1993 Royal Rangers of the Year named

Eight regional finalists were named National Royal Rangers of the Year in July during an awards luncheon in Springfield, Mo.

The Ranger of the Year award is one of the highest and most prestigious a Royal Ranger can attain. It is awarded each year to eight winners who win sectional, district, and regional Ranger of the Year competition.

The awards ceremony was held at the Assemblies of God Headquarters. The eight finalists were given their awards by General Superintendent G. Raymond Carlson and by National Commander Ken Hunt.

Winners received their medals following months of rigorous competition among hundreds of Royal Rangers across the United States.

These winners are now 1-year members of the National Royal Rangers Council. In addition, they will be given opportunities to travel within their regions to speak at Royal Rangers functions.

The 1993 national winners are Brad Dickey, Great Lakes; Jeremy Christian, Gulf; Virgil Kling, North Central; G. Marcus Moore, Northeast; Ramon Deslauriers, Northwest; Kyle

Carlson honored

G. Raymond Carlson (center) was honored for his years of leadership with the Assemblies of God and his service to the National Association of Evangelicals during an appreciation banquet held in Minneapolis, Minn., prior to General Council. Presenting the honor at the banquet are NAE's President Don Argue (left) and Executive Director Billy A. Melvin. (Argue also serves as president of North Central Bible College in Minneapolis.)
