

is helping the program grow by leaps and bounds.

The Dominican Royal Rangers have been active in personal evangelism. One group from the eastern part of the island reported 30 persons accepted Christ as Saviour during a 2-day camp-out.

Wherever they go, Dominican Royal Rangers carry their tracts as well as the necessary camping gear.

The leaders of the Dominican Royal Rangers have visited the National Police and the Secretary of Armed Forces to explain their program and purpose. They also were able to leave evangelistic materials in the hands of these government leaders.

The Secretary of Armed Forces was especially kind and sent an official letter of recognition offering other services of benefit to the Royal Rangers work.

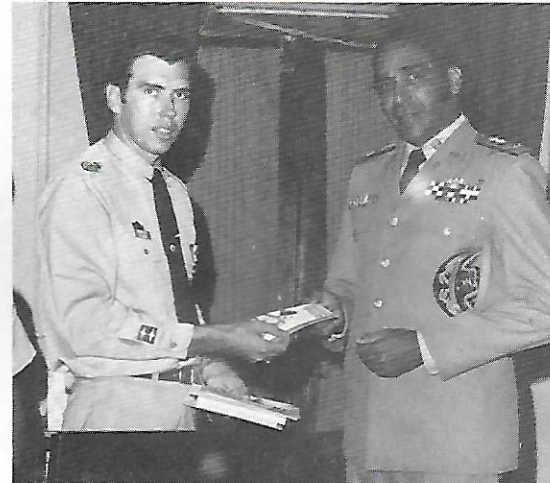

The need for trained leaders is a major problem of the Exploradores del Rey. At the present time I am translating the leadership training course and Missionary Harold Calkins in El Salvador is translating the Royal Rangers Bible study course.

Please pray for the continued success of the Royal Rangers program in Latin America. Thousands of other boys from the crowded barrios of the cities and from impoverished rural areas need to belong to Jesus and be Exploradores del Rey.

Is there anything more wonderful than saving lost humanity? Yes! A young boy nurtured in Christian faith is worth at least a half a life more. Missionary money, men, and methods invested in prevention are much wiser investments than costly rehabilitation.

Royal Rangers started the church of tomorrow yesterday!
