And to think, this time last year we thought college football was in the midst of change.

It was, sure, but a bi-coastal Big Ten and unsigned high school prospects signing contracts worth millions of dollars was not something I expected to see in 2022.

College football's transformation into something unrecognizable is only beginning, and no one in the sport – not commissioners, coaches, administrators or the media that cover them – knows where this is headed. Forget projecting the next five or 50 years. The last 12 months have featured more curveballs than Omaha in June.

In the meantime, our work is needed to help fans understand what is happening to a sport they (and we) love so much and give some idea of what next steps may be around the corner, while keeping a watchful eye on those employing nefarious means to advance themselves in a time of upheaval.

It's a lot to digest, but at the end of the day, we'll still have fall Saturdays featuring unforgettable players producing unforgettable moments. Just last year, we saw the Big 12 title decided by inches, breakthrough seasons for Michigan and Georgia, and Cincinnati, doing what many believed was impossible: making the Playoff from outside a power conference. Nobody is forgetting last year's Rose Bowl and Iron Bowl anytime soon, either.

I know you'll all be there chronicling whatever awaits us on and off the field this season. At the FWAA, we hope to help provide tools to make that task easier and more efficient. And membership comes with plenty of benefits to both the member and the sport.

All members have a vote for our All-America team and our major awards and children of members are eligible for the Volney Meece Scholarship, while we all can compete in the annual Best Writing Contest.

Our newly-designed website complements this print directory and is stocked to the brim with information, making membership more valuable than ever in this growing organization.

When you have an issue arise or need assistance, we're here to help. After two seasons unlike anything any of us have experienced, here's hoping this fall is a step toward normalcy. In a sport changing faster than ever and one that looks far different than the sport all of us grew up watching, at least Saturdays will still look the same for awhile. After the last two seasons, I've missed that and if you're reading this, I'm sure you feel the same.

I've been proud to see the work FWAA members did over a difficult, transformative two years. That's only going to continue. Aim for truth and fairness, treat colleagues, subjects and their stories with respect and try to reach out to the younger generation when you can to leave this field better than when you found it. If I can help you, don't hesitate to reach out to me.

I can't wait to see what this season holds. In the same way, I can't wait to read what you all produce from a year that's already been unforgettable.

EDWARD ASCHOFF RISING STAR AWARD

Edward Aschoff was always easy to spot in a press box – not just because of his dapper suit, his unique socks or trademark lapel pin – but also because of his infectious smile, his laugh, and his pure love for whatever assignment he was working on.

Aschoff, a beloved ESPN college football reporter, died in 2019 on Christmas Eve – his 34th birthday – from previously undetected Stage 4 non-Hodgkin's lymphoma in his lungs. He was a bright light in our industry, one the FWAA hopes to honor through the annual Edward Aschoff Rising Star Award.

Each year, the FWAA will recognize one promising journalist no older than 34, who has not only the talent and work ethic it takes to succeed in this business, but also the passion to make it better. Aschoff, a 2008 Florida graduate, loved people, and even as his career at ESPN escalated, he still guided and befriended younger journalists along the way.

The 2022 recipient of the award is Richard Johnson of Sports Illustrated. Like Aschoff, Johnson is a Florida grad. He began his professional career at ESPN in 2015 and later joined SB Nation as a national college football writer the following year. He spent four years working for the site before starting at S/I in the fall of 2021.

"Ed is a prime example of how representation matters," Johnson said. "There are unfortunately too few Black people covering this sport, and for as long as I'd known him, seeing Ed on television or his byline on the website was proof positive that he'd made it in this industry and that I could too. You could say I basically followed his blueprint from UF's journalism school to covering the Gators all the way to ESPN, and it was an honor to shout him out during my first season on the SEC Network."

David Ubben of The Athletic, the current FWAA president, was the award's first recipient in 2020. Grace Raynor, also of The Athletic, won the award in 2021.

In 2009, the Football Writers Association of America introduced its Super 11 Awards, designed to identify and reward the sports information departments and programs that exemplified excellent media relations.

The following 10 areas were set forth as the criteria/standards for selection for the awards:

- Players (eligible and playing in varsity games) who are requested should be available to media during two days of game week (minimum).
- Defensive coordinator and offensive coordinator should be available to media once a week during the season (minimum) and once a month during the off-season (minimum).
- Freshmen who play should be available to media.
- If former players and/or boosters are allowed into scrimmages or practices, the media should not be excluded from those same scrimmages or practices.
- Coaches should be available to media on their campuses at least once a week during the season in a designated media session of no less than 30 minutes. In addition, they also should be made available after practice each day for updates on the team. Weekly telephonic press conferences do not count toward these times.
- A “no cheering in the press box” statement, provided by the FWAA, should be made in the press box before the beginning of each half. In addition, Sports Information Directors should make every attempt to keep the press box quiet and escort disruptive individuals to the exits.
- FWAA member(s) should help each SID with requests for players to be interviewed after a game. Any player who has played (and is not injured) and is not made available for interviews will be so noted by FWAA observers. The FWAA recommends open locker rooms after games, but short of this, any player who plays in a game and is not injured, upon request, should be made available to the media.
- An FWAA pool reporter or a reputable media member should be designated by the host SID, in coordination with the conference office, before every game in case there is an officiating controversy. The process of addressing any officiating issue should be communicated to the pool reporter by the host SID after conferring with the conference office.
- Boosters should never be present at postgame news conferences involving the media, coaches and players. Interruptions or noise will be duly noted by the FWAA observer. Any media area where non-media are disruptive will also be noted.

The Football Writers Association of America (FWAA) and the National Football Foundation (NFF) & College Football Hall of Fame are continuing a partnership for an eighth season to conduct a weekly national poll, ranking the top 16 teams in the Football Bowl Subdivision each week during the regular season. The results will be released each week beginning with a preseason poll.

Weekly results will be released by 1 p.m. ET each Sunday of the regular season. The final poll will be released Dec. 4, the day after the conference championship games. The votes of each of the 52 pollsters will be made public each week during the season.

The pollsters consist of FWAA members and College Football Hall of Famers. The poll aims to draw on the vast knowledge of the group and their extensive experience in college football. The voters were selected to create a balanced-geographical perspective, coming from different conferences and regions of the country, as well as a diversity of viewpoints from the different roles associated with the game.

For more information about the poll, contact Phil Marwill with the National Football Foundation at pmarwill@footballfoundation.com or 917-579-4256.

The College Football Hall of Fame invites all FWAA members for a complimentary visit and discounted admission for guests. Just show your 2022-23 membership card to take advantage of this offer.

CONGRATULATE OUR 2021 RECIPIENT

Damian Jackson

University of Nebraska linebacker and military veteran Damian Jackson was named in November 2021 as the 10th recipient of the Armed Forces Merit Award presented by the Football Writers Association of America (FWAA). Coordinated by the Lockheed Martin Armed Forces Bowl, the Armed Forces Merit Award presented by the FWAA was created in June 2012 “to honor an individual and/or a group within the realm of the sport of football.” Jackson was selected from a list of 31 nominations (28 individuals and three programs) as the 2021 recipient by a nine-person committee made up of FWAA members and Bowl officials. Brant Ringler, executive director of the Lockheed Martin Armed Forces Bowl, and Heather Dinich, FWAA president, announced Jackson’s selection during a teleconference on Veterans Day.

FORT WORTH, TX | AMON G. CARTER STADIUM

Dave Campbell started his iconic Texas Football magazine in 1960

This past year has been a rough one: the Football Writers Association of America has lost four iconic members since our last directory was published.

Dave Campbell, the founder and publisher of the very popular Dave Campbell's Texas Football, passed on at the age of 96 last December. He had lived all but three years in his hometown, Waco, Texas, save the three years he served in the service in France and Germany during World War II. The Bronze Star winner had been an FWA member since 1956, was our President in 1968, and claimed the coveted Bert McGrane Award in 1988.

Roger Valdiserri, the legendary Notre Dame publicist from 1966-95, died at the age of 95 in June. He had been an FWA member for decades and has a permanent seat in the Notre Dame press box dedicated in his honor. He was associated with promoting many of the Notre Dame greats over the years and actually worked as an administrative assistant for Notre Dame head coaches Frank Leahy and Terry Brennan early in his career.

Tim Griffin, the FWA President in 2010, died in July at the age of 62 after a courageous battle with cancer. For many years Tim headed up the committee that annually selected the best-performing sports information departments in FBS, the Super 11. Tim worked for the San Antonio Express-News for more than 25 years and also had stints with ESPN.com, Cox Media, KRIS 6 News in Corpus Christi, Texas (digital director) and finally the Corpus Christi Caller-Times (content manager).

Lawrence Fan, the legendary and amiable San José State Sports Information Director, had been an FWA member since 1996 before passing away in February at 67. He was San José State's SID for 42 years, including for 501 straight football games. His department claimed a Merit Award from the FWA for its performance in 2020 under extremely difficult circumstances during the pandemic and California wildfires. San José State also won a Super 11 Award in 2009 under Fan.

Steve Ellis Beat Writer of the Year

Dave Matter, veteran reporter for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, claimed the FWA's Steve Ellis Beat Writer of the Year for the 2021 season. It was the association's 11th year presenting the award, named for Ellis, the late Florida State beat writer for the Tallahassee Democrat.

Matter has been on the Mizzou beat for more than two decades – since he was a student in Columbia in the late 1990s. He is actually covering his fourth football coach at Missouri during a career in which he is one of the most complete beat writers in the country.

Said St. Louis Post-Dispatch columnist and colleague Ben Frederickson: “He is relentless as a reporter, selfless as a teammate and totally on top of what is going on at Mizzou. Yes, sometimes even more so than the folks who work there.”
