BOYS EVERYWHERE in the world have spiritual, social, and physical needs which must be met. To meet these needs, Royal Rangers is becoming international in its scope.

Royal Rangers groups outside the United States are presently operating in Australia with an estimated membership of 4,000. Recently the Assemblies of God State Conference of New South Wales officially endorsed the Royal Rangers program and designated W.

have their own Royal Rangers handbook — Exploradores del Rey—written by National Royal Rangers Commander Johnnie Barnes, and translated by Benjamin E. Mercado, who serves as the official guide for the development of Royal Rangers in Spanish-speaking countries.

In keeping with the international trend, plans are now being made for a Royal Rangers handbook to be printed in French.

During March and April of this year, Johnnie Barnes, together with Missionary George Davis, Latin America coordinator for Royal Rangers, will visit the Bahamas, Jamaica, Haiti, Guyana, Surinam, and British Honduras to present the Royal Rangers program.

Other countries now meeting boys' needs through the program of Royal Rangers are New Zealand, East Pakistan, Thailand, and Guyana. Royal Rangers is helping to reach, teach, and keep boys for Christ around the world. To accomplish a successful Royal Rangers program in each country will require men who will dedicate themselves to the task of training and leading the boys.
