NAE makes evacuation plans for hospital in Vietnam

MINNEAPOLIS— A Richfield pastor was a member of a threeman delegation that went to South Vietnam to work on plans to evacuate personnel at a church-sponsored hospital in the event of a North Vietnamese takeover.

The 100-bed children's hospital at Danang was given to the World Relief Commission of the National Association of Evangelicals (NAE) five years ago by the U.S. Marines, according to Peter Unruh, pastor of Wooddale Baptist Church and a member of the delegation.

There are about 15 Americans working on the hospital staff who will be evacuated if Danang falls to the North Vietnamese, Mr. Unruh said.

He said the hospital is "outstanding." It serves North Vietnamese and Viet Cong as well as South Vietnamese.

Danang, which is about 400 miles north of Saigon, is almost completely isolated now.

Mr. Unruh said there seems to be a spiritual movement in South Vietnam.

FEBC station nears completion in Philippines

LUZON—The Far East Broadcasting Company (FEBC) plans to complete its 250,000-watt AM radio station here this month.

According to Robert H. Bowman, president of FEBC, the powerful transmitter will beam the Bible message to millions of people in mainland China and Southeast Asia.

The project has been named "Open Door to China Phase II." Phase I of the operation was completed in June 1974 and has been broadcasting the gospel in Chinese, Japanese, Korean, Russian, and English from station HLDA on Cheju Island, South Korea.

The new station (DWRF) will have a direct overwater path across the South China Sea to south China and Southeast Asia.

"Station HLDA with DWRF will further open the door for a gospel ministry to all of east China, where the vast majority of China's teeming population is located," stated Bowman. "Closed to foreign missionary endeavor and local church evangelism, Chinese will have the opportunity to hear radio programs offering peace in Christ."

The 250,000-watt transmitter is five times larger than the largest AM station in the U.S.

U.S. smoking, drinking hit by Episcopalians

PERRYSBURG, OHIO—Americans smoke and drink too much and should cut back as a way to increase the world food supply, the Episcopal Diocese of Ohio declared here.

Delegates to the diocese's annual convention said the grain used to make alcohol could feed people and the feitilizer spread on tobacco could be diverted into food production.

The resolution on smoking and drinking in light of the hunger crisis was one of a number of social, political, and economic issues adopted by the convention.
