

Introducing the RR-MK Assist Program

With the intent of supporting AGWM personnel worldwide, the national USA Royal Rangers Ministries office has introduced the RR-MK Assist Program. This program allows missionary families to seamlessly enjoy the benefits of the Royal Ranger ministry for their boys as they move back and forth to and from the mission field.

The RR-MK Assist Program was the brainchild of Doug Marsh, an AGWM missionary and former "Missionary Kid" (MK). Doug remembers growing up in Peru and one day opening up a special package from Springfield, MO that had the material to get he and his brother started in Royal Rangers. Doug's father was their outpost commander and Doug and his brother were the only two Rangers. From the humble beginning of a family outpost, Doug has been active in Royal Rangers ever since. He went on to earn the Gold Medal of Achievement and now serves as the director of Royal Rangers International (RRI).

The core idea behind the new program is that boys should not lose out on the exciting

Ranger ministry just because their families are called to live in a foreign country. In the past, many boys joined Royal Rangers in their local church, but then had to stop when they went to another country that either did not have Royal Rangers or was using a version different from that used in the USA.

Now, by simply sending an email with "RR-MK Assist Program" in the subject line to RRI, a missionary family will receive a Word document with all the necessary details to get started. Once they charter, the program materials are then provided to the missionary family free of charge.
