Rangers Is the Life!

I've been a Royal Ranger from age 6. My parents were missionaries in Peru, South America, where I was born, when I learned the meaning of the Royal Rangers Emblem. My dad helped me. Then he proudly pinned that patch onto my shirt. From that day, I've been in Royal Rangers. It's awesome!

Rangers is more than a program. It's a lifestyle. You laugh and enjoy unforgettable times with your friends. It's fun! You learn to do things other boys only dream of, and you are prepared to lead the charge, to serve others well.

Laugh. Learn. Lead. That's why I love being a Royal Ranger!

As I look back, Rangers built my confidence. I discovered I really could be a godly man in spite of the pressures to conform to low expectations. Because I determined to learn and lead in Rangers when my peers chose the easy way, I could stick it out and come through when others could not.

Ranger confidence is when you can say, "I am. I can." You can be a godly young man, and you can do what God asks you.

That's the Rangers adventure—laughing, learning, and leading while discovering you have what it takes to be a godly young man in today's world.

Yes, Rangers is the life. Let's live it!

WELCOME TO THE ADVENTURE OF ROYAL RANGERS!

By John Hicks
National Communications Coordinator

 On July 20, 1969, Neil Armstrong became the first human to ever walk on another celestial body, the Earth's moon. Traveling in Apollo 11, Neil Armstrong, Buzz Aldrin, and Michael Collins made a historic journey through space to experience the adventure of their lives.

Today, we enjoy many benefits from the courageous efforts of those great pioneers of space. Many new discoveries in science, medicine, technology, communication, and many other areas have been achieved as a direct result of the space exploration program. Many of these discoveries have become commonplace yet so essential to our everyday lives.

Although most Royal Rangers today may never travel through space, you have many opportunities to enjoy adventures with friends, leading to growth and learning in other areas that can benefit you and others. Through your involvement in Royal Rangers, you will experience many opportunities to grow into complete Christlike manhood.

Neil Armstrong

Lunar Lander

Neil walks on the moon!

Hey! You can become an adventurer like Neil Armstrong, too!

Luke 2:52 says,

"And Jesus grew in wisdom and in stature and in favor with God and men." According to this verse, Jesus grew in four ways: mentally (grew in wisdom), physically (grew in stature), spiritually (grew in favor with God), and socially (grew in favor with men). The goal of the Royal Rangers ministry is to take you on a journey to full and complete manhood according to the pattern of Jesus. You, too, will grow in these four ways...

MENTALLY – Your mind will grow stronger by learning new skills and experiencing new activities.

PHYSICALLY – Your body will grow stronger as you practice good health habits, proper diet, and exercise.

SPIRITUALLY – Your spirit will grow deeper as you develop the basic Christian disciplines of prayer, Bible reading, church attendance, and telling others about Christ (evangelism).

SOCIALLY – Your relationships with others will grow closer as you make new friends, work together in teams, and experience leadership opportunities in your patrol and outpost.

Just as the early pioneers of space sought an adventure that would benefit all mankind, you can learn and grow through the adventure of Royal Rangers that will lead you to become the man of God you were created to be, boldly influencing your world for Christ!

RANGERS IN THE

Living the Rangers Code in Daily Life & Ministry

By John Hicks
National Communications Coordinator

In 1962, our first national commander, Johnnie Barnes, started the Royal Rangers ministry with the purpose of building boys and young men into world-changing disciples of Christ. Through the years, hundreds of thousands of boys have participated in the program and have learned the values and principles embodied in the Royal Rangers Code. Many of these young men have remained as adult leaders, influencing the next generation. Although others do not have a direct role in the ministry, they continue to live their daily lives by the principles and standards of the Rangers Code, influencing their world for Christ in a variety of ways. One such person is Hal Donaldson.

Johnnie Barnes

Hal Donaldson

REAL WORLD

Hal first joined Royal Rangers in 1967 with his two younger brothers, Steve and David. Their father was the pastor of a small, rural church and was a firm believer in the value of Royal Rangers and the positive influence it had on boys.

Hal was only twelve years old when his father was killed in an auto accident, leaving his mother with the challenge of raising three young boys alone. Finding work was difficult, and financial hardships set in immediately. The family soon went on welfare just to make ends meet.

Hal remembers, "When you're twelve years old and you lose a parent, you really begin to ask God the hard questions: 'Why did this happen? Why me?' For a long time, my mother was grieving, and we didn't want to burden her with our questions. So we often turned to our Royal Rangers commanders for help and answers, and they were there for us."

Hal credits his Royal Rangers leaders for helping him maintain his faith in God through his father's death and the subsequent struggles the family endured. "I was the oldest boy in our family, and in a situation like ours, you have to grow up pretty quickly. I began looking for people to emulate, for role models, and I found a lot of that in my Rangers commanders. When you've lost your dad, the cupboards are empty, you can't afford a haircut, and your clothes are not up to par, it's very easy to feel inferior. But my Rangers commanders really took me and my two brothers under their wings and nurtured us. They gave me confidence," remembers Hal.

"It would have been easy to become bitter over what had happened, but fortunately we had a church family and a Rangers program that took care of us and really showed us the love of Christ in practical ways. Through it all, I learned God had a purpose in everything He did, and I resolved to keep my faith in Him no matter what."

In 1994, God placed it in Hal's heart to begin a ministry of providing groceries to families in need. One day, with a pickup truck and a load of groceries, Hal went into the most needy areas of his community and began passing out food. Over time, others joined in the effort, and fifteen years later, Convoy of Hope serves millions all around the world each year.

Today, Convoy of Hope provides food and humanitarian assistance to impoverished and needy people all around the world. Over the last ten years, this international effort, one of the largest relief organizations in the world, has mobilized over 200,000 volunteers to serve 30 million people, sharing with them the love of Christ in tangible ways.

"What started out with just one pickup truck has now grown into a fleet of semi trucks, a 300,000 square foot warehouse in Springfield, MO, and additional warehouses on five continents. We partner with AGWM to send supplies to our missionaries and national churches all over the world. God continues to bless and multiply this outreach to the poor and suffering," Hal says.

"I credit Rangers a lot for what I am doing today. Rangers provided an extended family and a feeling that I wasn't alone. I could have easily gone the other direction, turned away from God in bitterness and frustration, but I didn't because I had role models. I had people in my life who told me I had value and that God could do great things in my life."

Hal Donaldson serves as a shining example of a man living by the Rangers Code. During some of the most difficult times of his life,

Convoy of Hope truck

Convoy of Hope helps people all around the world.

Royal Rangers provided stability, compassion, and a foundation upon which Hal's faith could grow and prosper. God wants to use you, too, to impact your world. If you will commit yourself to living by the Rangers Code in your daily life, no matter what happens, God will use your faith to powerfully impact the lives of those around you.

SQUATS

Start with your hands on your hips and your feet shoulder-width apart. Begin squatting down until the tops of your thighs are parallel to the floor. While squatting, swing your arms out in front and keep your head up.

PULL-UPS

Great for biceps, pull-ups can be adapted to whatever is at hand. A good strong tree limb could do nicely.

By Charlie Getty
Strength Training Coach, Evangel University

Physical fitness has long been a core part of the Royal Rangers program. In fact, one of the four ways Royal Rangers seeks to provide growth in boys is through physical growth. We place such a high value on physical development due to our understanding of the impact of physical health on the development of well-balanced, healthy, and equipped young men.

Every Royal Ranger should seek to keep his physical body in as good a condition as possible in order to be better prepared to meet the challenges and adventures of the Ranger life.

In order to assist you in keeping your body in shape, Royal Rangers has enlisted the assistance of Charlie Getty, the strength training coach for Evangel University in Springfield, Missouri. Coach Getty has been involved in coaching football and other sports at Evangel for many years and is a firm believer in the value of personal fitness, not just for sports but for everyday life.

Coach Getty recommends the workout below for older boys in Royal Rangers who are willing to put some serious effort into the pursuit of personal fitness.

This suggested workout is not a beginner's workout. In fact, it could be hard even for experienced athletes. However, the beauty of it is that it can be modified for use by athletes of any age and condition. The basic plan would be to warm up by jogging and stretching first.

Once warmed up, the workout starts with running a two-minute lap around a standard 400-meter track. At the end of the lap, perform fifty body weight squats and run another lap, trying to achieve the same time as the first lap. At the end of the second lap, complete fifty pull-ups. Run a third lap and perform fifty push-ups. Once you've done as many as you can do, rest for thirty seconds. Finish the workout with a fourth lap and fifty body weight squats.

If this routine is too difficult to begin with, try biking the laps instead of running them. If the body weight exercises are too difficult, reduce the number of body weight squats, pull-ups, and push-ups to an acceptable amount for your fitness level and increase the number as you improve your fitness and strength.

It is always best to start slow. The best workout is not the one that has you so sore the next day that you never want to exercise again but the one that leaves you feeling excited about doing it again because you know you can do better! For His glory, see you on the field!

For more information on fitness training, Coach Getty, or Evangel University, visit the school's web site at evangel.edu.

PUSH-UPS

When doing pushups, hands should be flat on the ground directly under the armpits and back should be flat. When coming down, your chest should touch the ground lightly.

SIT-UPS

Lie flat with your knees bent. Place your hands behind your head and slowly bend at the waist to a sitting position. Have someone hold your ankles or tuck your feet under a sofa to keep them firmly on the ground.

A Great New Adventure

As a Ranger, you are accustomed to challenges and adventures that push you to your limits.

by Kent Hulbert

National Campus Missionary Coordinator

There is a growing movement of students, just like you, who are signing up to share Christ in a place where many never thought possible—their schools. In just the past couple of years, over 20,000 students from across the country have accepted a new challenge to reach their friends and schools for Christ. This increasing movement is called Campus Missions. Campus Missionaries are students in middle school, junior high, and high school who view themselves as more than just students who attend their schools but as missionaries to their very own school campuses.

So what does a Campus Missionary do? They focus on five key habits, or commitments, in order to become a stronger follower, or disciple, of Christ. By living these key habits, you can live a life that intentionally reaches your world for Christ. These five habits will help you live out your faith in a great new adventure not only through the next several years but also through the rest of your life.

Are you ready for a change?

A Campus Missionary commits to:

Pray

Talk to God conversationally. Pray daily for friends, teachers, school administrators, and others who need Jesus.

Live

Live a real, consistent Christian faith by reading, studying, and memorizing God's Word and by spending time in personal worship.

Tell

Tell your friends about Jesus.

Serve

Start or join a campus club and look for ways to serve your school.

Give

Consistently be generous with your time, money, and abilities to support your church and its missions and outreach projects.

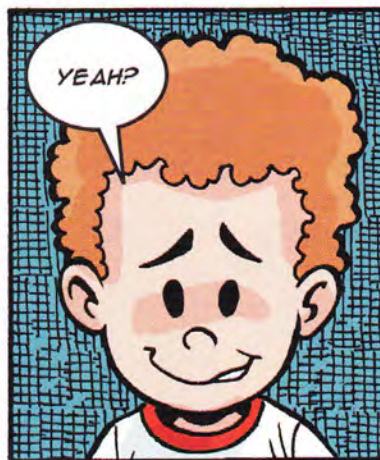

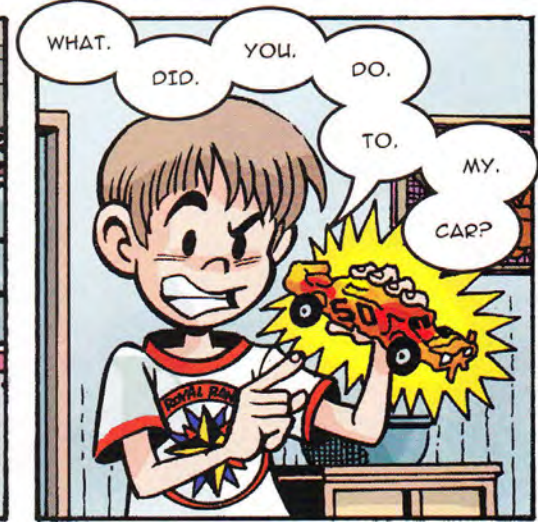

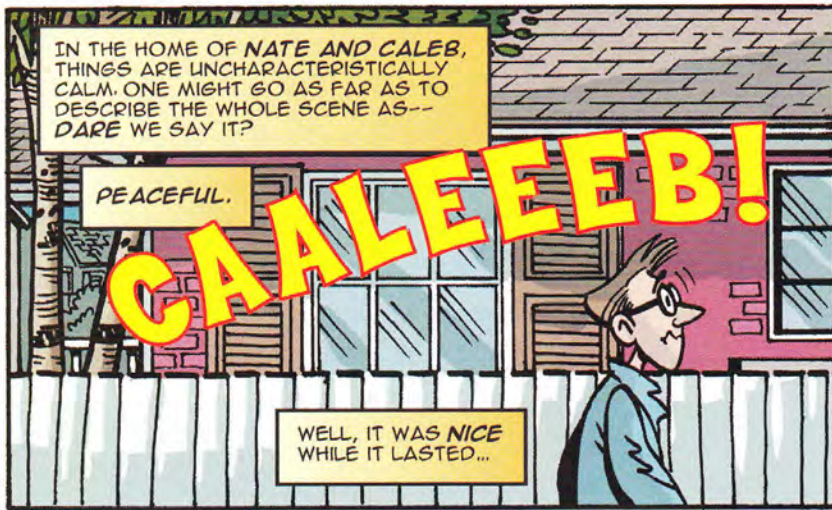

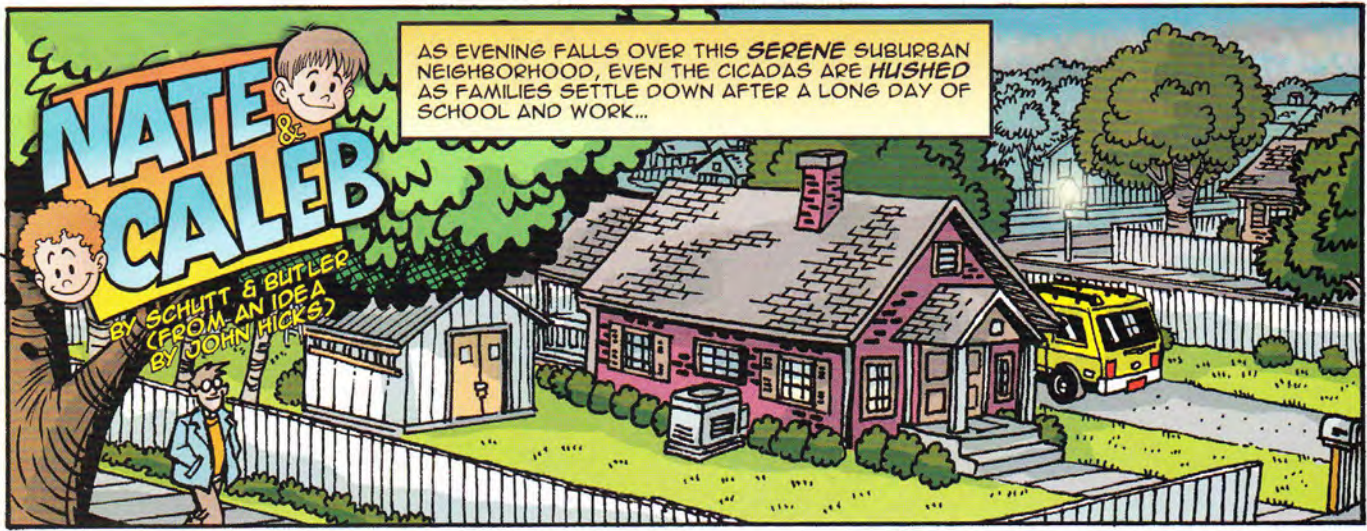

“ I just had to tell you this because it was so cool but I don't know if you remember but I was able to lead a girl to the Lord during study hall. After that she began coming to youth group and bringing her sisters. Well this time she brought her whole family and there are 10 kids in all! They came to youth group with their mom and she accepted the Lord along with 5 of her daughters!! God is so amazing and he is doing some great things! ” - Hannah

Here is What's Happening Thru Other Students

“ I felt called to lead a bible study/small group in my school at bible camp this past summer and when school started I was totally ready to...but I was too wimpy and too scared to ask any of the teachers or my principle or superintendent. I struggled the whole year with asking someone but finally I did-with the Lord's great mercy and grace. He said yes, but I still had to find a room and a teacher to supervise. This took another couple months because once again I put it off, and I deeply regret it. I only was expecting about one other person the first week. But the Lord had different plans; there were eight people there!!! Surprise!! It was awesome though, I brought printouts for everyone and we/mostly I talked about God's love. Week two, 18 people came. Week three, around 30...Week four

WHAT MAKES A SUPER CHRISTIAN SERVICE PROJECT FOR THE GMAP

As printed in the Adventure
Rangers Handbook

Revisions by Jim Allen
National Administrative & Events Coordinator

A Christian Service Project is required to earn the Gold Medal of Achievement. Often there is some confusion between a GMA Christian Service Project and the Christian Service activities required for the Bronze and Silver medals. In other words, what is the difference between a project and an activity? The activities do NOT require you to lead the project only participate. The project is designed to enhance your leadership skills. The GMA project's success is entirely dependent on your leadership! It calls for you to show initiative, determination, and follow-through. Your GMA Christian Service Project can help other Royal Rangers in your outpost complete their Christian Service activity hours.

What makes a good Christian Service Project? It must benefit to someone. It could benefit your church, school, or community. A great way to demonstrate to others what Royal Rangers is would be to find a project that benefits an organization or individual outside of the local church. You should research to determine need, resources required, and resources available. Pictures will be taken before and after the project to accompany your application. In addition, you will maintain a log of the hours you spend on the project and the names of the individuals who help you.

You may want to meet with your leaders and those benefitting from the project to verify the accuracy of your records. In order to qualify as a GMA project, you must supervise at least TWO other people, not including yourself.

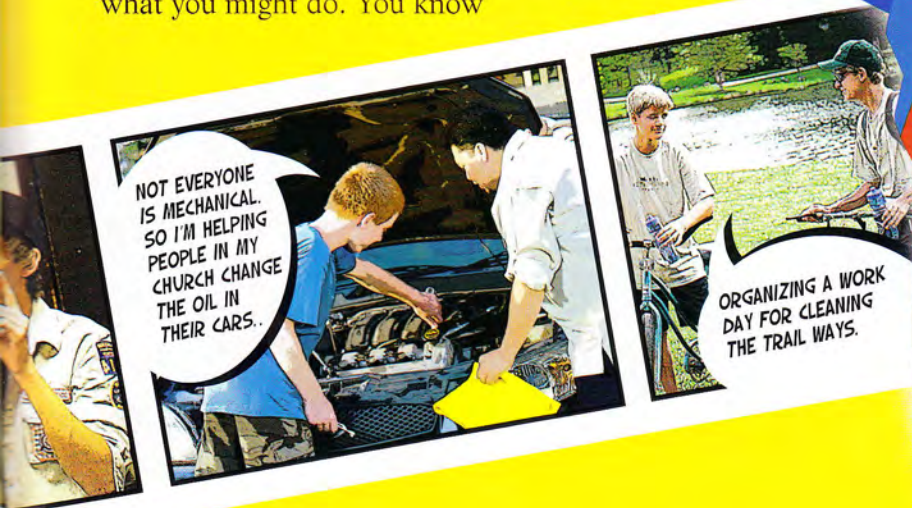

There are no time or size requirements recommended for the project. However, it must provide an opportunity to demonstrate and further develop your leadership skills. Your commander, pastor, teacher, or other community leader may assist in determining an appropriate project. You may begin work on this project as soon as you have earned your Silver Medal of Achievement.

Your project does not have to be original. It could be something that someone else has done. It does, however, have to be initiated and planned by you. Listed below are some examples to help you begin thinking about what you might do. You know your church and community well enough to understand their needs. It's up to you to go out, find a need, and meet it!

- Plan, organize, and implement an after school tutoring or activity program.
- Build or repair playground equipment at a local park or school.
- Consult with the pastor or church board to help design or paint the appropriate parking spaces for people with disabilities.

WHAT MAKES GREAT A CHRISTIAN SERVICE PROJECT FOR THE GMA?

Here are some other unique ideas that you may not have thought of:

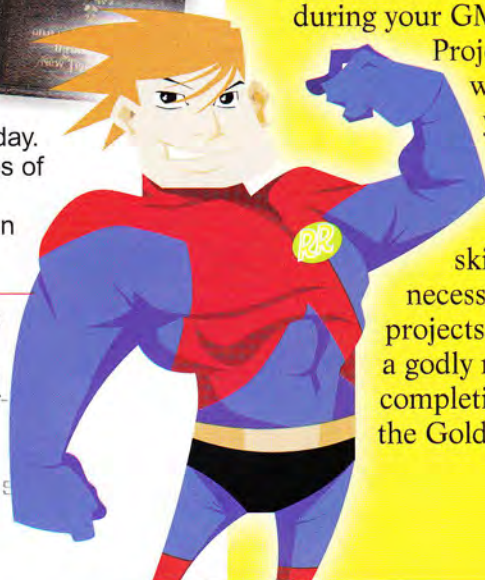

- Collect used backpacks at the end of a school year. Spend the summer raising funds and getting donations to fill the backpacks with personal hygiene items (e.g., shampoo, toothbrush, etc.), sweatshirts, socks, etc. Provide them to a homeless shelter just before Thanksgiving.
- Organize and administer a Child Identification System for a local safety fair. Take digital photos, fingerprints, and a hair sample for DNA identification to aid the parents, police, and the media to quickly identify and locate missing or kidnapped children.
- Build bookcases then hold a book drive to fill the shelves for a recreation room at a rehabilitation center.
- Construct mobile, wooden planters for use by children confined to wheelchairs at the local hospital.

As you can see, the list is only limited by your imagination! Keep in mind, the project may not be a fund-raiser or business venture. Fund-raising is limited to obtaining materials and supplies for the project.

You will learn many things during your GMA Service

Project that will stay with you for many years. You have learned the skills and resourcefulness necessary to take on even bigger projects as you mature and grow into a godly man. Congratulations on completing a very important part of the Gold Medal of Achievement!

My final point will be this, even though I waited for almost 7 months. When I finally decided to step out in faith and have the bible study the Lord was faithful and has blessed me and my school and is continuing to do so!! I am so excited for everything that will happen in the future and praise and thank God for everything that happened in the past. ” - John, North Dakota

Wow!
Who knew?

“ I have a really sad but good story to tell you and hope you pass it on. I recently rededicated my life to Christ! I was a preachers kid growing up and have strayed away from God over the years. I met a guy named John “Bubba” Hyden about 4 years ago at work. We hung out with him and his family for the past couple years and did some not so great things during that time. My family and I moved away for about a year. We moved back at the end of October and got my old job back. Well as a Christian, I think I was drawn back to here for no other reason than to show my fellow co-workers how much God can change lives! I had been talking to Bubba about coming to church and eventually got him and his family to come about 2 months ago! We had a revival in January. On Tuesday night Bubba said the sinners prayer with our pastor!!!! So from that day on he has non-stop been talking about God and how is good He is. Well sadly we lost bubba one week later from a heart attack. So I ask for your prayers for his family during this difficult time. But I think it is awesome how God worked things out in the last week of Bubba's life and that he was saved when he passed away! God is sooooo cool and works things out so neat sometimes. I am starting a campus missions class for our high school students. ” - Austin, Illinois

SodaPop Circuit

Start Here!

Drink water! It's the best thing for you. In this weird soda maze, start by choosing a soda from the group of three at the top left. Now find the exact soda somewhere in another group and jump there. Then select another soda in that new group and look for an identical soda somewhere else. Keep going until you reach the group with the refreshing glass of water at the bottom right. Watch out for dead ends.
