disciples, if you love one another." This verse sums up what FCF is. I have moved up in the ranks of FCF thanks to the men I have looked up, whether they know I looked up to them or not, their actions have created me, the National Scout from the Adirondack Chapter.

The beauty of FCF is that by teaching boys the "cool" things about the frontiersman life, you teach them life lessons that Jesus Christ taught his disciples. FCF means a lot to me and I plan on staying in it my entire life to give back to future boys the same way the men above me did to me and all of my great friends.

Stay Alive 3 Conclusion

We are in a position that we will have to deal with what's going on in our heart. We like to think that our brain is in charge. Not necessarily so. Reaction times are faster than pondering times. And our highest priorities are buried in the heart. That's why many Military Trainers say it is not so much the Warrior Training that gets soldiers through survival situations, but a matter of heart.

Know that the wisdom and skills that we pick up when dealing with ourselves in the woods will be just as effective in every aspect of our personal and professional lives.

We have already started to address our anxiety and attempted to establish communication in Part 1. And we went about securing safe water in Part 2. It is time to assess what the situation is and establish the priorities we will respond to.

That anxiety is going to come and go in waves. We have to realize that and minimize the detrimental effect and use, even enjoy, the beneficial effect. It can really motivate you to excellence.

People under severe stress often report a narrowing of vision as the catecholamines race through their blood in the fight or flight response. We need to get past that to have a wider vision. We need to clearly see everything that may be a threat and everything that will be helpful to us in this difficulty.

It's time to establish the circle. The circle of priorities.

In Fourth Grade our gym teacher wanted us to achieve the President's Physical Fitness Award. This required a long grueling run along the perimeter of the school grounds. It was an agony for me but I was determined not to quit, as some did each time. The burning in my lungs, the stitch in my side and the agony of the cramping in my legs seemed overpowering. So I ended up doing a thing in my head. I made a circle around myself and only paid attention to what was in the circle. And tried to keep the pain out of the middle of the circle. And I made a pattern to proceed. Step – Step Breath, Step -Step Breath. All the way to the end. I didn't look at the people out front, didn't bother with the people passing me and teasing. I drew a circle and worked the plan. If you read about high altitude rescues or people in prisoner of war camps you see how common and useful this tool is.

Make a circle around yourself. If you're sitting in the decompressed cabin of an air craft and that oxygen mask comes down, your circle is very small. It's you. Even if you're sitting next to the lovely Betty Sue Ligistratten and she's having trouble with her mask, you better get yours on first. She will survive the momentary hypoxia until she gets assistance. If no one gets your mask on you when you black out, you are a dead man. The circle is very small at the start. You can add people later.

It's time to establish the circle of priorities and assess what tools are available to make this all work.

Is first aid the priority? Is shelter the priority? Do you have to travel to evacuate your present position immediately? What tools are at hand? What tools and knowledge do you have in your brain? Are there others with you? How are they doing? What do you have in your heart that can build them up and help them if they're freaking out? Publicly, or privately where it doesn't always show.

This Circle thing is a very natural part of life. We have circles of friends. Some close and others that we don't let so close. Our friends influence us. Sometimes it's a good influence, sometimes not. Again we prioritize the circle. The only friends who influence us are the ones we let influence us. For good or for bad, we choose.

So to be good at this survival thing you have to come to grips with your heart. And determine the priorities of our lives. The way I think about it is that there is a chair in my heart. It is like a Throne of Ultimate Authority. Or you can consider it your own personal Prime Directive. As we grow we develop the idea that we each are the ultimate priority of our heart. And many abdicate their thrones to other people, ideas or chemicals of every kind. How sad. We weren’t created to be satisfied with that.

Some time ago I found that the most worthwhile thing I could do with my heart was to beg Jesus to clean me and be the boss of my throne. It cost Him to do it but I want to make Him happy about it. I want to love Him with a love that obeys. Serve Him however I can and get to know Him. How He feels. What He wants. And be the way He wants me to do them and that makes Him glad. I think that's what He was talking about when He said “Deny yourself, pick up your cross and follow Me.”

There now exists the possibility that everything that shakes our world, invades our comfort zone, causes us pain, increases our discomfort or even threatens our very existence, God will use to make His reality clear to a creation that desperately needs to know it. If we attend to Him in the circle. And we will have His provision of Wisdom, Ideas, Resources Inspiration and Discernment. The God who knows exactly how many hairs are on our head knows exactly where we are. Knows exactly what's going on. And He will supply everything we need to complete His will in our lives.

And even when we are cut to the heart. And our own view of ourselves is called into question. We can do as Moses did and fall on our face before God. In the temple of the circle of our heart and have Father minister to us. To identify truths that demand we mature in some area. And to identify and defend those parts of us that are right and pleasing to him

That's my plan. Because even after death, I want to Stay Alive

PathFinder Missions

Founded in 1995, PathFinder Missions

exists to construct churches, Ranger camps, Christian schools, clinics, orphanages, missionary dwellings, or anything a missionary needs to build God’s Kingdom at home in the USA, or in the most remote areas of the world.

Teams need a variety of construction talents; such as carpentry, masonry, framework, post and beam work, and native material construction. Accepting the challenge of a Royal Rangers PathFinder Missions trip may also require you to use your campcraft, woodsmanship, backpacking, and survival skills.

PathFinder Missions trips are classified by three levels of intensity, from entry level to advanced, and awarded accordingly:

The Bronze PathFinder Mission — U.S. Missions construction projects outside one’s home district. (Such as Indian reservations or in urban settings.)

The Silver PathFinder Mission — Overseas projects to moderately accessible construction sites with basic conveniences. (Such as churches, Rangers camps, or orphanages.)

The Gold PathFinder Mission — Overseas construction projects to harsh, remote areas of the world where other teams are unable to go due to the tough living conditions of these assignments. (Such as packing or boating equipment and building supplies to site.)

Tell us about an interesting activity or event that Your Outpost participated in recently. (Photos welcome) Keep the article brief as space is limited. Perhaps one of the boys wants to write about why he loves Royal Rangers.
