Retired Army Sergeant W. W. Anderson works with Pastor Patrick J. Donadio and Gerald Silliman to keep active the Royal Rangers outpost in Tok, Alaska.

R. R. Thrive in Alaska

Although the Assembly of God Chapel in Tok, Alaska is only two years old, it has a thriving Royal Rangers program. In community functions, retired Army Sgt. W. W. Anderson works with Pastor Donadio and Gerald Silliman to give a real lift to the Royal Rangers work. The outpost had charge of the Memorial Day service and participated in the Veterans Day activities. This was truly a witness for Christ in this community.

There are 16 boys in the outpost. Work parties were organized by the boys and their leaders which resulted in each boy earning enough money to purchase his complete Royal Rangers uniform. Pastor Patrick Donadio says, "We are praying for even greater progress in this growing work."

Jerry Rainwater (above) of Fort Sam Houston, Texas, receives the Royal Rangers Medal of Valor from Alan E. Gell, Royal Rangers national aide de camp. Jerry saved his sister from drowning.

Upon becoming interested in the Royal Rangers program, Robert Hipple, of Bellflower, California, rededicated his life to God and to working with boys. He is serving presently as the athletic director of the Orange section of the Southern California district's Royal Rangers program. At the Full Gospel Tabernacle in Bellflower, he drives the Sunday school bus. He says, "I realize now that what is taught small children stays with them all their lives."
